CARRYING PAPERS.

A bill which bids fair to call forth strenuous opposition is that which has been presented to the general assembly for the purpose of preventing boys from peddling papers before six o'clock in the morning and after eight at night unless they are 14 years of age.

Connecticut doesn't stand among the states that urge child labor in the farms which it is intended to correct through federal legislation. It believes that boys and girls should have the chance that is due them to get a proper amount of play, rest and a good education, but it isn't believed that it takes the position that the boys of the past have suffered because they peddled papers before six in the morning, or that they should be denied the opportunities in the future to help themselves and their families, if that is necessary, by such work as requires only an hour or so in the morning.

Look through the list of successful business men of the state and note how many of them have gotten their start as early morning paper carriers. The papers within a few days have been featuring a man who used to sell papers in front of a certain business block. Today he is the owner of that $100,000 business house. This is but one of many instances which show the business man of today having got his first and valuable training carrying newspapers. It didn't stunt the education, the business acumen or mental growth. Rather are there reasons for believing that it increased them and gave them an insight to bigger things during spare time.

"Early to bed and early to rise," has long been advocated for young people, regardless of the use made of the time, as a contributor to health, wealth and wisdom. It isn't believed that Connecticut is ready to apply restraint to the boy who is willing and eager to win his way by devoting an hour to carrying papers even though it be before six in the morning.

DISCOVERY OF THE GERM.

Influenza has swept through this country and others leaving great death lists in its wake. It has puzzled and annoyed the health authorities because there was no better means of combatting it. From time to time in the past few years it has been believed that the germ responsible had been isolated, but repeatedly has it been found to be otherwise.

Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller institute has now announced that the germ is known, and knowing what the fight must be waged against medical science is confident that it can make war successfully. It places the medical authorities in a commanding position to deal with one of the worst pandemics that had threatened this and other countries for years.

Getting an antitoxin for such a germ doesn't depend upon its size but upon knowing just what it is, and yet it is evident that size doesn't represent power when it is declared that these influenza germs can only be seen by magnifying them a thousandfold. It will be remembered that during the period when influenza was raging the worst everyone was urged to cover their mouths when they sneezed or coughed, and the wisdom of it can be fully appreciated now when the size of the germs are realized and how easily they can be blown through the air.

Wonderful work has been done by the Rockefeller Institute in fighting disease. Such a force for combatting disease is of the utmost value and too much appreciation cannot be registered of the magnificent service it is performing for the relief of suffering humanity. In many fields are the effects of the extensive research work being felt. Service to humanity is the object aimed at and there is cause for congratulation from all directions that it is being so effectively rendered. The accomplishments make it evident that the Rockefeller millions are being well employed for the good of mankind.

SPRINGFIELD'S EXPLOSION.

The accident which occurred in the gas plant in Springfield must attract the attention of other communities than that, since gas plants are to be found in about all cities and it is quite important that adequate provision should be made for insuring all possible safety.

In all probability gas plants are in more isolated sections than the one in Springfield, but the explosion's effects being felt over a radius of a mile it becomes apparent that something more than location is called for in most instances if property damage is going to be prevented under conditions like those which prevailed in Springfield.

Just what the final decision will be as to the cause of the explosion must await a complete study of the situation. One explanation is that there was a leak in the purifying plant and that the gas was ignited by a spark from an electric elevator. Whatever it may have been that ignited the gas there seems to be no question but what there was a leak. The employes were warned, according to the report, in fixing leaks and it is presumed that they were following past practices in this respect and not endeavoring to locate the leak with a lighted match. But whether they differed or not in their method of dealing with the leak it would appear that some new factor entered into the situation. Conditions which prevailed at the time of this leak that haven't on other occasions furnish possible explanations.

In view of the far reaching effect of this explosion it was indeed fortunate that there wasn't a greater loss of life. The situation there, however, furnishes food for thought in all similar plants that the proper protection may be given to life without as well as within the limits of the company, and at the same time to the surrounding property.

THE LAUSANNE FAILURE.

The breaking up of the Lausanne conference is something what has been threatened for some time and yet it is what earnest efforts have been made to prevent until there had been a satisfactory adjustment made of the important questions at stake.

Turkey was brought before the representatives of the allied nations, and for a second time the Kemalists have refused a European peace. They balked at what the regular Turks approved under the treaty of Sevres. Since then they have had wonderful success against the Greeks and they take a defiant attitude over the terms offered them at Lausanne.

And it is to no small degree that they get encouragement in the stand they are taking from the attitude of the allied nations themselves. Instead of standing as a unit against the Turks it has been made clear to the Turks that the allies are not of one mind, and even though they have been aware of that fact and have seen the Turks playing that situation for all it was worth they have not changed the situation.

The situation in the near east has been one to cause the allies much concern. They have permitted it to get worse through delays and Turkey has even gotten a foothold in Europe again without coming to any agreement concerning the Dardanelles. The suggestion has been made that some of the separate problems, or even the whole situation, in the near east might be settled by the league of nations. It has had the opportunity to do something there for a long time and there are serious doubts whether it could accomplish anything where the leaders of the league have fallen down.

MAKING NEW RECORDS.

It is interesting to note, in view of the hearing and disclosures in this state before the legislation committee and the investigation ordered by the interstate commerce commission, that greater efficiency in the handling of business and the utilization of equipment is being made by the railroads than in the past.

In the three months period from October 13 to January 13 the total number of freight cars moved was 11,736,038. That was only a new record for the roads but it exceeded the best previous record made two years ago during the same period by 1,011,765 cars, or practically ten per cent more carloads than were ever handled before.

There are two reasons for gratification in connection with such a showing. In the first place it shows that the railroads are making the best use of their equipment during the hardest part of the year to meet the demands of business, and that in spite of serious handicaps and abnormal demands they are doing what was never done before.

In the second place it is an indication of the volume of business that is being done throughout the country. It represents an increase that reflects the improved industrial activity and there are reasons for satisfaction that the railroads of the country are thus so successfully meeting the situation. Even though there may be weak spots, it is impossible to overlook the record of accomplishment and give proper credit.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Alaska hears Cuba." Strange what difficulty Europe has hearing Armenia.

The man on the corner says: Every cold snap brings us that much nearer to the beautiful spring.

The farmer who searches his haymow for his daily dozen doesn't consider the price of eggs too high.

France is disposed to take only as severe measures in the Ruhr as the Germans insist upon. It is for Germany to say when.

Winter hasn't gone but it is only a matter of about 14 weeks to the opening of the straw hat season, and then of course everyone is satisfied.

Finding that corned beef that was over 3000 years old is interesting, but the question that arises now concerns its age before it was corned.

Those who are talking so strongly against prohibition's success may be the ones who established the popularity of olives through adverse criticism.

It is to be noted that the French haven't proceeded to kill off the people in the Ruhr valley, destroy the property, put the mines out of commission or carry off the machinery.

Just because President Harding sees the possibility of balancing the budget, it doesn't mean that there should be no further regard for economy in congressional expenditures.

Up in Maine it is proposed to hold its state election in November instead of September. Doesn't Maine know that if it does that it will lose a lot of valuable publicity as a barometer state?

The feeling in Pennsylvania is that they have taxes enough. Isn't there some other commodity that state can tax so it can continue its lavish expenditures at the expense of people outside of the state?

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Lemon juice will remove rust from linoleum.

Rub the mud stains from clothing with a raw potato.

If a cork has become too loose for a bottle to avoid evaporation or spilling of contents throw the cork into boiling water and let it soak until the water cools.

If a small piece of soap is added to the stove blackening it will make it stick to the stove.

A slate, with slate pencil attached, is indispensable in the kitchen. The needed article can be written down when the stock is low and nothing ever "runs out" or is forgotten.

The busy housewife will find her task much lighter if in her kitchen she has one of the table cabinets with drawers and spaces for the various small articles necessary in preparing a meal. An extremely convenient table is $30, while others somewhat smaller are less expensive.

A sponge may be prevented from becoming slimy by washing occasionally in warm water to which has been added a little tartaric acid; afterward rinse in clear water.

When dusting never use a damp cloth—it will invariably leave a smeary effect. Odds and ends of velvet are invaluable for polishing stoves and fenders.

When whipping cream to serve with a salad, remember that a little castor sugar added to it helps the progress considerably. So does the use of a wheel whisk.

To prevent badly fitting windows rattling, cut corks from wine bottles. One cork cut slanting across its length, so that each piece has one thick and one thin end, makes two excellent wedges.

The best way to clean aluminum is to squeeze the juice of a fresh lemon over a cloth and apply this to brighten the metal. When the aluminum is very much soiled a paste of whiting and water will help to clean it.

After being drained, boiled fish should be dished on a napkin or dish-paper. If over-boiled, the skin should be removed and the fish coated with sauce and a line of chopped parsley and lobster coral sprinkled down the middle.

CARE OF FLOORS.

If hardwood floors are badly spotted and dirty, the best way to clean them is wiping them up with gasoline. Moisten a clean piece of cheesecloth with gasoline and wet the surface of the floor vigorously with moisture of cheesecloth, changing cloth as soon as it becomes much soiled.

If floor is not very dirty use a good liquid wax.

Slippery wax floors are prevented by the use of liquid wax and a light wax mop.

HOW TO PREVENT SKIDDING RUGS.

One of the principal objections to the use of small rugs in homes where hardwood floors are laid is the tendency of the rugs to slip under the weight of a person walking on them, and thereby become the cause of possible injuries.

An entirely new idea designed to obviate slipping of rugs, has recently been tried out with results that have been highly gratifying. It is based on the well-known clinging qualities of rubber and as adopted consists of a mat or base of a net-like fabric made of cotton or other fibres combined with rubber and intended to be attached to the under side of the rug by sewing loosely.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

If hands and elbows look badly, wash and then rub them full of vanishing cream.

If you look tired, take a hot salt bath and rub cream down for a little before you dress, or at least, give yourself a cold cream face rub and wash this off as directed above. An ice rub is splendid too, to eradicate wrinkles.

Doctors tell us that between seven and eight hours is the average period of sleep required by the ordinary woman. If some of the usual night's sleep has been missed, it should be made up during the day, when a quiet nap in the afternoon will be found very refreshing.

Where there is really too much fat, however, a reducing massage must be resorted to to fine it down, and, if one is really anxious to improve her figure the over-plump woman should put herself on a strict diet, avoiding all fattening foods, while a course of exercises for the arms is to be recommended.

Throw the head back as far as possible and massage up and down the chin and across those distressing lines of the throat. Then lower the chin so it drops towards the chest and gradually elevate it again until it is far back as you can get it. As you throw the head back tighten the muscles of your jaw, "clench your teeth" as the novelist would say, for this stiffens up all the muscles of the chin jaw and throat. Repeat this several times, either before or after the massage that works the cream into the pores. This will give firm lines to chin and throat.

SHALLOW BREATHING.

One who very well knows what he is talking about has this to say of thinness and breathing:

"Outside of disease of some sort, the most common cause of thinness is shallow breathing.

"Have you ever seen a fine-looking girl with strong body and strong lower limbs, but with a flat chest and outstanding collar bones? There may be great hollows below and above those bones.

"Invariably this lack of symmetrical development of the body is due to failure to breathe properly. Good lung action is essential to good health.

"Fill your lungs with good air, load your red corpuscles with oxygen and your food will become of real value to you. Your chest will fill out and your figure will improve correspondingly. More than this, your power to resist disease will be added to and your chance of long life will be increased."

EARS AGAIN VISIBLE.

Whatever the fate of the bang, one thing is clear, however, ears, this season, will be decidedly fashionable — which leads directly to the question of earrings. In the main, the long slender earring of last season is a little demode, by reason of its very great popularity, but with the plain coiffure which shows the forehead and ears, earrings of some sort help very much to give a becoming effect, and for this reason there can be little doubt that as long as the severe coiffure persists earrings will probably do so.

SMART HEADDRESS.

Headdresses are smarter this winter than ever before. Of those, both jeweled and of rich metal fabrics, much might be written, for their role is a most important one. To the particular woman whose hair is not her greatest glory or whose locks are just growing in after bobbing the elaborate headdress comes as a godsend, and this is especially true of the American woman, who, as we have said before, is rather negligent in the matter of giving to her hair the admirable, well-groomed appearance achieved by the Frenchwoman.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

The short puff sleeve is seen on fashionable frocks, particularly those of taffeta. Slashed puffs are seen on some of the picturesque frocks that copy old costumes.

The always practical silk lingerie now comes in small indefinite checks of pink and white. The effect is extremely pretty.

Brocades are destined for an almost unprecedented vogue, and a new silk which has just appeared has an especially lovely design in rich and brilliant colors and woven across its surface tiny lines of gold.

Nile green and rust brown crepe have been seen regularly in soft center draped dinner frocks, with but a suggestion of a sleeve. Necklines cling to the Jenny type, but the backs of the frocks are admitting a greater decolletage.

One frock in dull green had a low placed waistline, marked with a circlet of silver oak leaves. The skirt had accordion pleated panels placed on a slanting line so that there was a slight simulation of a train on the left side. Another dull green frock had a straight cut apron drape, appliqued with silver butterflies.

A dull rose crepe Roma with a Jenny neckline had trailing sleeves and a draping in the skirt that looked like a Turkish maid's harem frock. Tiny cap sleeves and deeply inserted yokes of silver lace are often found on these simple dinner dresses whose whole effect depends upon the richness of the material and the smartness of line.

Shoulder straps have gone out utterly if the frocks seen are an indication of change, for while the dresses are sleeveless, the soft drape over the shoulder effects a sleeve in a most subtle fashion.

Bracelets of brilliants placed high on the upper arm are often fastened to the end of a shoulder drape, creating an unusual sleeve.

Celluloid beads in blended colors are being used as trimming for spring hats. Owing to the composition of which they are made, the hat does not become heavy no matter how many are used. Very novel effects are achieved through their use.

STYLE HINTS FOR LITTLE FOLK.

Black and emerald green are combined in simple little frocks, the black part usually forming the lower part of the dress in irregular panels or bands on the green. One model in these two tones is finished with little embroidered macaroons of black chenille, which is also used to join the panels of the frock in a sort of ajour stitch.

A new trimming for children's [illegible] and hats which is very effective is an imitation of fur obtained by thick wool hair cut regularly in the fashion of handmade carpets. As the wool is massed very closely and the hair more than an inch deep, it makes a warm trimming which takes the place of fur, in light gray on green cloth it is particularly effective.

COLLEGE PILLOWS.

Pillows in the lattice weave made of ribbons in the narrow or wider widths, as taste may dictate, in college colors, are simple to make. The pillow may be made of ribbon woven on both sides or the back may be of silk and the front of the ribbons. For men's colleges the pillows can have mannish bows at the corners. For women dainty bows or bunches of ribbon-made flowers in the college colors are effective.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

The patch-bag in which you put pieces left over from your dresses should be made from two thicknesses of strong wash net. This enables you to see the materials in the bag and pick out the pieces wanted without turning out the entire contents.

When needles have become rusty and seem unfit for use, rub up and down in the dirt and they will be like new.

In sewing on hooks and eyes sew the hooks on first, then take a piece of crayon and rub it well over the hook and press into the material. This will leave a chalk mark on the material at the exact spot where the eye is to be sewn.

In filling pincushions, try using flour. Your pins like it best.

One yard good quality sheeting will make two slips. Tea sheeting through center lengthwise, sew up and hem, or finish in scallops, edging, or any desired way.

CONSIDER THE NAP.

The amateur dressmaker, unless she has a knowledge of textiles, is more than likely to come to grief many times and to waste much good material.

Therefore, before she cuts into a fabric she should find out whether it is a pile fabric with an up and down to its surface. Velvet, broadcloth, and plush are pile fabrics and the up and down may be discovered by running the hand back and forth over the material. When the hand runs down the nap flattens, but when it goes up there is a rough feel to the surface. Serge, twill and rep have no pile, so there is up and down to the materials.

More yards are required if there is a nap as the fabric must always go in the same direction. Otherwise there is a perceptible difference in color.

TO GIVE GAY COLOR NOTE.

To add an interesting note of color to your rooms, make the lamp pulls for your various lamp of gay colored ribbons to harmonize with the furnishings. The floor lamps require long pulls with long tassels at the bottom. The shorter boudoir lamps have tailored bows or bead ornaments to finish them.

USE FOR OLD FUR COATS.

If a long fur coat is too shabby to be worth renovating, it is an easy matter to cut the rubbed portions away, and have it remodeled into one of the pretty short jackets, or deep hip belted coatees, that are also enjoying a popular vogue. Shawl wraps of a new cape scarf variety are so popular that many old fur coats are being cut up to fashion the same — deep fringes of chenille or silk helping to add to their luxurious effect.

TO BRIGHTEN UP THE DRESSED.

If you have any pert little china ornaments that have no specific use, mount them on a padding of cotton covered with silk ribbon. Place on the top of a round or square box which is decorated with a ruffle of ribbon, and you have an attractive dresser ornament which may be used to hold pins, thread, needles, etc.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

The Pennsylvania Legislature will take up the question of taxing women equally with men.

Miss Margaret Ll. Williams, England's most famous portrait painter, is the daughter of a South Wales shipbroker.

The new clubhouse of the Illinois Women's Athletic Club will cost in the neighborhood of $1,250,000.

Mrs. Mary Van Wye, woman member of the Ohio Legislature, is fond of gardening and outdoor life and has a hobby for traveling.

A wedding in Afhanistan is followed by much noise and merry-making, the idea being that the more noise that is made the more successful the marriage will be.

Mrs. Lena L. Forrest, in addition to her duties as national president of the League of Business and Professional Women, conducts one of the largest life insurance agencies in Detroit.

Mrs. Daisy McLaurin Stevens, daughter of the late Senator McLaurin, has made known her intention to become a candidate for the Mississippi Legislature.

FOR THE BOUDOIR.

For ferns or ivy are small flowere boxes of Italian pottery as graceful in shape as they are lovely in coloring.

KNITTED MATERIAL.

A stunning knitted material adapted to one or two piece costumes may be purchased by the yard. One pattern is tan, with a wide border of brown.

RECEIPE.

Raisin Sandwiches: — Cook until thick 1-2 cup each of chopped seedless raisins and chopped walnuts, 1-3 cup of sugar, and 1-2 cup of boiling water, then flavor with 1 tablespoon of lemon juice or a few drops of lemon extract. When it cools it is ready to spread on the bread.

Oranges with Cream Pie—Cut some oranges in thin slices, sprinkle sugar over them, and let them stand for about three hours. Make a thin, light and flaky bottom crust. Put in one-half a cup of thick, sweet cream, one-half a cup of pulverized sugar, one tablespoon of flour and one beaten egg. Flavor with lemon extract. Bake until you are sure the crust is brown and hard, so that it will not absorb the custard. Serve the sliced oranges with the pie.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Should today's elections in the Province of Quebec result in the defeat of the liberals and a victory for the conservative party, then Premier L. A. Taschereau, who has held office since 1919, would be succeeded at the head of the government by Arthur Sauve, the present head of the conservative opposition. Though still comparatively young in years, Mr. Sauve has long been prominent in provincial positions. A native of Quebec, he received his education principally at Laval university, and after completing his studies took to journalism as a career. He speedily rose to the top of his chosen profession and of late years he has been editor and publisher of one or another of the leading French daily newspapers of Montreal. His public career began with his election to the provincial legislature in 1908. Since then he has been returned several times by acclamation. In addition to his political activities, Mr. Sauve has taken a deep interest in social, economic and other problems affecting the public welfare.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Law Works Both Ways.

Anomalous as it may seem, a person may be married and yet single for the purposes of the income-tax law. A taxpayer's status with regard to exemptions and credits is determined as of the last day of the taxable year December 31, 1922, if the return is made on the calendar year basis as most are. If on that day a man and his wife were living together they are entitled to an exemption of $2,000 or $2,500, according to the amount of their net income for 1922. If, however, they were separated by mutual consent or were divorced, each is allowed only the $1,000 exemption granted a single person.

In the absence of continuous residence together, the question of whether man and wife are living together in the eyes of the income-tax law depends upon the character of the separation. If, occasionally the husband is away on business, or if for any necessary reason a temporary separation exists, the full exemption is allowed. The presence of a wife in a sanatorium, or [illegible] unavoidable absence because of ill health does not change the marital status, and the husband is entitled to the full exemption. But when the husband deliberately and continuously makes his home at one place and his wife at another, they are not living together for the purpose of the income tax.

The law works both ways. A man may wed on December 31, yet be is granted the exemption allowed a married person for the full year. The bride's income for 1922, however, must be considered with that of her husband in filing a return. A widower whose wife died before the end of the taxable year is classed as a single man and allowed only an exemption of $1,000.

Similar conditions exist with respect to the head of a family. If during the year his support of relatives in his home ceased, he is entitled only to the $1,000 exemption. A man who has a dependent child, not mentally or physically defective, that attains the age of 13 years just before the close of the taxable year can not claim the $400 for a dependent. Likewise, if a dependent dies before the end of the benefactor's taxable year, the $400 credit is not allowable.

Stories That Recall Others

A Motor Mind

Marion, aged three, was playing with a kitten for the first time. The kitten began to purr. She put the kitten down and running to her mother exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, the kitten has his engine running."

Goes Him "Two Dogs Better"

A railroad man owned a houn' dog that he wished to get rid of. As a certain means of accomplishing his object, he locked the dog in a freight car board to an adjoining state, heaved a sigh of relief and went about his work, glad with the thought that he finally had got rid of that dog.

Two weeks later opening a car containing a consignment of goods from that place to which he sent the dog he heard something scratching on the door.

As he opened it, out bounded three emaciated, rawboned dogs. On the door of the car was written in chalk: "See your one dog and go you two dogs better."

The safety council of London is endeavoring to establish the custom of walking to the left and it is asserted that many accidents will be prevented if this should be made general. The effort has so far been unsuccessful.

DEAN OF WOMEN'S COLLEGE IN BROWN UNIVERSITY

Providence, R. I., Feb. 4.—Dr. Margaret Shaw Morris, chosen last June to succeed Miss Lucy Shaw King as dean of Pembroke College in Brown university, will assume her new duties tomorrow. Dr. Morris was until recently a professor at Mount Holyoke, and it was due to her duties there that she was not able to come to Providence until the present time. The new dean will meet the student body officially tomorrow and on Wednesday will address them in chapel. In accordance with her own desire there will be no formal inaugural ceremonies. Dr. Morris is the fourth dean the Women's college in Brown university has had since its foundation a quarter of a century ago. She is a graduate of Goucher college in Baltimore in the class of 1904.

Old Masters of Prose.

Go then and eat thy bread in gladness, and drink with joy thy wine, for thy works please God. All times be thy clothes white, and oil from thy head can not. Patiently use life with the wife that thou lovest, all the days of the life of thine unsteadfastness that been given to thee under sun, in all the time of thy vanity; for this is thy part in life, and in thy travail that thou travailest under sun.—Wyclif's version of Ecclesiastes, 9, 7.

Substitutes for Rubber.

Combinations of linseed, peanut, rape or mustard oil with sulphur form rubberlike substances, which are said to be used to a considerable extent in the manufacture of India rubber compounds. Pure, unvulcanized India rubber will float, nearly submerged, in water, while the oil substitutes, being slightly heavier in proportion to their bulk, sink.

What He Would Do.

Being told by the deacon that his constant demands for money from the pulpit would kill his church, an old colored preacher replied, "Churches don't die that way, brother. You show me one that did an' I'll shout with a voice of thunder, 'Blessed am the dead that die in the Lord!'"—Boston Transcript.

EVANGELIST KING CONCLUDES SERIES OF MEETINGS AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Two large congregations at the Central Baptist church Sunday morning and evening heard Rev. York A. King of Boston as he concluded the series of evangelistic meetings which have been held there for the last ten days. In the morning he spoke upon Christian Character and in the evening upon Christ and the Crowd. The music in the service was led by Rev. G. C. Cooper of Providence.

Any man can go to hell, said the evangelist in his Sunday night sermon, but it takes a real red-blooded man to be a true Christian.

Jesus knew the wondrous power of forgiving and never dealt hard with the sinner who had repented and was trying to seek the light. The Bible gives us beautiful instances of the forgiving spirit. It tells of the rich man's son who went away from home and later became sorry for his acts and started for home, penitent, seeking forgiveness. His father was entertaining guests at a banquet when he heard that a stranger was coming and went out. Seeing his son in rags, he drew him to him and kissed him, then clothed him in rich robes and took him to the banquet table.

A man sins until he sees his error and stops, and society welcomes him back as a lost son. Let a young woman sin and then repent, and society will throw her further into the gutter.

Jesus was being banqueted at Simon's home when a woman slips in and kneels at his feet, washes his feet with her tears, dries them with her hair, and then anoints them with rich ointment. Jesus saw Simon whispering and told him the story of the creditors, one owing $500, the other $100, neither being able to pay. If both were freed of their debts, which, said Christ, would appreciate it the greater? It is the same with this woman. According to the custom, Simon should have given me water with which I might wash my feet; this woman with her tears has done this. You, Simon, should have kissed me upon receiving me; this woman kneels and kisses my feet. You should also have given me ointment to anoint my head; this woman anoints my feet with ointment. Then, looking at the woman, Christ says, I say unto you that her sins, which are many, are forgiven. To the woman he says, Arise, and sin no more.

It was the same forgiving spirit that Christ showed when the woman knelt at his feet when Pharasee soldiers stood near by to store her to death as her sin demanded according to law. Christ said, Let him who is without sin cast the first stone. All left, and Christ spoke to the woman, telling her to go and sin no more.

A man well known in America today had the misfortune in boyhood of not understanding his father. His father also could not understand him. The boy said that his father had accused him of something he had never done, and if he ever tried to whip him unjustly he would run away. Soon his father was to whip him, and the boy ran away. Two years later because of an illness he returned home, and found his father just over an illness. The only thing to eat in the house was buttermilk and bread. The mother tried to be cheerful while eating the things kind neighbors had brought in and saved some of the bread for the morning meal. Morning came and there was bread and water to eat. After eating, the son said he was going away. As he left the house his father asked if he could walk down the path a way with him. The boy and father walked down and at the end of the lane the father begged his son to remain, saying that neighbors would provide for them, and that he was sorry for all that had happened and loved the boy. The boy said, No, I am going away, and started. He heard his name called and turning saw his father coming toward him, his hand out. He took what his father held and put it in his pocket. Getting around the turn in the road, he looked and saw it was a half dollar, the last his father owned.

Later this boy denied God and all religion and went to Chicago to hear Mr. Moody, who was to talk on The Prodigal Son. The young man went there to pick flaws in the story and deny it all, but when he heard the story he broke down. Later he asked Mr. Moody if God was like his father had been, and Mr. Moody said "Yes." The young man became a true follower of Christ after that time.

At the close of the service every member of the congregation signed small cards to be handed in to their churches.

Bolshevism, Its Cause and Cure.

Bolshevism, Its Cause and Cure, was the topic upon which the evangelist spoke Saturday night, using as a text the verse, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

Bolshevism, he said, is a disease, a commercial, industrial, political, social and economic disease, which has spread its infection because the principles of Jesus Christ have been left out. There has never been a nation that has incorporated into its national fabric the principles of Jesus. Statesmen look with deep concern upon the conditions of the world today. They see in it the possibilities for a cataclysm that would make the late war look like an afternoon tea party. But if the principles of Jesus had been incorporated into the lives of nations there would be an international Christian brotherhood that would make this fearful threatening thing impossible. And while the nations have failed the church has been impotent in this greatest of all days because it too has left out the principles of Jesus Christ. The home too has left him out, and what is true of the home is true of the individual. The curse of this nation today is the divorce court.

When we had our industrial troubles with strikes, they said we need more policemen; but policemen's billies never made anything but sore heads, and soldiers' bayonets never made anything but sore hearts. War never did anything in this world but to add to its curse. Increased wages and reduced hours never satisfied the labor union, increased dividends never satisfied the rich stockholder and capitalist. The only thing that satisfies is God. This is what the old world needs, just God, and God just as he is. When a man is in the right relation to God he will be in the right relation to his fellowman.

What nation, church, home and individual need is just Jesus.

DOUBLE PULL ON FIRE ALARM MIXED BELL

The fire department was called out at 1.07 o'clock Sunday afternoon for a fire at 11th street, when the Chevrolet closed car and garage of P. H. Ethier caught fire. The car was badly damaged, the top being burned off and the interior of the garage was somewhat burned.

The fire was discovered by a man who saw smoke coming from the garage and notified Mr. Ethier and box No. 28 was rung in. The men then hauled the burning car from the garage and the firemen soon had the building safe and used 37 gallons of chemical to extinguish the blaze in the car.

Mr. Ethier was at a loss to tell of the cause of the fire. The car had not been used since Saturday night and he was the only one to enter the garage Sunday, this being in the morning. It is possible that a short circuit caused the fire but this is only a supposition, the true cause being unknown.

For the second time within a short while a box was pulled in wrong and Chief Stanton wants to impress on everybody to pull the lever but once and then leave it alone, for it will ring itself. Sunday the box was pulled twice, meaning a second alarm which calls out extra apparatus. Luckily Sunday it was realized that this was no second alarm and no other apparatus responded. If people will pull the lever once and then let it alone we'll soon be on the spot, but if they persist in yanking the lever several times, their house may burn down before the number is deciphered by the firemen, is Chief Stanton's warning to Norwich residents.

Quinn at the state hospital Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, but was again continued for two weeks, at the request of counsel. Meanwhile the young man is to be a voluntary patient at the state hospital under observation as to his mental condition.

Accused on Serious Charge

James Shankel, 24, colored, was arrested Sunday morning about 1 o'clock at his home at 62 Myers avenue on a charge of rape committed Saturday night upon Gertrude Wilbur, 15, colored, daughter of James Wilbur of Elizabeth street.

The arrest of Shankel, who was found in bed at his home, followed a complaint from the father and aunt of the girl who had gone looking for her when she had not come home and they had seen her coming away from a house a few doors from the West Main street fire station. The girl was brought to police headquarters by Officer John Donovan and her relatives. There she at first denied that there had been any wrong doing between her and Shankel, but later acknowledged it, according to the police report.

Sergeant Mathews, and Officers John Donovan, John Dombroski and P. Murphy went in the auto patrol wagon to Shankel's house where they arrested him and he remained locked up over Sunday at police headquarters.

When the age of the girl was learned the charge as stated was entered against the man on the police blotter.

"I'm jaded," he said, "I'd like to go somewhere where I could be completely cut off from the rest of the world, and—"

CAPT. SAMUEL R. KNAPP REACHES 88TH BIRTHDAY

Captain Samuel R. Knapp of 35 Washington street celebrated his 88th birthday Saturday at his home in a quiet manner, enjoying greetings from old friends. He is in good health, is active, and keeps in touch with all happenings of the present day.

Captain Knapp was born in Paterson, N. J., February 3, 1835, and when he was a boy of 9 years his father died and at 11 years he left home to work in a cotton mill. At this type of work he labored 14 hours a day and received the handsome sum of $1 a week for his efforts. There was no talk then of shorter hours and more pay.

When he was 13 the captain located in New York city and lived in what was called "out of town"—last block on Third avenue and 17th street. The people used to hunt and shoot birds around 30th and 35th streets and now gunmen shoot men in that section for a few dollars. Seventy-five years makes some change, says the captain.

Capt. Knapp became an expert cigar packer and was engaged by N. C. Breckenridge to come to Norwich and work in his factory and in his store on the Wauregan house corner.

Capt. John E. Woodward, who also worked for Mr. Breckenridge, was sent to the old steamboat dock, at the foot of Shetucket street to meet Capt. Knapp and the former still speaks of the fine impression the New Yorker made on the Norwich boy. That was in December, 1856, and the steamer was known locally as the "old Paddymack." Capt. Knapp was lodged in Mrs. Hubbard's boarding house, where all the New Yorkers employed by Mr. Breckenridge lived. The captain is the last of that interesting contingent. Four of them, later made and sold cigars on their own account.

One of them used to tell of a dream and the curious condition in those days. He had a big family and he could not make both ends meet. He tried to make cigars in his own home at night and work for Breckenridge by day. He kept the door locked and sold the cigars as best he could on his own account.

One night he dreamed that the boss heard of the matter and told Foreman Ryder to discharge the cigarmaker when he came to work that Monday morning. The dream impressed the man and he told his wife and she laughed and said he must be getting foolish. Still the man went to the shop with forebodings and the dream came true in every detail, as the boss claimed the man who hurting the business of the plant. Then the workman pushed out for himself and made a success.

In June, 1862, Capt. Knapp quit work and organized Company I of the 18th C. V. John H. Morrison was first lieutenant and Martin V. B. Tiffany second lieutenant. The soldiers came from all sections of the country. The regiment encamped on the fair grounds and went to the front under Col. W. G. Ely in August, 1862. Many of Company I are still alive.

Following the Civil war Captain Knapp served 20 years in the internal revenue service, under Col. Selden, the collector. After that he was for 30 years in the employ of James B. Shannon.

In recent years Capt. Knapp has lived a retired life, enjoying leisure after years of hard work. Some of his summers are spent in Maine.

For years when a young man Capt. Knapp had his residence in Preston, now known as the East Side.

For nearly 70 years the genial captain has been in close touch with the business and political life of this section, from the days of the open ballot, when every man knew how his fellow man voted, to the days when only the voter and his conscience knows, by the aid of the closed machine. He knew all the leading men of his time in this country and there was nothing tame or quiet of the politics of the early sixties. He can talk in an instructive manner of the men and affairs as they passed in his view.

FEW REALIZE BIGNESS OF MODERN VESSELS

It is almost impossible for the mind to form a clear and adequate conception of the size of modern steamships. We read that they are 800, 900 or 1,000 feet long, that their tonnage is so many thousands, and so on, but the figures are so large that we fail to grasp their significance.

Perhaps one might get a more impressive idea from the size of some of their smaller parts. The Aquitania is now in dock at Southampton for her annual overhauling. As a part of the process a new centerpiece is to be put into her rudder. This new piece, made of cast steel, weighs just twenty tons. It is large enough to have a hollow chamber into which workmen may enter in order to inspect the hinge mechanism. The entire rudder has a weight of eighty tons.

But if these modern monsters of the deep are wholly beyond comparison with anything that ever sailed the seas prior to the last few decades, there is little chance that any one of them will ever influence history as some of the comparatively diminutive boats of the past have done. The material that went into the building of the Mayflower, for example, might be so well hidden in out-of-the-way corners of the Aquitania that it would take long searching to find it again; but neither the Aquitania nor any other single one of these present-day giants of ocean navigation can affect the destiny of the world as it was affected by the Mayflower's famous voyage three centuries ago. We are tempted to glory in the bigness of our present way of doing things, but after all, when we glance back over human history, we see that bigness and importance are not necessarily linked together.—Columbus Dispatch.

HOW TO SLEEP 3-IN-A-BED

YES, it CAN be done—but not like this.

The trouble is, most people go to bed with "something" on the mind—or ON THE STOMACH!

The answer is, no matter what the day has brought forth to upset your mind and digestive organs, take Beecham's Pills when you retire.

Though in no sense a "sleeping potion," this 80-years-famous household medicine so harmonizes the system that you can sleep in quiet and perfect rest, even in two feet of bed space.

Beecham's Pills are so efficient and harmless for children as for adults—sweetening the stomach, invigorating digestion and stirring liver and bowels to natural activity.

Most Perfect Prison

In appearances much more like a fine clubhouse than the usual prison building, the Beauregard parish jail at De Ridder, La., was constructed some years ago to conform with the ideas that a place of imprisonment should be a house of correction rather than a dungeon of imprisonment, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The building has the reputation of being almost perfect in sanitation and health conditions. It is massively built of reinforced sand-blasted concrete, three stories high, with a terra-cotta roof, and a square central tower. Every cell in the interior is roomy and has a window, so that no prisoner is deprived of fresh air and a view of the beautiful sky and landscape of a southern state. Baths and toilets are provided for every cell, and every prisoner sleeps in a comfortable bed.

AGED MAN OBTAINS RENEWED VIGOR

WINCARNIS Quickly Restored Failing Strength

"I take pleasure in testifying as to my experience with Wincarnis, from a positive feeling of gratitude to the compounders of it. Am a man over 70 and for some time past had found myself failing faster, and in ways other than my age alone would seem to account for. Had tried various medicines which seemed to benefit me for a time, but inevitably caused a relapse. Happened to see an advertisement of Wincarnis, and thought I'd try once more. With the first dose I realised that I had found something which "reached the spot" at once.

Have now been using it over a month with very marked benefit in increased strength, better appetite, sound sleep, and greater ability for my work, which taxes my endurance at my age severely.

CAN YOUR MONEY MAKE MORE MONEY?

The L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation Deals In MONEY ONLY

Therefore there is not one cent of its capital tied up in factories, material, machinery or equipment of any kind.

It has nothing that wears out, nothing that has to be replaced. Not a dollar of the corporation's money goes out of its treasury except safe-guarded by gilt-edge security. This means SAFETY, which is really SAFE.

This may serve as an introduction to the fact that the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation, with its general offices at Putnam, Conn., is engaged in delivering a financing service, particularly for the automobile industry.

Loans made by this company on new automobiles are safe, first, because it receives, as security, the ownership of the vehicle and the paid for insurance policy; second, because notes signed by the borrower (whose character and local standing have been carefully investigated and approved before the loan is made) are held by us; third, because the endorsement on the notes is that of the automobile dealer selling the car, or some other responsible person; fourth, because our capital is never tied up in long-time loans or investments, and the loans are distributed over a wide area and in small amounts.

The repaid growth of the business of the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation since it was incorporated in September, 1921, has been amazing. Its annual report issued last week shows that it now has assets of $140,170.24 and liabilities of only $48,161.34.

That its sphere of action may be increased to meet the demands upon it for financing, stock of the corporation is now offered to the public. Stockholders of record during 1922 received dividends at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum.

At incorporation, the dividend rate on the preferred stock was fixed at 7 per cent. per annum, but the success of the corporation has made it possible to pay much more than that during 1922.

With increased capital the corporation will be able to greatly increase its earnings during 1923. BUYERS OF THIS STOCK CAN MAKE THEIR MONEY EARN MORE MONEY. EIGHTY PER CENT. of the new automobiles sold in this country are now sold on time—and it is supplying capital to these buyers that our profits are earned.

This advertisement invites you to become one of the owners of this corporation, organized and conducted by well known and responsible citizens of Eastern Connecticut. In the past five years many millions of dollars have been invested in corporations formed for the individual purpose of loaning money to the purchasers of automobiles. The success of those enterprises has been of such a marked character and the demand for this service has been proved so great that THE NEED FOR GREATER FACILITIES TO HANDLE THIS CLASS OF BUSINESS HAS BECOME ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY. You will be welcomed as a stockholder in line to share in the immense profits to be earned in this line of financing. Communicate with our general office for further detail or explanation of this remarkable investment opportunity.

PLAN

To illustration: Mr. Jones wishes to purchase a car—the price of which is..... $1500.00

The L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation's charges for negotiating loan, interest and insurance amounts to. .....$ 142.06

Making total time price..... $1642.00

Mr. Jones pays (33 1-3 per cent. or 1-3 in cash) 547.34

Leaving a Balance On thr of..... $1094.66

which sum the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation loans him for 10 months.

Mr. Jones gives the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation as collateral a Conditional Bill of Sale on the Automobile and 10 monthly notes of $109.46 each—these notes are and must be endorsed by the dealer from whom automobile is purchased or some other satisfactory endorser. Since the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation charges must be paid in advance we actually loan Mr. Jones the difference between $1094.60 and $142 which is $952.66.

Now then Mr. Jones pays back each month one note of $109.46 which is immediately loaned out again to finance another Purchaser—thus—making an endless chain, each link being an independent—safe—and profitable transaction.

It is now clearly shown that we have earned from the loan made to Mr. Jones—a total profit of $142.00 less the insurance—but—most important of all is that the principal has been safeguarded at all times.

1st. By holding a Conditional Bill of Sale which gives us the right to take said car under any circumstances—in case of default or departure from the Condition of Bill of Sale.

2nd. By holding borrower's note for entire amount.

3rd. By having borrower's note endorsed by the Automobile Dealer or a financially responsible person.

4th. Insuring Automobile in our favor.

Thus was shown an example of the profits earned on one transaction—but, it shows only the least possible earnings—for—as soon as the monthly notes are paid by the borrower—the money is again loaned out, the interest thus compounding.

Notes received are negotiable—and—as such may be and are discounted at banks at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum—giving us additional working capital—the benefits of which go to the stockholders.

Suppose we took the 10 notes that were given to us by Mr. Jones to the bank and discounted them and loaned the proceeds, then took the notes obtained from the next transaction and discounted them and so on all through the year. We are very conservative when we say that our capital can be turned many times a year.

Donor Of Davis Cup May Head U. S. L. T. A.

Dwight F. Davis, of St. Louis, donor of the famous trophy bearing his name and emblematic of the world's lawn tennis team championship, has been nominated to succeed Julian S. Myrick, of New York, as president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. The election takes place at the annual meeting to be held in New York in February. While noted principally as the donor of the Davis cup and one of the pioneers in encouraging international tennis competition, Davis ranged a score of years ago among the best players in this country.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Just to prove, if need be considered, that February is a real winter month and that what has gone before during the present season doesn't figure at all in piling up the winter's list of iniquities, Sunday turned out as one of the most bitter cold days of the year. Zero temperature with a keen, biting wind greeted those who were out for early church services, and those who came to divine worship later in the day were not favored with appreciably better weather conditions.

At the noon hour the mercury was hovering around the 10 above mark and the cold wave showing no indication of relenting.

Danielson business houses have a buying carnival in view for those who make this community a trading center—and that means residents for miles around. When officials of the Chamber of Commerce meet this week it is likely they will definitely fix the date for one of the semi-annual Dollar days. This big shopping event has now become a twice a year fixture—once in the late winter and again in the late summer. It has become an understood fact everywhere in the territory from which Danielson draws business that these Dollar days are events not to be overlooked, for unusual offerings are the rule in every store, so the announcement of the date of the next great shopping event will be awaited with interest.

No more delightful evening ever has been enjoyed at a Killingly High School Junior promenade than that of the class of 1924. There were various special features that appealed to those attending. The decorations of the assembly hall were attractive. The music, by a Providence orchestra, was excellent for modern dancing. The attendance was large. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Lest those who have undertaken the work become neglectful in a real period of stress, attention is again called to the necessity of keeping up the feeding of game birds. The severe weather conditions against which they have been battling for life during the winter have not been materially relieved. Within 48 hours quail have been noticed hunting food within six feet of the entrance of a manufacturing plant. This is typical of the manner in which game birds are being forced out of their accustomed shyness of man and his works that their lives must be sustained. It has been repeatedly said this winter that the man who likes to hunt and wants much done to provide game for his pleasure, isn't within a million miles of being a real sportsman if he isn't engaged right now in doing something to preserve wild bird life—especially game birds—that hunting may be an engaging pastime next fall.

This is the last full week before the beginning of the Lenten season. Lacking as many are in these modern days of any special inclination to restraining themselves from worldly pleasures during the penitential period, there appears to exist—entirely apart from religious views—a tendency to letting up on frivolity during Lent. Therefore, this week and the first two working days of the coming week will be marked by a round of dances and entertainments, preceding a period that will extend to Easter Sunday, April 1, during which few dances will be held and few other affairs of an entertaining nature scheduled. The nearly seven weeks of Lent will afford many an opportunity to rest up after a rather trying season.

Arrival of nearly 300 tons of hard coal in Danielson at the week end served to relieve in some measure the pinch that has been felt here for many weeks by families who must, to have even a portion of their accustomed comfort, be served with this kind of fuel. The arrival of the cars of coal was an event, for no such sizeable shipment has been received here at one time in nearly a year. Unloading of the cars was preceded by a rush of calls to dealers for an allotment of the coal—for news spreads quickly and hundreds knew that the coal was here even before it had been taken off the cars.

Observers of freight trams moving northward through this territory have noticed during the past few days that hard coal shipments seem to be more frequent and heavier than at any time during the winter. So, it appears, that more extensive relief from near famine conditions in the hard coal market is in sight than it has been possible to tell of at any time this season.

Motorists who have negotiated the Main street of Danielson the past two days—bucking against ridges of ice that line the sides of deep ruts, have been surprised on going south for a distance of only three miles to find the state highways practically free from ice and snow and for the greater part of the way south to Norwich as dry and clean as during the summer months. Then a short distance southward brings visions of Palm Beach—and all of the winter pleasures with which that popular resort is afflicted—and a first stirring of real hope that the first hint of spring for southern New England cannot be long delayed.

About 30 members of the Danielson Girls' club journeyed to Moosup Friday evening by touring car and motor bus to attend an entertainment staged by the members of the Moosup Girls' club.

A special service at which the annual ceremony of blessing the throats of members of the congregation was held Sunday afternoon at St. James' church at the close of vespers.

Frank J. G. Bailey, assistant cashier at the Windham County National bank, has been ill at his home for a few days.

Henry B. Mathewson of Stamford was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

A building programme of considerable extent is planned for Danielson and territory hereabouts for the coming spring and summer. In large part the building will have to do with the erection of new dwellings.

Thomas J. Aylward visited with friends in Norwich over Sunday.

Miss Katherine T. Thayer of Mt. St. Joseph's seminary at Hamilton Heights, Hartford, is visiting with relatives in Danielson today.

The Danielson-Putnam bowling team of the plant department of the S. N. E. T. company defeated a Norwich telephone company team in a match rolled in that city Friday evening.

The Checker Girls, a company that has given pleasing shows, closed a three days' engagement at the Orpheum theatre Saturday evening.

Members of the Willing Workers' Guild of Brooklyn are to hold their last meeting before Lent at the home of Mrs. A. S. Bard in that town on Wednesday.

Mrs. Saidie Fulton is confined by illness to her home on Academy street.

Mrs. L. J. Morin has been elected president of the St. Anne society of St. James' parish.

John A. Peterson of Pawtucket was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

Mrs. Andrew Crumley will have the members of the Thursday club at her home for a meeting this week.

Rev. Albert Jepson of St. Alban's church conducted services at Trinity church in Brooklyn, Sunday. The subject of his sermon was The Divinity of Christ.

Up to today there has been more than five weeks of continuous sleighing, something very unusual for this section of southern New England. And the five weeks do not include the period of ice prior to the first of the year.

PUTNAM

The cafeteria at the Putnam High school has been made self supporting by Mrs. A. A. Perry, who has it in charge. Not only is it self supporting but at the end of each month Mrs. Perry has been able to turn over to the town a few dollars above her salary of $50 per month. That this shows careful management is evidenced by the fact that the cafeteria serves lunches to the pupils at a minimum cost, the price being fixed at just above what the raw material costs. The bills are all paid by Mrs. Perry from the money received; in fact, she manages it as a business proposition separate from any school department and makes her accounting. Of course it is under the supervision of school officials, but to such a high standard has the system been developed that there is no interference with the one in charge. The material varies little from month to month so that the account of January is an average for each school month in the year. This shows material bought as follows: Milk $6, candy $92.70, bread $7.85, ice cream $40.50, groceries and meat $24.17, a total of $181.10.

"Mother" Park and her family of approximately 100 children are to have their house enlarged. The Windham county temporary home in the Sawyer district, like the other public institutions of the state, has a continual increase in the number of inmates. A total of $26,000 will be expended. The chief item of expense will be a four-room addition, two stories high, about 50x60 feet in dimensions. These new rooms will be devoted to school purposes, the basement making a light, airy, indoor playground. There will be improved bathroom facilities, improved water system and other minor changes. A visit to the home a few days ago disclosed a most happy, contented family of children. Dressed in substantial, warm clothing, well provided with sleds, the youngsters were enjoying coasting in the yard. They all look upon the matron, Mrs. D. C. Park, as mother, and so call her.

"A betrothal announcement party," says the Seattle Post Intelligencer, was recently held to make known the engagement of Dr. Ernest E. Chapdelaine, who is the younger son of Mayor and Mrs. Victor Chapdelaine. Dr. Chapdelaine is to marry Miss Helen Brayman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Brayman of Seattle. Dr. Chapdelaine is a native of Putnam and a graduate of Putnam High school. He is an ex-service man, having served in the U. S. navy during the World war. He graduated from the American College of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., and soon afterwards went to the Pacific coast to begin practice.

The average attendance was 15.77. In the advanced room, Miss Dutton teacher, there was an enrollment of 28—23 men and 5 women. The active registration was 16—12 men and 4 women. The average attendance was 12. In the commercial room, Miss Gallant teacher, there was an enrollment of 21 men and 13 women. The active registration was 17—10 men and 7 women; average attendance, 11; entered during month 10, dropped out 1. Four petitions for divorce have been returned to the clerk of the Windham county superior court. Mrs. Alice C. Davis of Danielson asks a decree on the ground of intolerable cruelty, in her complaint Mrs. Davis alleges that her husband is possessed of property of the value of $45,000. An attachment has been placed on the property amounting to $15,000. Mrs. Gladys J. Mills, also of the town of Killingly, alleges as her ground for divorce that her husband, Mark Mills, has deserted her. Mrs. Eleanor L. Smith of Pomfret seeks her decree on statutory grounds. She asks to be allowed to resume her maiden name of Barsow. Mrs. Mary A. Whitman of Brooklyn, the fourth petitioner, claims intolerable cruelty. The custody of five minor children is sought and alimony is asked for.

L. Pease and Mrs. J. S. Greene; publicity committee, Mrs. C. M. Elliott. The league is non-partisan and in no way conflicts with membership in a strictly partisan organization.

Mills in the city manufacturing woolen and worsted fabrics are unusually busy. One mill is running night and day to keep up with orders.

The alternating freeze and thaw is of benefit in one way. The ice and snow are disappearing so gradually that there is no chance for a freshet and the water in the Quinebaug river is little more than normally high.

Editor J. J. Whitehead is in New York. He is expected home today and will be accompanied by his mother, who has been a patient in Roosevelt hospital.

There was basketball and plenty of it at the Putnam High school gymnasium Friday night. A game between the girls of Woodstock Academy and the Webster Independents was won by the Bay Staters by one point, the final score being 12 to 11. In the Woodstock Academy-Pomfret-Mellotte Memorial High school game, the Woodstock quintet won in a walk by a score of 22 to 13. With the game went the cup of the Quinebaug Valley league offered to the winner of the two teams standing last in the league. The third game was a walk-over for Putnam High school, Wells High school of Southbridge being the victim of a 35 to 18 score. There is much interest in the game next Friday night between Putnam High and Norwood High of Norwood, Mass.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Going for a Walk

Put his woolen leggings on,
Here's his fuzzy cap,
And the mittens Grandma knit
For the little chap!
Here's his cunning red lined coat,
There's no use to talk,
Cuter baby never lived,
Going for a walk!

Little shaky on his feet;
He's so very small!
Only think, two months ago,
Couldn't walk at all!
Now he takes me by the hand,
As I proudly stalk!
Roly-poly baby boy
Going for a walk!

Oh, the wonders that he sees
As he walks about!
Common things are miracles,
There's no end to doubt!
And I'm sure he thinks the earth
Covers but a block
He's been all around the world,
Going for a walk!

In the Storm

I was hastning one day, through the snow and sleet,
When I saw an old horse standing near, on the street.
He looked at me sadly, with gentle, brown eye,
And it seemed that he whispered, as I passed him by:

"Kind friend, I am cold. In your great overcoat
And your muffler that's fastened so snug 'round your throat.
You never could guess, since you are so warm,
How chilly I am, standing here in the storm.

"The driver drove me—and how I did dash—
Along the street, up the hill, at the end of his lash!
While I shivered, and urged me the faster to go
On my poor weary legs, through the ice and the snow.

"Kind friend, if you watch, I am sure you will see
A great many other old horses like me
Who, for somebody's pleasure, are urged to a run,
Then left, unprotected, in storm or in sun.

"I am an old horse, and I can't speak my mind,
But if I could talk, I would say 'Please be kind.'
For though I am only a horse, it is true,
In feelings I'm almost as human as you."

I found an old blanket I surely could spare,
I threw it across him and fastened it there.
And I'm sure I felt better, that day of the storm,
Because I was kind to a poor old horse to keep warm.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

I suppose most of you who read the Wide-Awake page today, as you usually do, on Sunday night and look forward to it all week, are disappointed that, if anyone, there was only one new story. Well, I'll tell you why. Next Monday some of the Wide-Awakes, you would have to wait, and maybe before you could receive and read them, and you would not get your letters in time to have them answered at once. The story of the morning of the day, if the week is an interesting one. I suppose most of the astrologers and almanac makers of today, as they did in the days of the week were named after heavenly bodies, such as the sun, moon and planets, which the ancients got their names from the gods which the old Norsemen used to worship. It can be easily seen that Sunday was named after the sun and Monday after the moon. In the old days they were called Sun's day and Moon's day.

Tuesday was named after a god called Tyr, known to the Norsemen as the god of valor or bravery. So Tuesday, in the olden days was called Tyr's day. Wednesday got its name from Odin, who according to the belief of the old Norsemen, ruled the heaven and the earth. At first Wednesday was known as Odin's day. The Saxons called Odin, Wodin, so the day became known as Wodin's day. Now it is called Wednesday.

Thursday was named after Thor, the god of thunder and lightning, who the Norsemen believed caused all the thunder and lightning. Friday is named after Freya, who was the goddess of love. So Friday was first called Freya's day. Saturday got its name from Saturn, who as the Wide-Awakes know, is one of the bright planets in the heavens.

Perhaps it will be interesting to the Wide-Awakes to know that the Norsemen called Saturday "Thvatt-dag" which in our language means "washing or bathing day."

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

A Story of Long Ago

Dear Uncle Jed: Long, longa go, the houses differed from the houses of ours. They were made of skins, limbs, bark, and tall grasses. There were no stoves, chairs, tables, and beds. Instead of lamps, gas, or electricity, a fire on the dirt floor furnished the light.

The clothing was also different from ours. For it was made of skins, and furs in cold countries and braided grass in warmer countries. Instead of the clothing being made with a steel needle it was made with a sharpened bone or sometimes a thorn. The sinews of deer furnished the thread.

When they needed food they went to the forest and gathered roots, nuts and fruits. Wild animals were killed by means of a bow and arrow.

They had no stoves as we have, so that some of the meat was broiled over a fire and sometimes it was heated in a hole with live coals, but most of it was eaten raw. These people, as you already know are the unenlightened. There are some of these people still living in some parts of the world.

A Visit to Grandmother

Dear Uncle Jed: One day I went to my grandmother's house with my uncle. We stayed all night and came home the next day. I had a good time there. Many of my relatives were there too.

When we went home I fell asleep, but awoke soon. While we were on our way, my uncle gave me an ice cream cone.

We stopped at a store to get the ice cream. There I saw some puppies and a big dog.

How Rover Earned His Collar

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope all the Wide-Awakes will be interested reading this story.

Once upon a time there was a little boy named David. His father bought a collie dog named Rover for his birthday present. He loved Rover very much because he was such a tiny puppy. It was just the kind of a playmate for David and they played together and taught him many things such as running after a ball and playing hide and seek. David would not allow anyone to beat Rover a little bit, but his mother told David that Rover got a little bigger.

One day David's mother went down town and on the way back to her home she saw a boy trying to take Rover and see if he could sell it. So David called to him and went home. When they got home Rover ran to meet him. Then David loved his dog more than ever before. The next morning from the window in the house in the city Rover saw David going to school. He was very pleased, for he thought that David would not go to school any more. So the next day he brought down city she brought Rover a nice collar. And so David was very proud of Rover ever after.

Trip Through Yellowstone Park

[illegible] I am going to tell you about my trip through Yellowstone Park. [illegible] famous geyser. Another well known geyser in the park is Grand Geyser which ranging from fourteen to sixteen days spouts a column of steam and hot water high in the air. The Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone is nearly as large as the Grand Canyon of Colorado. The Canyon can best be seen from Inspiration Point. Above the canyon are the great falls. These falls are 360 feet high or almost double the height of Niagara Falls.

A Snowball Fight.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day in December the 26th the first snowfall we had. I was going to have a snowball fight with Irene, Alfred and Randolfe. Irene and Randolfe were on one side and Alfred and I were on the left. The rule of the snowball fight was not to put stones in snowballs. The fight was in the back of the house. Irene said the game lasted about four hours and said that the snowball fight was the best game she ever had. I said to her that I was glad they did not break any windows. Irene and Alfred won the game. We were all tired so we went into the house and I was very sleepy so I went to bed.

About Copper.

Dear Uncle Jed: I wonder if any of the Wide-Awake boys and girls know how important copper is to our country.

In industrial development copper is more important than any other metal except iron. Copper has been used much longer than iron and steel. It is widely distributed over the earth and has been known from the earliest times. In recent years copper has come to be of great importance. It is used to a great extent in modern warfare and in making electric wires and electric machinery. Copper is indispensable where electricity is employed.

When Columbus discovered America, the American Indians had weapons and implements made of copper. The Indians lived among rich deposits of iron. Iron occurs in the form of ore. The ore has to be reduced by heating before it can be used for implements. This the Indians did not understand. They could, however, fashion rude implements of copper simply by pounding it. The Indians had not reached the use of iron. There are three important copper sections in the United States. One in Michigan, another in Montana and the third in Arizona.

Spiders and Their Homes.

Dear Uncle Jed: I wanted to write you a story about spiders and their homes.

Spiders are not looked upon with much admiration or affection, although their industry and their perseverance are well known.

As a matter of fact, they are not only able and skilful weavers but in temperate climates at least, they are usually innocent and harmless. They rarely bite, and then only in self defense.

One spider has a curious way of building her house. She makes a hole in the ground, six or seven inches deep. In this burrow she can keep her babies warm the weather is chilly.

The timbers which she uses are scarcely two inches in length, but her bricks are very much [illegible] earth. She works inside [illegible] very, planning her school with care. When her work is finished she has a little tower, more than [illegible] high where her babies may enjoy the sunshine.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, Feb. 3.—Speculators for the advance succeeded in materially raising prices in today's brief but active session of the stock market. The restraint which the market has been under in response to the unfavorable foreign news seemed to be wiped away and prices were bid up vigorously in reflection of further constructive developments in the domestic situation which included additional increases in sugar and Pennsylvania crude oil prices and the optimistic nature of the weekly mercantile and trade reviews.

The demand embraced a wide list but was most effective in the oils, rails, steels, equipments and a few specialties in which pools have resumed operations. There was a marked absence of bear pressure and the realizing sales that poured into the market were comparatively easily absorbed. Twenty standard railroad shares closed today at their highest average this year and the average of 20 standard industrials was only slightly below the year's high mark.

Sinclair Oil, trading in which has been comparatively light and usually within narrow limits, developed a sudden burst of activity, more than 20,000 shares changing hands, the closing price representing a net gain of 1 3-8 points. Gains of . to 2 1-2 points also were scored by California Petroleum, Royal Dutch, Standard Oil of California, Pan American A and B, General Asphalt and Houston. Philips Petroleum yielded slightly to profit taking. Sugars all sold around their best prices of the year, but the net gains were relatively small.

Railroad shares again were in good demand. Gains of a point or more were recorded by Southern Railway Canadian Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Pere Marquette, and Frisco common and preferred. Motor shares also made marked progress although the volume of trading was relatively small.

Studebaker was pushed up to 116 3-4 for a net gain of 2 1-2 and Chandler advanced 1 point to 65 3-4. Accessory stocks climbed in sympathy, Fisher Body adding 4 points to its recent advance, Stewart Warner 3 and Stromberg Carburetor 2 3-4.

Some of the other individual strong spots were United Retail Stores, Iron Products and General American Tank Car, each up 2 1-2 points.

Foreign exchanges were firm in reflection of the more favorable developments in the south. Demand Sterling sold above $4.67 and French francs advanced 81 points to 6.45. German marks were quoted at .00285 cent a hundred as against their recent lof of .00du cents.

The weekly clearing house statement showed an increase of $33,000,000 in loans discounts and investments and a decrease of $19,000,000 in the reserve of member banks in the federal reserve. Net demand deposits increased $9,038,000 and time deposits decreased $2,550,000. Aggregate reserve totalled $825,731,000 making a deficit in reserve of $5,730,320 as against excess reserve of $14,624,520 the previous week.

REV. PERCY S. GRANT QUOTES FROM LETTERS RECEIVED

New York, Feb. 4.—In the first sermon since Bishop William T. Manning informed him that he would not be tried for heresy, the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, today told a large congregation that "I did not become a clergyman to become a parrot and repeat what was in the Bible."

"I became a clergyman," he said, "so I could help my fellow men and help solve some of the problems of civil life. One thing about a clergyman is that his associations are with the people he loves and he is happy when they seem to be happy in his church."

Taking as his text the 142nd Psalm, 12th verse, "Young Men and Maidens, Old Men and Children, Praise the Name of the Lord," Dr. Grant said:

"Religion should give happiness to the young and old, to praise the extraordinary miracles of life and utter a song of praise.

"I have been interested in the past few weeks, having received numerous letters, in some cases from those who feel themselves much concerned, from young men and in a few cases from young women.

"They did not want to start life with a handicap. They want freedom and liberty. They didn't want and more jungles of mystery—an clouded regions of thought. The old men said 'we want to see some progress.' They united for greater freedom."

A ripple of laughter swept the congregation when Dr. Grant said that one letter, now have from a man read: "You the greatest chance you will ever have to tell big audiences, for you won't have them long."

In another letter, from a college student, he said, the writer stated he "was not satisfied with religion, as served and science had laid out."

"Lots of ministers," the letter continued, "haven't the courage of their convictions when their salary is at stake."

A college professor, Dr. Grant said, wrote that "the academic world has to wage a similar war from time to time.

He said he had received a telephone call from "a beloved man of Wall street of liberal views," who said: "You are clearing the air for a whole lot of people."

"If so," Dr. Grant continued, "it's a good thing to do."

"We are living in a new age and want the benefit of all extraordinary knowledge," he said. "I am an affirmative kind of a person. There has to be a little clearing of the ground before you can construct."

"We must ask for the incoming of all the light and each must enlarge the visiting of spiritual good," he continued, "there is no such thing as spiritual complacency. It must be stronger every day, inside or outside the church. New knowledge is in the possession of anyone who cares to have it. We should try to make it attractive and effective.

"We say Jesus taught us we are all brothers. What is the practical result when we have labor disputes and trouble between nations? Does it produce results? What are we going to do about it?"

The next tourist season will find interpreters stationed on the London buses as an aid to foreigners in finding their way about.

MEXICO FORBIDS PUBLIC CONSECRATION OF BISHOP

Mexico City, Feb. 4.—(By The A. P.)—The consecration of Monsignor Jose Manriques Zarati as Bishop of Huejutla, which was to take place today at Cerro Del Cubileta, where recently outdoor ceremonies were held which culminated in the expulsion from the country of Monsignor Filippi, the papal delegate, were forbidden Saturday by Gilberto Valenzuela, undersecretary of the interior, in instructions forwarded to Governor Antonio Madranzo of Guanajuato, according to El Universal and El Democrata.

Senor Valenzuela cited lengthy sections of the constitution prohibiting such public ceremonies. He reiterated that the government did not wish to appear to be prejudiced against Catholics, but that it must act in accord with the federal laws.

El Heraldo, which is recognized as the government organ, announces that legal proceedings against members of the Catholic clergy for participating in the ceremonies which led to the expulsion of Monsignor Filippi have been dropped, "the investigation proving that certain civilians, and not prelates provoked the conflict between the prelates and the federal authorities."

NO CLUE TO MURDERER OF PATROLMAN WALSH

Framingham, Mass., Feb. 4.—After 36 hours of checking up theories and questioning suspects local and state police tonight were admittedly without a clue in the murder of Patrolman William J. Welch, of the Framingham force, who was shot and killed early yesterday in the front room of a lodging house in the Saxonville district. It was believed that the patrolman had taken a prisoner, and had been about to telephone the station when shot down by his captive.

Framingham and several adjoining towns were searched throughout the night. A number of summer camps at Dudley pond, Wayland, were ransacked today by the state police as possible hiding places for the murderer. District Attorney Arthur K. Reading has taken personal charge of the investigation.

Meagre descriptions of the killer given by two young men who saw him running from the lodging house agreed that he was a young man wearing a dark suit and cap. John McGrath, a fireman at the lodging house, who saw Welch struggling with a man and ran for help and a watchman at a mill nearby who responded to McGrath's summons, were the two witnesses. Welch, found dead near a telephone had three bullet wounds in his head. One of his hands had been bitten and his face was bruised. He had been on the force for 17 years.

RANCHMAN KILLED FAMILY, THEN CUT HIS OWN THROAT

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 4.—R. E. Payton, prominent rancher and until a few days ago a member of the state house of representatives, today killed his wife, Mrs. Lulu Payton, his two children, Jean 8, and Richard 6, and then slashed his own throat. The tragedy was enacted on the Payton ranch, nine miles southwest of Phoenix. Three of the victims were dead when found shortly after three o'clock this afternoon. The fourth, Richard, died later.

TWO IRISH REBELS WERE KILLED BY PLANTED MINE

Dublin, Feb. 4.—Free State soldiers while escorting a party of republican prisoners near Bandon today encountered a barrier across the road. The prisoners were ordered to remove the barrier, and while engaged in this work a mine exploded, killing two and wounding seven of them.

Numerous acts of destruction were reported today. Senator O'Sullivan's summer residence at Killarney was burned, other private dwellings were set afire in Howth and the storehouse at Tralee, Dublin county, was destroyed by fire.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT IRISH PEACE CONVENTION

Dublin, Feb. 4.—There was a large attendance today at a convention of the members of the Irish republican army. The session was secret and the only information given out was that an executive committee had been elected and would draft a report which would be issued to the press tomorrow.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

THE CALL OF THE BEAR

"I cannot find a wolf or bear,
And I have hunted everywhere,
Behind the well and chicken cook
And underneath the front door stoop,"

said the Policeman Dog, who had come to help poor Uncle Lucky find out who was pounding on the door.

"Well, if you can't find him, I guess he's gone away, whoever he was," said Uncle Lucky, looking out of his bedroom window because he was afraid to open the front door, you see, and when he came downstairs and let in the Policeman Dog, when all of a sudden, they saw a little card on the floor.

"What's that?" said Uncle Lucky.

"Why, it's a calling card," said Little Jack Rabbit.

"Give it to me," said the Policeman Dog, "maybe it will be a good clew and help us to find out who tried to break into your house," and he went and stood under the electric light.

THEY FOUND A CALLING CARD ON THE FLOOR.

"Mr. Peter Bruin, Bearville, U. S. A."

"Goodness me!" said Uncle Lucky, "it was a bear, but why did he want to call on me?"

"I don't know," said the Policeman Dog, "but now that everything seems all right, I'll go back to the station house, for maybe by the time I get there, somebody will call up saying that Mr. Peter Bruin has made another call!" and the Policeman Dog opened the door and stepped out on the little front porch, and Goodness Me! before he could jump back, he ran right into a great big bear who began to growl. Wasn't that dreadful?

But before he could growl three times more, the Policeman Dog tickled his ear with his club and this made the great big bear laugh and when a bear laughs, let me tell you, he doesn't growl or show his teeth. No Sirreebus! His whiskers curl up at both ends and he looks very pleasant.

"Get out of here, Mr. Bruin,
Or you'll be renamed Mr. Ruin.
If you don't you'll be to blame,
For I'll knock the B right out of your name."

And after that, the Policeman Dog swung his club to show he meant what he said, so, the great, big bear turned around and opening the little front gate, said:

"I didn't think you heard me knock,
And I couldn't find a bell,
And so, I hammered on the door
With a great big oyster shell."

And then, he took off his fur cap and ran away to the Shady Forest where he had a cousin, another big bear, who lived in a cave and sold honey and lollypops to the little people who lived in the wood, but he wouldn't sell them unless they were good, for he was a very particular bear and brushed his teeth and parted his hair.

EVANGELIST COOPER AT Y. M. C. A. PICTURES

At the 4 o'clock meeting at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon a very practical and impressive service was held.

Swahn's orchestra rendered several selections which the audience greatly enjoyed. The singing of popular hymns, scripture reading and prayer made up the opening services. Rev. G. C. Cooper also rendered a vocal solo, The Old Rugged Cross. Several reels of moving picture on Pottery were shown, picturing the making of pottery in olden times in other countries and also the modern methods in the art in America.

Evangelist Cooper delivered an exceedingly impressive address based on Jeremiah 18; 1-4, which speaks of the clay and the potter. He said in part: These pictures you are looking upon today bring to us a very practical lesson. First they and the scripture read suggest to us that we, in a sense are but lumps of clay, and there is nothing about us that should make us proud. We are apt to think that we amount to a great deal, but as we grow older, we realize that we know comparatively little. You noticed in the pictures that the potter fashioned the kind of a vessel he desired out of common clay, which had no will of its own, it simply yielded itself to his every touch. There is just this difference between the common clay and us; we have a will and the clay has none. It would be a simple matter for the great potter, God to mould us into a beautiful vessel, but the reason for the trouble is that our own selfish wills intertere with His purpose for us. God can do nothing worth while for us or through us as long as we have a will that says no to his purpose for us. I have said that we are but common clay, and so we are, but we have within us great possibilities that God Almighty desires to develop. I am told that a tree of pig iron costs but little, but after it has been put through many processes and made into a watch springs it is worth not less than $10,000. It all depends on the process God desires to put us through certain processes that will bring us out into useful and beautiful lives, that we may be a blessing to those about us. To us yield, men to His Holy touch, I do thereby become the kind of men that he had purposed we should be.

WHY COLDS LEAD TO PNEUMONIA

When a cold is neglected it attacks the lining of the breathing passages — then may be pneumonia. Father John's Medicine treats colds and helps to prevent pneumonia because it nourishes the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter; any other way of treating a cold is likely to lead to pneumonia. Not a "cough syrup" or "balsam" depending upon dangerous and weakening drugs, but a food medicine and body builder.

McSHEFFERY GIRL HELD WITHOUT BONDS ON INFANTICIDE CHARGE

On the charge of infanticide in being responsible for the abandonment and death of a male infant, Miss Grace McSheffery of New London, formerly of Manchester, N. H., was presented in the New London police court Saturday morning and was bound over, without bonds, to the May term of the criminal superior court. After the hearing she was taken back to the hospital where she is kept under police surveillance during her convalescence.

John Joseph Guinan, a sailor, who had been charged with first degree murder in connection with the case had the charge against him changed by the court to a simple felony, keeping from the authorities his knowledge of the commission of a crime. He was placed under $1,000 bonds for the next term of the superior court. Samuel J. Randall of Philadelphia, counsel for Guinan, expects to get bail for him. A sister of the accused man came on from Philadelphia for the hearing.

A large crowd that had waited all the morning to hear the case tried was disappointed when at noon the case was reached and the court room was ordered cleared so that all spectators were driven out.

Attorney G. A. Morgan, counsel for Miss McSheffery, entered a demurrer to the charge of murder and the demurrer was overruled and the accused bound over to the next term of the superior court without bond.

Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin opened for the state by calling to the witness stand Medical Examiner H. H. Heyer, who testified to the finding of the body of the dead child in a vacant lot at the corner of Reed and Blinman streets. Dr. Heyer stated that the child seemed to have had a normal birth, all the different medical tests revealed that the heart and lungs had been in action for a time, the body was without signs of injury, the child had not died to death, and the conclusion reached was that the child had died of either suffocation or exposure, due to criminal negligence.

Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich testified that some days following the discovery of the body of the dead baby, Guinan had given him a signed statement which contained the following information. Guinan first met Miss McSheffery in New York city in November. He was introduced to her by a girl acquaintance of his. Shortly afterward he returned to New London and some time later he received a telephone call from Miss McSheffery, who had also come to the city. She telephoned that she wanted to see him and he met her. Since that time he confessed that he had lived with her as man and wife.

The baby was born, according to his confession, on the night of Jan. 22, while he had gone out to get a doctor when Miss McSheffery was taken ill. He failed to get a doctor because he found he had no nickel to put in the telephone, and when he returned to the room the baby had been born and was alive. Soon Miss McSheffery said she was going to get rid of the baby. Guinan asked her if she knew what she was contemplating, and she is alleged to have replied, that it wasn't his baby, it was ——, and it wasn't her baby. She is alleged to have taken up the baby and went out.

One-half hour later she returned without the baby and is alleged to have stated that she had thrown it in the dump. Coroner Desmond testified that after Guinan had related the facts, the coroner set them down in writing, and asked Guinan if he would sign the statement and Guinan signed the statement, after having been cautioned as to the meaning of the interview that he did not have to say a thing that might incriminate himself.

Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin stated that it was the coroner's opinion as well as his own that Guinan was not an abettor of the crime and that the facts did not warrant Guinan being presented on a capital charge. The charge of murder was then dropped and only the less serious felony pressed against Guinan. The prosecutor explained that the specific charge was that Guinan had of the commission of a he had not made the fact known to the authorities.

Attorney Randall made a pathetic plea to the court for his client, speaking with considerable oratorical effect.

GUN USED BOUND OVER FOR SUPERIOR COURT TRIAL

After listening for three hours to a confused and conflicting mass of testimony in the New London police court Saturday morning, the court [illegible] probable cause [illegible] Mariolo and he was held under bonds of $1,000 to the superior court. [illegible] gave bonds of $1,000 for his appearance.

Mariolo was charged with attempting to shoot Joseph Venditto in a wine drinking brawl, which took place in a Woodbridge street grocery store on Jan. 8.

Four witnesses were put on the stand, but their testimony was so [illegible] that the attorneys for both the defense and the prosecution agreed to turn the matter over to the court without [illegible] The court found probable cause.

The story in the main as related by the witnesses was that on the day the shooting took place a number of men had gathered at the grocery store to play cards and drink wine. [illegible] ditto was not. The wine was not distributed with equality and the feeling between Mariolo and Venditto. Cursing followed and Mariolo is alleged to have offered to take Venditto outside and settle the affair.

Venditto refused several offers of this nature and in the course of an attempt to leave the store he was seized by the coat. Mariolo ripped a button off Venditto's coat in the skirmish and Venditto picked up a box and hit Mariolo over the head. Then he reached for his rear pocket. They believe that Venditto was about to pull a gun. Mariolo then pulled his revolver and fired the bullet, hitting Venditto in the side. Venditto ran from the building and went into a nearby meat market and called for the police. The police arrived and he was taken to the hospital but was found not badly hurt and was dismissed within 24 hours.

Following the shooting Mariolo is alleged to have thrown the revolver out of the window and then to have fled. He left the city and remained in hiding until a few days ago, when he surrendered himself to the police.

PARENTS IN DISPUTE OVER SON'S CUSTODY

At a hearing in chambers Friday in New London upon habeas corpus proceedings for the custody of Robert Clinton James, 3 1-2 years old, Judge C. L. Avery made the suggestion that the parents ought to make some effort to reach an agreement. The mother of the boy, Sarah Kane James, of Old Lyme, brought habeas corpus proceedings against her husband, Roy Clinton James, of Waterford, to secure possession of the child.

Following informal statements by Attorney C. Hadlai Hull for the plaintiff and Attorney Morris Lubchansky for the respondent, in which they acquainted the court with their clients' versions of the controversy over the custody of the child, Judge Avery told the attorneys that the parents ought to be able to reach some agreement between them until such a time as the matter could be disposed of permanently, and so adjourned the hearing until next Tuesday morning, when it will be resumed in case no settlement is reached.

Michael DiBiasi and N. R. DiBiasi, owners of the plaintiff concern, were on the stand all the morning and gave testimony regarding the kinds of [illegible] and nature of the work done for the plaintiff.

Attorney Thomas E. Treland represented the plaintiff and Attorney Perry J. Holland-sky was counsel for the defendant.

Shields again on Saturday formally postponed for another week the hearing in the matter of the Groton Iron Works on a petition to sell certain articles of machinery and other personal property which had an original cost of $336,54.758, but are listed at $424,230.69 present cost.

The bankruptcy court is awaiting another court decision that may have a bearing on this case.

ARIZONA SENATOR PRAISES BRANDEGEE'S AMENDMENT

Senator Henry F. Ashurst of Arizona made an interesting speech in the senate this week, using a constitutional amendment proposed by Senator Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut as his text, in which he deplored the present tendency to make radical changes in the fundamental law of the land without a clear expression of the popular will.

"The purpose of the Brandegee amendment is principally to make amendment of the constitution somewhat more difficult and consequently it was strongly approved by the Arizona senator, who indicated his opinion to other proposals. "The federal constitution conserves and protects all that real Americans hold precious," he declared. "It should not be changed by legislative caucus, but by direct vote of the people."

The salient features of the Brandegee amendment are that it would limit the time for ratification of future amendments by the states to six years and would give congress the right to say how such amendments should be ratified by the states, whether by the legislatures, by conventions or by direct vote of the people. It is presumed, of course, that with this power congress would in the case of future amendments provide for a direct vote of the people, and thus prevent the possibility of the adoption of amendments such as the eighteenth, where there is serious doubt that even a majority of the people of the country favor it, to say nothing of the three-quarters apparently necessary by the Constitution itself.

Senator Ashurst pointed out that at present an amendment may be adopted by the vote of the state legislatures, which altogether include 7,403 persons, a small percentage of the total population of the whole country. "We find ourselves in this posture," he said. "Two-thirds of the congress and a majority of the 7,400, or about 4,500 men, pass upon the destiny of the most advanced people that ever lived in the tide of times. We set ourselves up as a leader among the nations in thought and as a representative of the people's will, and yet 4,500 men, if they saw fit, could Prussianize the republic."

The Arizona senator gave a history of attempts, both successful and otherwise, to amend the Constitution since it was established and showed the great need for restriction of the kind proposed by Senator Brandegee.

Police Court Cases.

In the city court Saturday morning one New London man and a man from Providence, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication, were fined upon promising to put many miles between Norwich and themselves.

A man from Newport, R. I., paid for getting drunk in Norwich. J. Brewer was given 30 days in jail on a breach of the peace charge but the sentence was suspended and the man told to change his style of living.

The case of state vs Andrew Patrylo of Hallville went over until today (Monday). Patrylo claimed he was not drunk when driving his automobile and wanted a lawyer to contest the charge.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS NOT FROM POOR EYESIGHT

Automobile accidents in Connecticut do not occur as a result of poor eyesight, according to an investigation which the department of motor vehicles is making.

For some time the accident division of the motor vehicle department has been examining the eyesight of each person who comes into the state capitol to make out an accident report. The results of these tests have just been made public and show in a surprising way that not only the average driver, but even the driver who is below the average and goes into frequent accidents, is in the majority of cases, free from any physical disability.

The report which has just come from the commissioner's office, states that only 2 1-2 per cent of the drivers reporting accidents have any eye trouble at all, and no person has yet been examined who might really be said to have vision poor enough to make driving dangerous. Seventy-one and one-half per cent have excellent vision, 18 per cent average sight; 8 per cent fair sight, and 2 1-2 per cent have vision which is below normal.

A unique test is also being given to determine whether or not the drivers are able to discern colored signals at a distance. So far not a single person has been found who has not been able to call off the colors correctly at the given distance.

These figures have made it clear to the department officials that any accidents which happen at grade crossings, or elsewhere where signals are ignored, are due entirely to carelessness and not to any physical defects in the drivers. The general accident is considered to be much more a matter of carelessness than actual incompetency on the part of registered operators to drive automobiles.

POETRY

THE FOOL'S PRAYER.

The royal feast was done; the king
Sought some new sport to banish care,
And to his jester cried, "Sir Fool,
Kneel now, and make for us a prayer!"

The jester doff'd his cap and bells,
And stood the mocking court before;
They could not see the bitter smile
Behind the painted grin he wore.

He bowed his head and bent his knee
Upon the monarch's velvet stool;
His prayer was this: "O Lord
Forgive me for I am a fool!

"No pity, Lord, could change the heart
From red with wrong to white as wool;
The rod must heal the sin but Lord
Be merciful to me, a fool!

"'Tis not by guilt the onward sweep
Of truth and right, O Lord, we stay;
'Tis by our follies that so long
We hold the earth from Heaven away.

"These clumsy feet, still in the mire,
Go rushing blossom without end;
These hands, well-meaning hands we thrust
Among the heart-strings of a friend.

"The ill-timed truth we might have kept—
Who knows how sharp it pierced and stung?
The word we had not sense to say—
Who knows how gladly it had rung?

"Our faults no tenderness should ask,
The chastening stripes must cleanse them all;
But for our blunders—oh, in shame
Before the eyes of Heaven we fall.

"Earth bears no balsam for mistakes;
Men crown the knave and scourge the tool
That did his will; but thou, O Lord
Be merciful to me, a fool!"

The room was hushed; in silence rose
The king, and sought his solitude cool
And when alone, apart, unmoved by
"The mercy sought to make a fool."
Edward Rowland Sill, in Boston Transcript.

FRANCE.

Oh, France is the land that leads the way,
And France is the land for me today.
The laggard and sluggard may say their say,
But France is awake—and she leads the way.

Why should she hover and chaffer and cower?
May none but an enemy choose her hour?
She knows the worth of his word and power,
She sees his works—and she sees beyond.

She knows that nothing on earth can stay
For the darling weapons of Death and Decay,
But France is alive—and she leads the way.

The American ambassador informed Ismet tonight that he was ready to submit to the powers any statement the Turks wished to sign. The Turkish leader is understood to have replied evasively, and gave the impression that he was about to leave for Angora.

BILL IN HOUSE TO FURTHER RESTRICT IMMIGRATION

Washington, Feb. 5.—Exclusion of Japanese immigrants and a reduction in the percentage of aliens admissible from European countries would be provided for by sections of a proposed permanent immigration restriction act approved today by the house immigration committee. Completion of the entire measure within a day or two and a prompt report to the house is the committee's plan.

Japanese exclusion would be made possible, it was explained, under a general provision of the bill which sets forth "that an immigrant not eligible to citizenship shall not be admitted to the United States." To meet treaty stipulations exceptions would be made in the cases of ministers of the gospel, professors of colleges, members of any "learned profession" and bona fide students "who seek to enter the United States solely for the purpose of study at an educational institution particularly designated" by them. Such students who married after entering the country would be deported, however.

Explaining the section of the bill which would provide for the exclusion of Japanese immigrants Chairman Johnson said it was the purpose simply to translate into law the terms of the "gentlemen's agreement" between the United States and Japan affecting immigration from the latter country. In past the executive branch has objected to attempts to deal with this matter in general legislation by congress, but this far there has been no announcement of objection in the present instance.

Figuring how the new percentage plan would work out, committeemen said Italy's quota would be reduced from the present 42,000 to 3,000 while the quota for Germany, for instance, would be increased from 51,000 to 68,000. The quotas for Great Britain, France, Belgium and the Scandinavian countries also would be increased while those for Poland, Russia and the Balkan states would be decreased.

Like the present temporary restriction law, the proposed act would not operate against immigration from Canada, Newfoundland, Mexico, Cuba and Central and South America, provided congress made the admission to the United States had been resident in those countries for a period of five years.

The number of immigrants who would be admissible in any one year under this provision is estimated at 86,437, as against the 358,357 annually under the present act, but actually the 186,437 total probably would be greatly exceeded through the operation of general provisions designed to avoid division of families.

WOULD HAVE CONGRESS OVERRIDE SUPREME COURT

Washington, Feb. 5.—Congress has been likened to a messenger boy standing in the ante room of the supreme court waiting for approval or disapproval of its act, Representative Frear, republican, Wisconsin, said today in a statement accompanying a record of closely divided supreme court decisions on constitutional questions which he placed in the Congressional Record.

Mr. Frear proposed a constitutional amendment giving congress the power to determine how many members of the supreme court shall join in decisions declaring laws unconstitutional ,to provide for the recall of judges without impeachment or to review and set aside decisions by a two-thirds vote of both houses.

"The decision of the supreme court said Mr. Frear, 'declaring the income tax law unconstitutional by five judges to four, followed by the emasculating of the income tax amendment, holding stock dividends non-taxable by the same vote, call for relief and some method of enacting laws that are not in the judgment of the court 'supposed laws.'"

Within thirty days, Mr. Frear said, the department of labor "has called attention to the fact that 300 statutes, bills and ordinances have been set aside by the courts in the present epidemic of judge-made law."

CONTESTING SECRECY OF FARRAR DIVORCE SUIT

New York, Feb. 5.—Supreme Court Justice Cohalan will take under advisement tomorrow to rule whether the shattered romance of Geraldine Farrar and Lou Tellegen shall be unrolled before the public or the petition of the diva for a divorce be thrashed out in a referee's office behind closed doors.

Today's hearing was interrupted when newspapermen requested Referee Thomas H. Mahony to permit them to attend the session.

The referee said he saw no reason why the hearing should not be public, unless Justice Cohalan, who referred the case to him, desired otherwise. But he announced that he would entertain a motion for privacy. Miss Farrar's lawyer promptly petitioned for secrecy, and adjournment was taken until the matter could be placed before Justice Cohalan.

It was found that the judge was ill indoors with a cold. It therefore was planned to get his decision at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, half an hour before the divorce hearing was scheduled to be resumed.

Morse recently requested the government to aid him in obtaining as witnesses William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, and Charles M. Schwab, and Major General G. W. Goethals, both of whom were Emergency Fleet Corporation officials.

BRISTOL JUDGE RECEIVES LETTERS SIGNED "K. K. K."

Bristol, Conn., Feb. 5.—Judge William J. Malone today turned over to the postal authorities the second letter he had received from some unknown source and which bore the letters, "K. K. K." The judge is not a bit frightened. The first letter received Thursday was written in jingle and caused the judge to laugh heartily because he felt flattered that the poet laureate of the "K. K. K." if such was its source, should have mentally exerted himself to hit his personality into a "spoon."

The second letter received Saturday was on a 4x1 piece of brown wrapping paper. One one side was printed in pencil: "Judge ? Malone—You will be elected this time but you will not live out your term."

(Signed in big letters)

"K. K. K."

On the reverse side was a dagger and what by stretching one's imagination was a representation of a flaming cross with more big letters, "K. K. K."

He added that the republican party would present a united front in 1924 and stand on the administration's records in congress and in the executive departments.

PROHIBITION CAUSES CLUBS TO CONSOLIDATE

Boston, Feb. 5.—Prohibition has brought about losses in income to the Engineers' club and the University club and resulted in plans to combine the two organizations in the former club's quarters in the Back Bay district, the committee on rules of the house of representatives was told today.

This statement was made by counsel for President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard, in behalf of A. Lawrence Lowell, Inc., owners of the Engineers' club property in urging permission to dig below the ground floor. Owing to the fact that the property rests on made land the title deed prohibits such excavation. Owners of adjacent property opposed the petition urging that the free flow of water in the subsoil would be hampered if the restriction was lifted.

Anderson Fails to Appear at Hearing

Head of Anti-Saloon League Pleaded Illness—Office of League Reported That He Was Not Ill.

New York, Feb 5.—William H. Anderson, whose financial connections with the anti-saloon league, of which he is state superintendent, are under investigation by the district attorney's office, today notified acting District Attorney Pecora that he would be unable, because of illness, to appear before him.

Mr. Pecora received this word soon after he had ruled that if the Rev. David Burrell, president of the league, was able to commute from Madison, N. J., yesterday to preach at the Marble Collegiate church in this city, he was well enough to journey to the district attorney's office to be questioned concerning the league's affairs. Mr. Pecora previously had planned to visit Madison, on learning that Dr. Burrel was ill.

Conflicting reports concerning Mr. Anderson's illness were in circulation today.

First, he was reported to have contracted a severe cold on the train from Binghamton last night, and his counsel, former state senator Edgar T. Brackett, announced that he was unable to leave his home in Yonkers.

At the office of the league, however, Mr. Anderson was said by his secretary not to be ill, but to be taking a rest because he was beginning to feel the mental strain he was under.

A woman answering a telephone call put in to Mr. Anderson's home in Yonkers said he was not there and as far as she knew was not ill. She added that he had stopped at his home this morning on his arrival from Binghamton and had indicated he was going to his office in New York.

This afternoon, before Mr. Pecora resumed examination of Miss Mary Hill, assistant treasurer of the league he questioned J. Arthur Levy, league counsel, concerning Anderson's condition and was told that he had contracted a cold, was not seriously ill but probably would go home this afternoon after consulting a physician.

Mr. Pecora then announced that the superintendent's tenure to appear would not hamper his inquiry, as he would signal the afternoon quizzing Miss Hill regarding entries in the league's books.

PRESIDENT DRAFTS VIEWS ON BRITISH DEBT FUNDING

Washington, Feb. 5.—Administration leaders in all branches of the government expressed confidence tonight that speedy and favorable action would be taken by congress on the British debt funding settlement once it is submitted by the president. While it was generally admitted that opposition to the plan would develop considerable strength, administration spokesmen argued that a free discussion of the plan would win support for it both in congress and throughout the country.

The president was understood to might not to have definitely determined whether he would present the plan for congressional consideration personally, or would send it to the capitol with a brief statement of his views, although there were indications pointing to the latter course. It appears probable that the question would be turned over to congress tomorrow but there was no definite decision on that tonight nor were leaders agreed on the form in which they would seek to obtain congressional sanction to the funding commission's work.

President Harding was said to have been engaged much of today in drafting his views on the plan preparatory to laying them before congress. He held numerous conferences with administration leaders from the capitol and talked over various phases of the plan and discussions between the British and American commissions with several members of the American commission, including Secretary Mellon, its chairman. The information thus supplied, it was said, was being employed by the president in his argument for ratification of the terms by congress.

While there appeared to be differences of views as to the form in which congress should pass ratifying legislation, it was accepted as certain that the necessary congressional act would be either in the form of a resolution dealing specifically with the British settlement or an amendment to the present law encompassing the terms of the British arrangement. Either would be acceptable to treasury officials who have to handle the transaction finally, it was said, and Mr. Mellon was declared to be agreeable to any measure that would close up the settlement before March 3.

MORE INCENDIARY FIRES IN DUBLIN SUNDAY NIGHT

Dublin, Feb. 5.—(By the A. P.)—There were several cases of incendiaries reported Sunday night. The residence of Sub-Sheriff Russell near Dundalk and that of Colonel Eustace Maude at Tinode, Wicklow, were destroyed under the usual circumstances. The families were turned out of ther beds into the yards and held under the guns of the marauders until the destruction of the houses had been accomplished.

Dr. George Sigerson, member of the Free State senate who resigned his seat today, said he had received a threat that his house would be burned. He did not care for himself personally, he said, but he must have regard for his family and their property.

TO RECOVER $4,000 FROM THE FARMER-LABOR PARTY

New York, Feb. 5.—Mrs. Marie Tudor Garland Hale, mother of Charles Garland, who at one time refused to accept a legacy of $1,000,000 from his father, James Garland, today won a suit to recover $4,000 loaned to the farmer-labor party of New York during the 1920 campaign.

The supreme court struck out the defense of Alcan Hirser, treasurer, and Nathan Fine, secretary of the party, that they could not be held personally responsible for payment of the loan.

Mrs. Hale made the loan when Dudley Field Malone was the party candidate for governor, on condition that it would be repaid before election day and from campaign contributions.

The defendants contended that, since campaign funds did not come up to expectations they, personally, could not be held liable.

TURKS ACCEPT THE ALLIED TERMS OF CAPITULATIONS

Ismet Pasha Has Receded From the Uncompromising Attitude He Had Assumed Sunday Night—Advices Received in Paris Were Transmitted to London—Action of the Turks Has Removed the Only Obstacle to the Signature of the Treaty.

Paris, Feb. 5.—(By the A. P.)—M. Bompard, head of the French delegation at Lausanne, had a long talk with Ismet Pasha before leaving for Paris, details of which he telegraphed to Premier Poincare, who received his message late this afternoon. Ismet was more completely informed of the intentions of the allies in the event a settlement was not reached. He did not persist in his uncompromising attitude of last night, and accepted the text of the capitulations previously submitted to him, thus removing the only obstacle to the signature of the treaty.

The reservations of the Turks on other points, such as Mosul, have already been accepted by the allies.

Premier Poincare hastened to transmit this favorable news to London, and it should be in the hands of the British government tonight, although perhaps too late for the cabinet meeting which was called on the arrival of Lord Curzon, the foreign secretary, from Lausanne.

Ismet Pasha told M. Bompard that if he should make a hurried trip to Angora it was fully understood that the Mudania armistice would continue in force at least during his absence.

A needle, which had been swallowed seven months ago was successfully removed Monday morning by an operation performed at St. Joseph's hospital, on Arthur, the three year and five months old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Boisjolie, of No. 170 Jackson street. At the time the needle was swallowed the boy's parents believed it to be a pin. The operation was performed by Dr. Joseph A. Girouard assisted by Drs. C. E. Simonds and M. D. Riordan.

The swallowing occurred one afternoon last July after Mrs. Boisjolie had put the child in bed for his usual nap. Shortly after she heard him screaming and found him holding on to his stomach. She immediately called Dr. Simonds and when he arrived he found it evident that whatever the object was it had passed down into the stomach. For a few weeks later the child was bothered with pains in various parts of his body, from the throat to his stomach but four months later the symptoms had entirely disappeared except for occasional pains in the region of the abdomen.

A month ago the pressure of the water on the boy's stomach brought a sharp pain and the doctor, who was convinced that it was a needle, believed that it would work itself out of the skin. Last week the sharp point could not be felt so an X-ray was taken and the needle revealed, with the result that it was removed Monday morning.

For the past two weeks there have been rumors that the military department of the state of Connecticut were to allow boxing in the state armories and these have now proven true.

A notification has been received by Captain Joseph R. Morrison of Company C, 169th infantry, from Colonel M. B. Payne, quartermaster general, stating that the local state armory on Pleasant street can be rented for boxing shows. The notification explains that the "rules and regulations governing proposed matches are being worked out and as soon as available will be announced and that the state boxing commission and the quartermaster general's office would hold a conference to make recommendations."

All armories built by the state are affected by the decision of the quartermaster general's office and it will mean the promotion of the boxing game in this state.

Clubs or boxing promoters who hire armories will be required to furnish a bond of $5,000 against damages. The rentals will vary. The state armory in Hartford, one of the largest in the country, will rent for $250 for each show. The local armory which is the largest in the state for a single military company, will have a rental of $10.

It is not known just what effect on the local boxing situation the announcement will have. The local armory is a very suitable place for such shows as the drill shed is 180 feet long and 80 feet wide and portable bleachers affords a seating capacity for a thousand people.

The following is a statement made [illegible] Administrator James M. Smith: The coal situation in this city, especially as regards to anthracite, is acute. Never at any time during the winter has the situation been as bad as it is today. None of the local dealers have any hard coal and what soft coal or substitutes there are on hand are not large. This was given Monday by a survey of the local coal yards.

All of the local coal dealers have carloads of coal billed for them in transit, continued Mr. Smith, but cannot find out just where the shipments are. All of the dealers receive word from the large coal dealers of nonreceipt of shipments of coal, but all traces of them seem to be lost. The local dealers with the fuel commissioner, are doing all in their power to allot supplies of coal where urgently needed.

Remove the Film
If you wish pearly teeth

You see prettier teeth now wherever you look. They glisten, they look clean.

The reason lies in a new cleaning method. Millions now fight film.

You want the attraction, the added protection that it brings. Then won't you make this simple test to prove that you can get them?

You must fight film

It is film that makes teeth cloudy. It is film that ruins teeth. If you want prettier teeth and safer teeth you must fight that film.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Under old methods, few escaped those troubles. And beautiful teeth were seen less often than now.

A new situation

Now there's a new situation. Dental science has found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Able authorities proved those methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. And those two methods were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Dentists the world over now urge its adoption. And to careful people of some 50 nations it has brought a new dental era.

Other essentials

Dental research proved other things essential. So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids. Thus every use gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents.

See what it does

In fairness to yourself, see and feel these Pepsodent effects. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

You will be amazed and delighted. And you will want those benefits continued to the people in your home. Cut out the coupon now.

EXPRESSES ADMIRATION FOR BRANDEGEE'S INDEPENDENCE

The newspapers of the state have been printing during the past few days, pictures of Frank B. Brandegee the senior senator from this state in the senate of the United States with the interesting information that he is completing his twenty-first year in the American congress, having in that regard surpassed the record of all but three who have thus been honored by their fellow citizens. If we are not in error, Senator Brandegee is among the first five veteran senators in that body in period of service. It is a distinguished career.

Connecticut has always been creditably represented in the upper chamber of congress with which Mr. Brandegee's career is mostly associated, but we question if any of its predecessors possessed greater natural ability. While we are frank to say that no one passed him in independence of spirit, it is a common expression when a man of prominence is under consideration: "He is able but I cannot always find it possible to agree with him." It is not always possible to agree with Senator Brandegee but it is always possible in disagreeing with him to add that he is honest in his judgments anyway. We had occasion, to say frequently during the heated debate in the senate over the proposed ratification of the covenant of the League of Nations to those who took his attitude bitterly, that they ought at least to give him credit for the possession of a quality which they had always contended should characterize a man in public life—the courage of his convictions. He has that, and it is a quality that cannot be overestimated especially when there is added to it an avoidance of the means so many public men adopt of shouting their independence. In order to advertise themselves. Senator Brandegee is not in that class.

We add our congratulations to those already sent him by his admirers, and we can do that the more consistently as we have never had occasion to either ask favors of him or had him ask favors of us. We do like his rugged personality and his contempt for pussyfooters and back fence climbers. We can respect him even when in our judgment he is wrong more than we can respect the man who is in accord with our views but whose intellectual conclusions proceed from the hole in the ground which is the school of instruction for so many. A strong man wrong is a better citizen than a counterfeit who is right. —New Haven Journal Courier.

Repon & Jessie presented A Night at Dinty Moore's. This is a splendid ventriloquial offering replete with laughs. The Pesci Duo termed The Harpist and Singer, came in for their share of applause. Each perform perfectly. Paul Moher and Harry Eldridge in I don't Care, received many laughs and were richly applauded for their songs. John Regay & Co. appeared in the closing spot in a series of modern dances. This is an exceedingly neat and clever offering and would make a hit anywhere.

Oliver Twist Coming to the Strand.

According to Frank Lloyd, director of Oliver Twist in which Sol Lesser is soon to present little Jackie Coogan at the Strand theatre, the reproduction of the scenes in Field Lane are photographically accurate. It was in this disreputable quarter of London that Oliver Twist was held captive by Fagin and his evil band. The place still exists, though much of the wickedness rampant there in Dickens' day has been wiped out. But the landmarks remain, and any student of Charles Dickens' works, familiar, too, with the illustrations done by Cruickshank, the great illustrator of Dickens' characters, may find them and identify them beyond any shadow of doubt. These will be shown (just as they were in Dickens' day and described in Dickens' books) in the massive production soon to be offered here.

The reader of Dickens will find everything in his memory concerning Oliver Twist suddenly illumined and flashed forth again in this First National attraction.

We honestly believe that this super-special which comes to the Strand for four days starting tomorrow will take its place as the 100 per cent attraction of the year. We would advise coming early. A Mermaid comedy and News will complete the bill.

Breed Theatre

A popular European play that was a complete success, with a humdinger of a title, adapted as a Paramount Special comedy by Walter Woods and directed by Jas. Cruze with a superlative cast. It is "Is Matrimony a Failure?" which is now running at the Breed theatre where it met with a rousing reception. The comedy is a highly diverting one dealing with an average little Main street town, half of the inhabitants of which suddenly discover that owing to a legal technicality they are not married after all. Just how the situation is righted and how the amusing dilemmas in which all the folks concerned find themselves in before this is done, is hilariously told in the picture. T. Roy Barnes, Lila Lee, Louis Wilson and Walter Hiers head a really excellent cast.

Is Matrimony a Failure will be shown for the last times today and other pictures on the bill include Larry Semon in The Show and the Pathe news.

KASKY WINS NATIONAL AMATEUR TITLE; DONOVAN BREAKS RECORD

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Harry Kasky, Chicago, won the national amateur ice skating championship at Endicott, tonight, by winning the half-mile race and placing third in the 440. Kasky totalled 110 points, while Joe Moore, New York, former international champion, placed second in the meet, with 80.

Richard Donovan, Johnson City, broke the world's record for the three-mile race when he skated the distance in 8.43 3-5, lowering the former mark set by Roy C. McWhirter, Chicago, at Lake Placid, February 13, 1921, by 1 3-5 seconds.

Miss Gladys Robinson, Toronto, won the national women's championship, totalling 165 points in the four events. Miss Elsie Mufler, New York, lost the chance to retain her title when she fell, near the finish in the 440-yard event.

Donald Baker, professional sprinter, broke the world's professional record for the 150-yard dash against time, when he skated the distance in 14 1-5 seconds. This record has stood for forty years.

The skaters leave tonight for Lake Placid to compete in the final meet of the Gold Cup championships. The time made in the three-mile race is considered remarkable, because zero weather prevailed with contestants finishing in the teeth of a driving north wind. It was close to midnight when the final event was started.

The summaries:

440-yard senior national championship: Won by Joe Moore, New York city; second, Charles Gorman, St. Joseph, N. B., third, Harry Kasky, Chicago. Time 38 3-5.

440-yard women's senior national championship: won by Gladys Robinson, Toronto; second, Rose Johnson, Chicago; third, Kathleen McEan, Toronto. Time 45 4-5.

Half-mile junior championship, 18-year-old class: won by James Sheffield, Lake Placid; second, John Darcy, Lake Placid, third, Morris Cogan, Cleveland. Time, 1.33 4-5.

Half Mile, women's national championship: won by Robinson; second, Elsie Muller, New York city; third, Miss Johnson. Time 1.43 3-5.

Three-mile—First, Donovan; second, Moore; third, Edward Reed, Chicago. Time 8.43 2-5. (New world's record).

BATTERY B EVENS UP INDOOR SERIES WITH NUGGETS

Battery B evened up the indoor baseball series with the Nuggets at the state armory on Monday evening, taking the clamen into camp by a score of 12 to 9. The game was snappy but mistakes by the Nuggets gave the soldiers plenty of opportunity to score the needed runs to tie in the series.

George Madden, who generally pitches airtight ball, was sadly out of condition and an injury to his finger in the second inning greatly handicapped his pitching. His team was erratic in their support but at times played brilliantly. "Shorty" Warwick was seen in a new position, that of catcher, and performed with creditable skill. Warwick broke his out-clip record established in the last game by hitting seventeen consecutive fouls. His previous record was fourteen and has never been equalled.

Ralf Sanger, who succeeds Stew Wilson as the pitching star of the Battery B team had the Nuggets at his mercy until the eighth inning when they scored six runs on as many hits. Sanger has a deceptive ball that he pitches with his left hand and it was not until the last part of the game that the Nuggets were able to solve it.

With the series at 2 all the next game will be hotly contested and Madden is scouting for more material to bolster up his team.

"Shorty" Warwick furnished a laugh in the practice when a hot drive struck him in the feet and bounced them from under him. As "Shorty" has only a short distance to fall there were no serious results.

PROFESSIONALS WILL BE RIGIDLY DEALT WITH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 5.—When any club in good standing in the United States Amateur Hockey Association presents its specific charges of professionalism in writing, supported by credible and reliable testimony, "they will be rigidly dealt with," said W. G. Haddock, president of the association, in answer today to a telegram from F. J. Sullivan, former manager of the Westminster hockey team of New Haven, Conn.

Sullivan called upon President Haddock to announce his official attitude if it were shown that league players were being paid money and had received money last year.

The Westminster team, while under Sullivan's management, was suspended recently when it failed to appear for a scheduled game with the Boston A. A. The New Haven club, now a member of the association, is complying with the rules and regulations, Mr. Haddock said, and is being supported by the fans.

Haddock announced that, until the end of the present season, he will assign referees for all championship games without consulting the clubs involved. Such assignments, he said, would stand unless it was shown that the capability or honesty of the referee was questionable. This action was taken to overcome the objections of some clubs to certain referees for "minor reasons."

The stand from which Mr. Haddock will make selections of referees includes John McGrath, Harold Mitchell, Tom Monro, H. H. Jaconi, Jr., J. I. Brown, G. M. Wiggett and Frank Schweitzer.

The president said he had instructed the referees to pay special attention to the use of skates by players to injure an opponent. "It is getting to be too frequent a habit for a player to put the front or back of his skate into an opponent" declared Mr. Haddock. "Any player caught using his skates for such purpose, will be barred from the game," he added.

GREB GETS VERDICT OVER PAL REED

Newark, N. J., Feb. 5.—Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, light heavyweight champion, outpointed Pal Reed, of Boston, in a twelve round bout here tonight. Newspaper men gave the decision to Greb. The champion weighed 166 3-4 pounds and his opponent 167 1-2.

It was Greb's fight from the first round. The champion started with a rush and hammered the Boston fighter with a succession of hard and fast hooks, jabs and uppercuts. Reed's punches were scattered and did not bother Greb except in the twelfth. Reed's best rounds were the seventh, eleventh and twelfth. In the last round he succeeded in landing several hard lefts which jarred Greb.

In the tenth Greb had Reed groggy but was unable to put over the finishing blow. In the latter rounds Greb played often for the body, using the challenger with vicious rights.

SAYS SHE'S NERVOUS WRECK, SUES FOR $10,000

Among new suits filed for the superior court with the clerk of the court are the following.

William M. Clifford of Montville has brought suit against the city of Norwich on a claim for $3,600. He makes a claim for wages for services as an employe of the water department.

Ernina J. Banfield of Norwich, sues the Southern New England Contracting Co. of Hartford and Peck-McWilliams Co. of this city for $10,000 damages for nervous shock because of a blast set off on April 7, 1922 at the lot between Church and Main streets where the two defendants were doing excavating for the building of Schwartz Bros, Inc. The plaintiff was engaged with Rose Saltpeter Markoff in the conduct of the Worth Specialty Shop at 78 Main street and claims that the store was filled with rocks, pieces of wood, smoke and fumes from the blast and she was covered with smoke and dust so that she was given a severe nervous shock in consequence of which she lost weight and will continue to be in poor health and unable to earn as much money in her business as formerly.

Walter H. Barber of Norwich seeks divorce from Frances Solousky Barber of Maynard, Mass., on the ground of desertion since Aug. 15, 1919. They were married July 21, 1917.

Frank Bianchini of New London, who married May Hamilton, formerly of Groton on Nov. 18, 1917, sues for divorce from her on the ground of adultery, between Oct. 9, 1922 and Jan., 1923 at Springfield, Mass., with Patsy Capezio. She is now of parts unknown.

On the ground of intolerable cruelty since Jan. 5, 1916, Mary S. L. Cole of New London seeks divorce from Chas. F. Cole of the same place whom she married Aug. 13, 1914. She asks for change of name to Mary Sanders, her maiden name.

SUES WEST FOR $10,000 FOR DEATH OF WOMAN

Two cases returnable to the superior court in March have been filed at the office of Clerk George E. Parsons.

Jean Baptiste Duhaime of Norwich, administrator of the estate of the late Parmalie Duhaime of Norwich, sues Ivan West, formerly of Sprague, now of parts unknown for $10,000 damages for the death of the plaintiff's intestate.

Parmalie Duhaime was struck by an automobile driven by the defendant on Jan. 29, 1922 on Main street, Baltic, suffering injuries from which she died a short time thereafter. She was 42 years old and had been housekeeper for a number of years for the plaintiff.

On the charge that Ella M. Jarvis of Norwich had converted to her own use on Jan. 20, 1923, certain sums of money aggregating more than $1,000, which belonged to George Jarvis of Norwich, the latter has brought suit against the former for the recovery of the money.

HASKELL AND BOYNTON MAKE RECORD SCORE

Vanquishing every player that came to the head table, Haskell and Dr. Boynton hung up a score of 9325 in the play Monday night in the West Side Pinochle club. The score of 9325 was the highest score ever made by any single player, and for a team score far surpasses any ever made in the club. As a result of the remarkably high scores, Dr. Boyunton jumped from eighth place to second place and Haskell went from the cellar into seventh position, only 2,000 behind the leader.

The result and standing after the shakeup of Monday night follows: J. Jordan, $7,510; Dr. Boynton, 37,255; A. Jordan, $7,165; Peckham, 36,570; Schuler, $6,130; Dr. Lewis, 36,210; Haskell, 35,510; Pendleton, 35,365; Bailey, 35,000; Parker, 34,015; Pettis 33,855; Underwood, 32,715.

QUERIED ABOUT LIQUOR DEALINGS IN BERMUDA

New York, Feb. 5.—Customs and treasury department officials today attempted to establish that huge shipments of liquor from Bermuda, consigned to St. John, New Brunswick were being diverted to the United States, when they questioned Morris Stern, promoter of a drug store and two grocery stores here on his return from Bermuda.

Stern's baggage was seized by agents of the treasury department while he was a passenger on the Fort Victoria, of the Furness-Bermuda lading and bills of sale made in Berline, and a search revealed a bill of [illegible] muda for 4,235 cases of liquor recently cleared from Bermuda for St. John.

Stern frankly admitted he was the agent for the Great Western Wine company, a Canadian firm, and that he frequently handled large shipments for the company from Bermuda. He denied, however, that the Marion Mosher, one of the company's ships, had joined the rum fleet off Sandy Hook instead of proceeding to St. John. He also denied that he had boasted in Bermuda of having made $1,000,000 out of London whiskey sold in the United States.

When asked if he would consent to an immediate examination of his New York drug store by federal agents his counsel immediately interposed "Certainly he will not give such authority."

Stern admitted that he once had made a report in New York to "M. Ripstein," president of the [illegible] Western Wine company, but refused to divulge names of other officers of the company. He denied owning or controlling large storage lofts in New York.

ON THE ROAD TO SQUIRRELTON.

Well, Uncle Lucky and Little Jack Rabbit were very glad when the great, big bear ran out of the gate, and so was the Policeman Dog, too, for he knew how bears can hug and he didn't want to be hugged by a bear, let me tell you and neither would I and neither would the fat lady in the chorus, although I don't suppose it would hurt her nearly so much as it would the skeleton man.

Well, anyway, after that, the two little rabbits went out into the garage and got into the Luckymobile and then away they went for a good time, and Uncle Lucky was afraid he might get the measles or the whooping cough.

"Where are you going so fast in your sleigh,
In your sleighmobile, painted so gay?
Please stop and take me along with you,
There's room for three when there's plenty for two."

"Who's calling to us?" said Uncle Lucky, and he stopped the sledmobile and looked all around, but he couldn't see anybody and neither could Little Jack Rabbit till he took his spy glasses out of his knapsack and looked through them, when, all of a sudden, Squirrel Nutcracker ran out on a branch and jumped right into the sledmobile.

"Oh, it's you, is it?" said Uncle Lucky with a laugh. "I thought that it might be a wolf or a tiger," and then the old gentleman rabbit laughed some more, for he was a very jolly old bunny, let me tell you.

"Can you take me to Squirrelton" asked Squirrel Nutcracker.

"Of course, we can," said Uncle Lucky. "We'll be glad to and we'll bring you back if you don't want to stay too long."

So away they went again and by and by, after a while, the [illegible] post, on which was written, [illegible] ters:

"Three miles to Squirrelton
Two miles to Bunnybridge
One mile to Candyville.

(Copyright 1923 by David Cory.)

"Oh, dear me," said Little Jack Rabbit. "I wish we were going to Candyville and it's only one mile, too, and not two or three," but Uncle Lucky kept right on the road to Squirrelton and by and by after a while and many a mile, and a laugh and a smile, they came to this little town. Oh, my! but it was a pretty place, for it wasn't a bit like any town I've ever seen. No Siree-man; it wasn't. Why, all the houses were built in the trees and the squirrels ran up and down the trunks and over the branches when they wanted to go to the grocery store or the post office of the baker shop.

"I won't keep you waiting any time at all," said Squirrel Nutcracker as he hopped out of the sledmobile and in the next story you shall hear what happened after he climbed the tree in the top of which was the Squirrelton Candy Store.

GIVING THE BOYS A CHANCE.

Through the Consumers' league [illegible] session of the general assembly among other bills one that will permit children between the ages of 14 and 16 years to be employed vacations, Saturdays and out of school hours without any educational qualifications provided they are in good physical condition.

This is an effort to remove a handicap that exists at the present time. Many children are not only anxious to do such things as would be permitted under this measure but there are plenty of instances where home conditions are such that valuable contributions could be made as the result. Many children seek some[illegible] to break the monotony of [illegible] vacation, many like nothing better than to "help out" in one way and another that not only gives them spending money but also starts them on the road to most valuable business knowledge.

From time to time there have been boys in needed health who could not get a certificate to work during the summer time at light employment even though the widowed mother [illegible] of the assistance that [illegible] would give. Perhaps there [illegible] and where the person employing such a child said nay, [illegible] but it is clear that in [illegible] was for the good of [illegible].

If [illegible] are restrictions at the present time that are unreasonable and uncalled for. It is proper that they should be modified. That is apparently the purpose of the Consumers' league in presenting the above mentioned bill, and considering the importance of the matter it should have the careful attention from the legislature that it deserves.

PAYMENTS ON FOREIGN LOANS.

There are those who are so blinded [illegible] efforts to force a bonus bill upon the country that they are willing to go to any limit almost in order to accomplish it. There are some advocates who are even claiming that the president is favorable to the use of the money received from the payments on the British debt for bonus payments.

Upon such a matter it may be well to let the president speak for himself but it is well known, how through all the efforts that were made in behalf of a bonus that he declared his opposition to any measure that would call for additional burdens being placed upon the country, and that he was unfavorable to the bonus unless it could be provided for through a sales tax.

[illegible] received from [illegible] and devote it to a bonus would simply mean that the [illegible] just as much [illegible] order to pay off the [illegible] which it has guaranteed.

[illegible] Mellon has called attention [illegible] time the [illegible] that it was stipulated that the money received from the payment of the foreign loans should be devoted to the liquidating of the bonds as they became due. Thus it is already designated by law what the British payment shall be used for. The attempt to create the impression that the president is in favor of going contrary to the law is unbelievable. It is evidently another one of those assertions that are made without first getting the facts.

President Harding has stood firmly on the position he took in the beginning concerning a bonus. If the statements be made before action by congress were not enough there is his [illegible] and the explanation [illegible] time, to show [illegible] way. The idea that the money which is to be paid by Great Britain is to go into the treasury for federal expenses is one that those holding it should shake off immediately. That money is already pledged to meet the promises made by the government when the Liberty bonds were bought.

COLLEGE SPORTS.

The idea of preserving the amateur spirit and keeping the professional out of intercollegiate sports is by no means new. It has long been advanced with varying degrees of success without being fully accomplished, but every advocate in its behalf lends encouragement and support to the movement.

Already there exists an understanding between Yale, Harvard and Princeton by which it is hoped to keep out the professionalism that should have no place in college sports. There is a list of questions dealing with finances which the athletes in the respective institutions are called upon to answer. It is to be expected that they will be honestly answered, but the chairman of the Harvard athletic committee points out that that is no guarantee and the conscience that would guide in one case would not do so in another. It permits those who desire to consider that it is "nobody's business but his own," to beat the returns, and he is frank to say that there is no questionnaire system but what can be circumvented.

What he favors is the honor system, even though it would seem that if there were those who would display dishonesty in connection with questionnaires that they would do the same thing when it came to an honor system. Nevertheless, the idea of putting college athletics on such a high level that one institution will say to another that nothing further need be known regarding the amateur standing of that rival than that it is willing its athletics should meet in contest.

It cannot fail to be realized that more is to be gained through taking such a stand than in depending upon dishonesty, or trying to claim the glory of amateur victory with the aid of professional services. College athletics have a higher standing because of the way in which professionalism has been frowned upon, but there is no good reason why the idea shouldn't go the whole distance and remove all doubt concerning the amateur standing of the collegiate sports.

STREET ACCIDENTS.

From Indiana comes word that there were 363 deaths from auto accidents in the past year, and some satisfaction is felt that it escaped being one a day.

In an Ohio city the word has gone forth that speedsters must obey the regulators or go to jail.

New York city has for a long time been aware of the need of jail sentences if respect for the rights of others was to be obtained in the proper degree.

Washington is asking for 50 more traffic police and an additional assistant district attorney to bring about better law observance and safety.

Chicago had 736 deaths from street accidents in the past year and it has appointed a traffic commission to make a study of the conditions in other cities with a vew to improving those in the Windy city.

Street accidents and fatalities have developed to the present number within almost a decade, due to the rapid development of the automobile and the failure of all concerned to adjust themselves to the conditions that accompany the speedier vehicles.

It will be interesting to note the conclusion reached by the Chicago commission. That it will find conditions in other cites and states resembling those at home will not be surprising, and yet in all it will be found that a large proportion of the accidents and fatalities could have been prevented if there had been a proper regard for others, and better observance of regulations looking to that end would result if those who violate the regulations were impressed with the fact that they were expected to do otherwise. The street accident problem is a big one but it cannot be solved by slighting it.

HELPING AUSTRIA.

Regardless of the other unsettled conditions in Europe at the present time it is impossible to overlook the situation in Austria and note what appears to be a sane movement for the saving of that country from financial ruin.

Austria has been in sad straits. The clouds have piled up thick and fast and the outlook was anything but promising. It tried the idea of putting the printing presses to work and turning out paper currency but it kept going from bad to worse until it became evident that if it was going to be saved it would require advice and assistance from the outside.

It was a case that called for the sacrifice of pride but that appears to be what it has done. The job of bringing order out of chaos there was left by the supreme council of nations to the league and instead of fighting such changes as have been advocated Austria is yielding with as good grace as possible. Outside control of the fiscal affairs became necessary and Austria welcomed it, realizing that something radical must be done, and it has the satisfaction of already seeing improvement as the result of the changes put into effect and the greater confidence that has been established.

With conditions on the gain to the extent of having a foreign loan authorized a decided change for the better has been brought about. It will be some time before Austria is able to take care of itself but signs of convalescence have their good effects especially after the desperate outlook that has prevailed there.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, Feb. 5.—Like the old farmer who had so much trouble to dig through the drifts to get to his brother's funeral and remarked he "almost wished his brother hadn't died," congress' "almost" wishes Mrs. Henderson hadn't offered her splendid mansion on 16th street as a gift to the United States as a vice presidential residence. Congress realizes there should be provision made for an official residence here for the vice president of the United States, in exactly the same way that a residence is furnished and kept up for the president. But the Henderson house is so palatial that not only will its up-keep be something to be considered but it will outshine the White House itself. Never can it equal the White House in its splendid simplicity of outline, its quiet elegance and historic associations, but the Henderson house is a splendid structure, with large grounds, every possible comfort and luxury and is modern in design and equipment. There is no question but what it will make a delightful home for the vice presidents of the United States but unless congress makes suitable appropriations for its furnishing, up-keep and its over head charges, including service, it will be an elephant on the hands of every vice president who is not a multi-millionaire. But congress will undoubtedly make such a provision, which it is practically agreed here is no more than the United States do willingly for the men who are likely to be called on at a minute's notice to assume the highest office in the country, in the event of death or disaster to the president. That is what a vice president is elected for. Except to preside over the senate he has no official duties during the life and health of a president, but he must stand ready to step into presidential shoes whenever the great emergency arises. He is paid a salary altogether too small to meet the official needs of his four years residence here and the entire relinquishment of whatever profession or business he pursued, and the country does not in any financial sense make up that loss to him. So the idea of furnishing a vice presidential residence meets with general approval, the only regret seems to be that the generous gift of Mrs. Henderson took such an elaborate form. She is the owner of several splendid residences some of which are leased to foreign ambassadors, and it is hinted the gift to the United States would have been more acceptable had it been one of the smaller and less palatial of them. Congress wants a home for the vice presidents and it fully appreciates the offer made by Mrs. Henderson, so it is expected her magnificent gift will be accepted. But some one remarked this week, that when Vice President Coolidge occupies it, if that comes about, he will have to stretch his income and meager salary to its limit and spread the butter pretty thin, to live up to its requirements.

Senator Fernald of Maine is chairman of the senate committee on public buildings and is strongly in favor and will take it up with the committee and recommend a favorable report.

The situation in which Vice President Coolidge found himself when he searched for a residence here and was told the rents which suitable furnished houses commanded reminds one of the story told of Chief Justice Fuller of the United States supreme court, who was a man of moderate means and held office at a time when the judicial salaries were far below the $10,000 mark. It is said a real estate man took Justice Fuller 'round the city and showed him what there was to offer. Finally they came to a big house at $5,000 a year rental in the finest residential section and the real estate man talked on its suitability as a judicial residence. "That is true," said the justice gravely, "but I am wondering if I take that house how I can best spend the remaining one thousand dollars of my salary."

The Coolidges, like the Marshall's, have lived quietly in one of the big down town hotels, their income not warranting the up-keep of any house in any way convenient or suitable for their official requirements and as "hotel dwellers" they are exempt from many of the social obligations that would otherwise rest on them and find it much less expensive any how to "board out" than to keep up a home. And vice presidents who hereafter assume the office will find themselves in the same position and the office quickly becomes only fit for a dollar mark man unless congress comes to the front and makes adequate residential provisions. The cost to the government would be small each year and it is regarded here as a provision that ought to be made before another presidential election comes about.

The stir up in the veterans' bureau and the controversy that is waxing hot as to who shall be the next head of the New England bureau has brought Dr. Crossman of New Hampshire, one of the two leading candidates into prominence. And that calls to mind a story of the Crossman family that some of the New Hampshire folks are now telling. Back "quite some years" as they say out here, when the Crossman children were small, the bed-time prayers of the youngsters sometimes teemed with interpolations that startled the family. One night young Edward Crossman, son of the present candidate, Dr. Edward O. Crossman, was kneeling at his little bed praying the Lord to make him a good boy, to protect his father and mother and following the nightly routine of his short prayer. He said Amen and started for bed, but quickly jumped back and kneeling again said in a loud and convincing tone, "Oh, Lord, this is not Edward O. Crossman, it's Edward H. Crossman."

The sailing for Europe this week of Col. Forbes of the veterans' bureau leaves the appointment of the New England chief in the hands of George E. Ijmas, whose name is pronounced something like "Imes" in one syllable to rhyme with "Times."

The Coast Guard service will hold competitive examinations for cadets in April. There are many existing vacancies and the officials here are hoping the station at New London will receive many new men this summer. April 16 is the date fixed for examinations. Now the commissioned officers of the Coast Guard rank with officers of the navy in pay, allowance and in official rank, it is expected the vacancies will be more readily filled than was the case when a different rating existed.

No decision of the interstate commerce commission that gulf ships may go to New England ports is greated here with satisfaction.

The radicalism of Senator Brookhart of Iowa drew fire from the conservatives on both sides of the senate chamber this week. It wis interesting to note that one of the most vigorous assailants to the Brookhart theories was Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, who, not long ago was rated as too "progressive" to be a safe senator. Now Lenroot stands so far behind the new men elected from the west, that they chide him as being a stand-patter. Lenroot has not changed, but the west has, and Brookhard is regarded as holding soviet ideas, and doesn't deny the charge, so far as is known. The discussion that became extremely heated, began through a discussion of the farm loan measures which Lenroot was espousing. Senator McLean has been closely identified with all the great measures that have come through his committee along financial lines.

Senator Brandegee has recovered from a recent severe attack of grip and is now daily in his seat in the senate. The grip epidemic is nearly over here, according to statements by the physicians of the city.

INCOME TAX FACTS

NON-TAXABLE SARARIES.

Thousands of persons derive their income almost wholly from salaries or wages, salaries paid by a state or political subdivision thereof as a city, town, county, or hamlet, however, are not taxable. The reason is that the federal government does not tax the instrumentalities of a state. In this connection many persons have the mistaken belief that all school teachers are exempt from payment of the income tax. Teachers are not exempt because engaged in educational work, but only when employed by a state or political subdivision thereof.

Public-school teachers in the District of Columbia, Alaska and Hawaii are not in the exempted class for the reason that they are not state employes, and their salaries, or part thereof, are paid by the federal government. The salaries of all federal officers and employes are subject to the tax except that a federal income tax cannot be levied on the salary of the president of the United States nor a federal judge which would diminish the salary that was in effect at the time they took office.

The special exemption of $3,500 for persons in active military or naval service allowed under the revenue act of 1918 no longer is allowed. Soldiers and sailors in making returns of income for the year 1922 are allowed only the personal exemptions and credits granted a civilian.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Few men of today are more widely known in the world of science and learning than is Sir Frederic Kenyon, who is coming to America this month to deliver the principal address at the formal opening of the new building of the American Academy of Arts and Letters in New York city. For nearly fifteen years Sir Frederic has been director and principal librarian of the British Academy. He was born in London sixty years ago a former president of the British Academy. He was born in London sixty years ago and received his education at Oxford University, where his father long held the Vinerian professorship of law. In 1889 after completing his university career, he entered the British Museum as an assistant. He has devoted himself especially to ancient manuscripts and is regarded as one of the foremost authorities in his chosen field. UPSETTING FADS

"It is perfectly awful about Horace," began the lady who was giving the card party. "I have never had to complain of him in the least since we were married until now. He drinks weak coffee like a lamb when the percolator goes wrong and never asks me what on earth I did with all that money—so it comes hard now after all these years to have him go wild, so to say.

"He's gone perfectly crazy over wrestling matches. Every time a newspaper gets into this house he grabs it and tears it all to pieces looking for notices of wrestling matches, and usually he hasn't time for dessert because he has to start so early to get there. They are always at some far-away place and he has to travel a lot to get there."

"I'd just as soon travel to see a good swift punch in the jaw," remarked the man who had been invited to the party. "But I cannot comprehend a rage for mere wrestling!"

"Why, Arbuthnot Whigas!" cried his wife in startled horror, dropping an ace of spades right side up as she dealt and absent-minded adding it to her own pile of cards. "I'd be ashamed to admit liking those disgusting terrible——"

"If Horace would just take it out in going to the wretched things," determinedly pursued the lady who was giving the party, frowning at what had been dealt her. "maybe I could stand it. For it is possible to conceal one's distresses from the outside world and nobody need know how evening after evening I have read popular novels and caught up in my correspondence and mended up everything that I never before have had time to mend and eaten all the chocolate candy I wanted—Horace won't let me have it when he is around because I weigh so much—while my husband was away at a wrestling match. Of course there was the worry of wondering how on earth I could explain things when the papers came out with an account of the eminent business man, Mr. Horace Leander Brace, being held up over at some obscure corner at 11 o'clock at night—but what I mind mostly is the fact that when he does get home he insists on telling me all about the match.

"I don't know a single thing about wrestling," the hostess of the card party went on obliviously. "It seems a very foolish performance to me, but maybe that is because I usually am asleep when Horace begins telling me about it. Here am I just sunken deep in slumber when Horace dashes into the room, sinks into a chair with a big sigh of relief and begins telling me that it was the most exciting match he ever has seen! Great! Nothing like it! Golly, when you see those two magnificent specimens of humanity tugging and struggling for minutes at a stretch to break a hold you can't help but be proud of the human body! Yessir! Great!

"And what do I think—the Northern Pine got a scissors hold the first thing—do I remember what a scissors hold is? If I don't have presence of mind enough to claim that I do remember Horace stands up and pretends that he is twins to demonstrate the scissors hold. I sit up trying to look intelligent. I remember his explaining the strangle hold, don't I? Oh, my yes, I say airily, strangle holds are just pie to me, and did he remember to put the chain on the front door when he came in? And did the Northern Pine's opponent make a home run or anything?

"Would think when I tried to take an interest like this it would please Horace, but about here he begins to walk up and down and mutter things about my not giving a wham as to real things which engross his attention, and what's the use! A woman never does appreciate manly sports—but say!—there was one time when Big Montana held the Northern Pine for twenty minutes and the crowd went wild—and if I can keep my eyes open and not ask who made the touchdown, I can sort of square myself, otherwise we don't speak for days."

"Say," broke out the man who had been asked to the party, addressing his host, "darned if it doesn't sound kind of good—call me up next time you——"

"Now Arbuthnot Whigas!" cried his wife. "You just aren't going to begin going to these disgraceful—"

"Now you've busted up another happy home," the discruntled host told his wife triumphantly. "Talking that way! We'll phone the rest of the boys, Arbuthnot, too! Maybe we can get up a crowd! Women can't understand anything!" — Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Experiences Arouse Questions

Mr. Edntor: In your issue of February 2nd you printed a lengthy article on the experiences of the Misses Bachelier in Europe shortly before the outbreak of the World war. I am sure that the contributor would not intentionally give any wrong impression yet there are a few questions which in the interests of education I think should be answered.

Quoting from the article in question, I find the following statement:

"When passing through to the Swiss frontier, they were handed a package by an unknown man and told to hand it the first cab man they saw upon reaching London. The package was safely guarded and when delivered as requested, the cab man removed the outside wrapper and upon finding they were newspaper dispatches, immediately whipped up his horse and carried them to the destination assigned for them. The following morning the London papers were full of information announcing the war, this being the first official notice, before a shot was fired."

What does the writer mean by "the first official notice that England had received of the impending war?" Surely newspaper dispatches from Germany can not be considered an official notice for had the declaration been made in German papers first, then that would have been second hand information to England. Could the contributor mean telegraph dispatches? Hardly that, I believe, to be carried in such a doubtful manner.

Being of English ancestry, I rather dislike the idea of that mighty power, England, being dependent on the wanderings of two innocent Americans, who were to bring the news that war was at hand. It is almost beyond belief that with England's marvelous organized detective system that that information had not already reached Downing street before these two girls had gone through Switzerland. One more question. How did anyone get the idea that it was these young girls who brought the official notice of war? Of course they they had not seen the contents of that important package before giving it to the cab man.

Wives of Famous Men

Victoria, Wife of Frederick of Germany

As different from the gay and pleasure-loving Eugenie as their respective nations were different, was Victoria, princess royal of Great Britain, daughter of Queen Victoria and wife of Frederick, son of the great Frederick William, and father of the ex-kaiser.

This English princess who preferred to be a German empress was very much like her mother, Queen Victoria. An earnest worker, with a quick, keen mind, she was always planning new things for her husband and empire. Her active brain was engaged in building some air castle which unquestionably would have been realized had her husband lived to fulfill his plans. But he was doomed to an early death, and ruled over his land for only a few months.

The empress' dream world was shattered at the death of her beloved husband. Her bereavement left her without ambition. But, though she was a dreamer in some respects she had decided views on many subjects, and was remarkably well informed. Her knowledge of foreign affairs, for example, was unusual for a woman.

Victoria was an interesting talker, and often she charmed her listeners so completely they forgot their other engagements. In her ideas about Germany she stood firmly but she stood alone. Like many people with definite and unchanging ideas on state matters, she had many enemies. But her friends, too, were stanch. Her greatest quality was her sincerity, which could always be relied upon in any emergency. She never allowed personal prejudices to interfere with her judgment.

Truth is mighty, but a great deal of it is suppressed.

BUSINESS MAN NOW OVER HIS TROUBLES

Well Known Hartford Citizen Declares Tanlac Treatment Quickly Ended Stubborn Stomach Disorders.

"I am just now on my second bottle of Tanlac but the medicine has helped me so wonderfully that I am ready right now to tell everybody about it," said Max Maron, of Hartford, Conn., well-known proprietor of a tailor shop at 257 Windsor Ave., recently.

"For seven years, I have had stomach trouble, and before I took Tanlac, I felt all run-down, worn-out and discouraged. I always had a severe pain in my stomach, suffered so much from sourness, gas and bloating that I dreaded to eat, and at night I would lie awake for hours unable to sleep.

"Since taking Tanlac, I never feel any pain or distress from my stomach; for the first time in years I am hungry at meal times, and I am actually sleeping soundly at night. I also have more ambition to accomplish things, for the medicine has toned up my system and made me feel better and brighter in every way; in fact it is fast making a new man of me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

Over 35 million bottles sold.

Dr. Vapor-Eze says: "Never let a cold fasten on you—let me catch it in time. I go right to the seat of the cold, as you sleep. You wake up in the morning knowing that your cold is broken up before it starts."

Sterling's Vapor-Eze is a balmy, fragrant-healing remedy which you simply rub on chest, throat, and place up the nostrils. Get into bed, arrange the bedclothes high and loose, so that the vapors can be carried up the nose and into the air passages. Then just breathe that cold away.

Vapor-Eze releases its vapors continuously for 8 hours—and no cold can resist them. Congestion breaks up in the tight, sore chest; throat-rawness, coughing, nasal discharges—and all other disagreeable symptoms of a bad cold promptly relieved. Be sure it's Sterling's Vapor-Eze—only 25c at family druggists.

Sterling's Vapor-Eze leaves no stain

OBITUARY

Cyrus C. Lasch

After a short illness Cyrus C. Lasch died Saturday at 10:20 o'clock at his home in Baltic. He was born in Cook Town, Conn., in November, 1856. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. J. H. Wilson and Mrs. Andrew Willetts, and one son, Chas. H. Lasch all of Norwich, and two brothers, Henry of New Britain and William of Baltic, and four sisters.

Mr. Lasch was a member of the Norwich Order of Owls, No. 1396.

Thomas F. Foran.

Thomas F. Foran, who for many years has conducted a furniture business in New London died early Monday morning at his home in that city following an illness of a week with pneumonia.

Mr. Foran was one of the foremost business men in New London during an active career of over 40 years and he also found time to participate in social and civic affairs, always with benefit to his community. He was a splendid type of citizen whom any city could ill afford to lose and his death is a source of genuine regret. One week ago Mr. Foran suffered a chill and pneumonia developed. His condition was critical from the first.

Thomas F. Foran came from rugged, sterling Irish stock and was born in Mansfield, this state, March 9, 1860. He received his schooling at Mansfield and later attended the old Natchaug school in Willimantic, after his parents had removed to that city, and where the home was on Jackson street for many years.

He married in Willimantic, Miss Ellen Shea, the marriage being performed by the late Rev. Florimond DeBruycker, then pastor of St. Joseph's church. Soon after his marriage, Mr. Foran went to Danbury, where for some years, he engaged in the furniture business.

He went to New London in 1891. Mrs. Foran died there October 27, 1908. For over 40 years he was engaged in the furniture business and built up one of the biggest concerns of this kind in Eastern Connecticut. A year ago last May a fire destroyed practically the entire stock and what remained was sold and also the business. After that fire he and his son, John K., who had been associated with him, organized the State Finance corporation and this, with an undertaking business, occupied his time since.

Mr. Foran married a second time in 1911 and his wife, who was Miss Anna McEwen of New London, survives him.

The children by the first marriage are John K., of 59 Faire Harbour place, Winifred, wife of Attorney Frank L. McGuire, Mabel, wife of Attorney Arthur T. Keefe and Nellie, wife of Joseph P. Regan, all residents of New London.

There are 11 grandchildren, five being children of Mr. and Mrs. McGuire; three children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Keefe, two children of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Foran, and one, the child of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Regan. He leaves one brother, William E. Foran, of Willimantic, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Hurley of Providence.

Mr. Foran was a charter member of the Knights of Columbus. The order was instituted in New Haven and subsequently councils have been established throughout the country. Mr. Foran was one of the original members of the parent organization, and he became a Fourth Degree Knight.

He was also very active in the Holy Name society of St. Mary's church, was president of St. John's Literary society and president of the Men's branch of the Social Service Bureau of St. Mary's parish.

He was interested in the Connecticut National Guard and some years ago was given a commission as captain of Co. A, by the then Governor Thomas M. Waller.

He was a lover of fine literature and particularly of poetry. He recently compiled a volume which he termed Gems of Literature and this he dedicated to his children and grandchildren. Aside from collecting choice essays he also contributed original verse, characteristic of his fine literary instinct.

Joseph C. Reynolds

After an illness of some duration, Joseph C. Reynolds died Monday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Ackley, of Quaker Hill. He was born in Norwich Jan. 30, 1852 the son of Captain and Mrs. Joseph Reynolds. Mr. Reynolds has for years followed the trade of a carpenter.

He was a man of true Christian ideals, a kind father and good friend. His family has the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their days of sorrow.

John A. Callahan

John A. Callahan, formerly of Norwich, died Monday at St. Frances' hospital, Hartford, after a short illness.

He was born in Norwich in 1866, the son of John Callahan and Bridget Marrigan Callahan. For several years he worked in the bleachery in Greeneville, but later followed the gun trade and became an expert polisher. He had a fine lmuse voice and was heard in local musical circles. He was also a baseball player and was one of the best in the game in Norwich in his younger days.

Thirty-four years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Connell of Bean Hill, who survives him with 5 sons, John and William P. Callahan of Hartford, Joseph C. of Norwich, Harold of New York city and Thomas F. Callahan of Philadelphia, Pa., one brother, Hugh Callahan, two sisters, Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke of Norwich, and Mrs. Henry Pratt of Springfield, Mass., and five grandchildren.

Bills totalling $300.25 against the city billed by City Health Officer E. J. Brophy on behalf of the Backus hospital occupied some attention at the meeting of the court of common council held Monday evening in the council chambers in the town building. After the amounts had been read Mayor Milo R. Waters explained the bills as follows: Some time ago there was an epidemic of diphtheria on Franklin street and five patients were continually breaking quarantine so the health officer had them removed to the isolation ward at the Backus hospital. At that time the hospital was short of nurses and outside nurses were called to treat these cases, and without doubt the lives of some of the patients were saved by their being taken to the hospital.

The town of Norwich has an agreement with the hospital that all charity patients are to be cared for at the rate of $15 a week. The town offered to pay at this rate but would not pay the extras for outside aid. The bill was then brought against the city and I returned it. Later, Dr. Brophy, city health officer, was told again to present the bills to the city. I recommend that they be referred to the finance committee, but feel that the city is in no way liable for the payment of these bills. The recommendation of reference to the committee was accepted by the council.

The meeting was called to order at 8:25 o'clock and the minutes of the January meeting accepted without reading. Notice of a hearing on the acceptance of Fanning avenue as a city street was given and after William M. Eastwood had spoken in favor of the avenue being accepted as a public highway a resolution was adopted that the acceptance of Fanning avenue as a public highway be postponed until the next regular meeting of the council to give all property owners opportunity to release the city from all damages in the making over of Fanning avenue into a public highway.

A hearing was also held on the fixing of lines and grades for a sidewalk on the southerly side of North and East Cliff street, after which a resolution was passed fixing such grades and lines.

A hearing was also held on the proposed ordinance on parks after which a resolution was adopted relating to the park department's power in the passing of ordinances and laws regulating the use of city parks.

The following petitions were acted upon; for an electric light on Market street petitioner, Max Sternlieb. Referred to the police committee. From George E. Pitcher for the fixing of a sidewalk line on the southerly side of West Main street between High street and Thames street, referred to the finance committee. Petition for lights at the paper mill pond in Thamesville so that people may enjoy skating there, and that Engine Company, No. 6, be allowed to flood the pond for skating, referred to the police committee. Petition from P. H. Ethier and others for a light at the foot of Eighth street hill, referred to the police committee with power. Petition that Silver street be graded to the convenience of property owners and accepted as city street, referred to the public works committee, and a petition for a street light at the corner of Silver and Copper street, referred to the police committee for investigation and report. Petition for street light in front of the home of Frank Cranska on Laurel Hill avenue, referred to the police committee with power.

It was voted that the grants of Eliza B. Woodworth and Joseph F. Combes on St. Regis avenue, Russell road, and Burton avenue be mentioned in the land records and that St. Regis avenue, Russell road and Burton avenue be accepted as city street, as of April, 1923.

The reports of departments were acted upon as follows: Quarterly report of the water board, accepted, ordered printed in the council Journal, same action on monthly reports of the street department and the city treasurer.

Clerk Weston C. Pullen read the notice of appointment of Leroy Robbins, John M. Lee and Harry M. Land as a committee to adjust damages resulting from the fixing of building lines on McKinley avenue, made by Mayor Milo R. Waters. The committee reported damages of Yetta Cohen as $750, as a result of the fixing of a building line on that street and a resolution was passed appropriating the $750 for payment of the same, on receipt by the city of satisfactory release by Josiah Greenstein, attorney for Mrs. Cohen.

The report of G. S. Raymond, W. W. O'Leary, and J. F. Fitzgerald on sewer placements on Hamilton avenue, Boswell avenue, and Laurel Hill avenue, was accepted and lists of assessments for the work on Boswell avenue between Hickory street and Ruth street, were read, totalling $5940.57. A resolution was passed appointing Mayor Milo R. Water, Alderman G. S. Raymond and Councilmen W. W. O'Leary and John E. Fitzgerald a committee to hold a hearing on said apportionments to be held at the council chambers on arch 5, at 7:30 o'clockM, notice to be given all property owners involved. A resolution was passed that all sums not expended by the department on sewers be turned over to the department of public works for regular use. A claim for damages against the city by Eugene A. Latham, for injuries received January 29th, in a fall in front of 140 Main street was referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel. The matter of payment of the bills against the city by the Backus hospital was taken up and referred to the finance committee.

John J. Riley of 69 Church street was appointed a city constable. The bills were read as follows and appropriations made for payment [illegible]

Adjournment was at 9:05 o'clock.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Persons resident in this town, Plainfield and other towns hereabouts figured in the proceedings of the superior court in Putnam Monday, when there was a one-day session to consider short calendar matters and to hear eleven uncontested divorce actions, the largest number of such cases heard in Windham county in a single day in years. Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich presided.

A Killingly case was that of Mary [illegible] Goodyear vs Adolph Hrymak of Brooklyn, N. Y. The plaintiff charged that her husband was intolerably cruel to her, and the testimony would indicate that he was given to beating her regularly every Saturday night. The couple are Ukranians who were married before coming to this country. The marriage was in [illegible] where they came here some time [illegible] Goodyear [illegible] Hrymak is residing [illegible] with [illegible] Goodyear [illegible] been [illegible] for [illegible] been in [illegible] of [illegible] that [illegible] she [illegible] husband, [illegible] and [illegible] Bill, [illegible] the [illegible] husband [illegible] desired [illegible] continued [illegible] Bill [illegible] the [illegible] husband [illegible] in Naugatuck [illegible] known. [illegible] he has [illegible] said [illegible] keep her [illegible] said [illegible] the [illegible] money [illegible] she [illegible] here married in January, [illegible] Moosup, [illegible] to they [illegible] happened [illegible] Mills. [illegible] Wife [illegible] The couple married in 1908 and desertion is alleged to have occurred on February 9, 1911. During the marriage Mrs. Charlebois and her absent husband were resident at Riverview, N. Y., a suburban section of Plattsburgh. Desertion is alleged to have occurred at Johnson, Vt., after Charlebois and his wife had spent the greater part of a winter in a lumbering camp. Mrs. Charlebois testified that there were boarders; that her husband was jealous and forbade her to even speak to the boarders. He left one day, ostensibly to look for work, and took their five years old son with him. This was on a Tuesday and he said that he was going to Mrs. Charlebois' sister's home town to look for employment. She was to join him the following Saturday. When she arrived at her sister's the husband and boy had been gone for two days, and she has no knowelge of their whereabouts and has not since heard of them, she testified.

Mrs. Nellie Cross, sister of Mrs. Charlebois and also a resident of Danielson, testified to Charlebois having come to her home with his son and of their departure for parts unknown before Mrs. Charlebois arrived two days later. Other witnesses for Mrs. Charlebois were Miss Pauline Phaneuf and Lillian Cross, both relatives. This case was continued by Judge Brown to allow Attorney Bill, representing Mrs. Charlebois, to obtain additional evidence.

The first plaintiff husband to appear on the stand at the session was Lucien Gagne, seeking a divorce on the ground of desertion from Mary Louise Gagne, who seems to have disappeared utterly, her husband and her sister testifying that they know nothing as to her whereabouts.

Mr. Gagne testified that the couple married in Dayville, May 4, 1908, and went to make their home in Attawaugan. For a time life moved along monthly for the couple, but later the wife became dissatisfied. She was lazy, her husband testified, and he finally had to chide her for her neglect of household duties while he was readily at work and "trying to keep their heads above water," he said. Eventually she said she would like to go to Quidnick, R. I., for a visit with her mother, and to work in a mill there. To this arrangement Mr. Gagne acceded. He made week end visits to her on two successive Saturdays and on the second visit told her he would not be down again for three weeks, as he thought it would be a good time to save traveling expenses, save money and pay bills. When he went back Mrs. Gagne had disappeared, and he has not heard a word from [illegible] and does not know where she [illegible] She left Quidnick about ten years ago. Judge Brown granted the decree on the ground of desertion. Attorney Harry E. Back was counsel for the plaintiff, whose witnesses were Mrs. Rosanna Gagne, his sister-in-law, William Thompson and Deputy Sheriff [illegible] Longhast, all of Central Village, all testifying in Gagne's good character.

A review of other divorces of county people heard at Monday's session of the court will be found in the Putnam column this morning.

Monday afternoon funeral services for Adelbert Gill were conducted at the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy by Rev. Walter B. Williams of the Westfield Congregational church. Burial was in the town lot at Dayville. Mr. Gill died suddenly at Goodyear in the latter part of January. He came to that village about Christmas time, was ill and out of work and was allowed to remain at an inn. Efforts to trace his relatives failed, although it was understood that he had a sister [illegible] Springfield and a brother at Granby, P. Q. Mr. Gill was about 55 to 58 years of age and had been a mill worker. He is believed to have [illegible] Goodyear from some fertile [illegible] about funds.

In view of what is being done by the state and by charitably inclined citizens in feeding game birds during [illegible] it is not strange that an [illegible] should [illegible] that he is entitled to something [illegible] consideration if not more so. Evidently holding this view a man who said he had spent the two preceding nights at Brooklyn jail appealed at 11 a. m. to be put up for the day and night. The climate was inexcusably rough for a man without visible means of support to be roaming around in, so this applicant said he would even take a year in jail rather than remain out in the weather any longer. Chief McFarland, to whom the application was made, was obliged to decline this magnanimous offer, so the traveler went his way.

PUTNAM

A rearrangement of terms of the superior court for Windham county was voted at a meeting of the members of the Windham county bar in the offices of the clerk of the court here Monday morning.

Under the new arrangement there will be an additional term of court at Willimantic for the consideration of criminal business and the terms for the transaction of civil business have been so arranged as to eliminate certain interferences with the rapid disposal of business.

Hereafter instead of the September term for civil business opening on the first Tuesday in September, the opening in this city will be on the third Tuesday of September. This particular change was made because experience has shown that it is practically impossible to accomplish much on the early September date because numbers of witnesses needed in cases have not returned from summer vacations and because sometimes counsel in cases also have not come back from their summer holiday. Advancing the opening of the September term to the third Tuesday in September is expected to overcome much of the delay due to the absence of witnesses and attorneys.

Court will sit here approximately a month before the October term opens in Willimantic on the third Tuesday of the month. This provides for the civil terms of the fall season. Hereafter the fall term for criminal cases will open in Willimantic on the first Tuesday in September instead of being held in Putnam on the first Tuesday in October.

Hereafter the January term for the consideration of criminal business will be held in Putnam instead of Willimantic as heretofore. The March term, civil side, will open in Putnam, as has been the custom, on the first Tuesday of the month.

After only a half hour for lunch, Judge Allyn L. Brown continued the unusually long list of divorce cases on the special short calendar list. Mary Alice White of Brooklyn was the first petitioner, she alleged that her husband, Claude White, was habitually intemperate. She said she was married in Brooklyn Jan. 1, 1920. She said that from almost the very first her husband drank all the time when he could get it, and it made him crazy. They lived in several places during the time she was with him, and it was the same in each place. Finally in Manchaug, Mass., she left him because she said she could not stand it any longer, she admitted, however, that during the time he supported her. Other witnesses corroborated the testimony but Judge Brown said that he felt that, having supported the wife, the husband was not habitually intemperate under the law, but he would continue the case for further evidence.

Pearl P. Maine of Central Village was granted a decree on the ground of cruelty and was awarded the custody of five minor children. Her husband, Malcolm Maine, is now in the Rhode Island state prison serving a 25 year sentence for second degree murder. She said that her husband never drew a sober breath, but her and choked her and was generally cruel to her.

Julia W. Loomis was granted a decree from Arthur Loomis. The couple were married in Billerica, N. Y., Jan. 18, 1905, and the cruelty was alleged since January, 1915. Mrs. Loomis said she had not lived with her husband in two years following a talk in which she told him one or the other would have to get out. She said her husband struck her, threw her down and hurt her back and often treated her cruelly. Mrs. Harry Prentice told of seeing marks on Mrs. Loomis' arms and of often finding her in tears. Mrs. Earle Johnson also testified to seeing Mrs. Loomis in tears on many occasions, and Glen Dow told of abuse which he saw the effects of.

Daniel Hill of Ballouville was married in 1884. His wife Carrie left him 33 years ago, taking one of the two children. He followed her to New Hampshire, and she had gone. He has not seen her or the child since and does not know whether they are living or dead. He was granted a decree on the ground of desertion.

Valeria Skindrier of Willimantic was granted a decree from her husband, Xaver Skindrier, on the ground of desertion. They were married in Norwich in 1915. A woman came to board in the house and at one time they slept three in a bed. The husband told his wife he liked the boarder better than he did her and there was trouble. The husband told his wife to go to visit her cousin. She did so and when she returned he was gone. That was the last of their living together.

Marion E. Norris of Willimantic was given a decree on the ground of cruelty. Soon after she married Reginald Norris he refused to work and he demanded that she support him. Every time she did not have money for him he would strike her and choke her until finally he was put out of the house. He had threatened to kill her, her child and her mother.

The last case was that of Celia Hurteau, who was freed from Henry Hurteau on the ground of intolerable cruelty. They live in Willimantic. The wife told a pitiful story of abuse, of being struck, choked and kicked by her husband, who refused to work. She said that once he kicked her in the stomach and she was paralyzed for six months. He also called her vile names and made untrue accusations. She became a nervous wreck and was greatly emaciated.

The session lasted until 5:30 o'clock.

The new additional term of court for the disposal of business on the criminal list is to be held in Willimantic on the second Tuesday of April. It is anticipated that this arrangement will allow of disposing of cases on the criminal list during April, leaving the May term free for consideration of criminal cases. The May term will be in Willimantic.

Judgment for $198.05 in favor of the plaintiff was ordered in the superior court here Tuesday by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the case of Benjamin Grosvenor of Pomfret vs. Walter E. Brown, formerly of that place. Attorney H. C. Bradford, appearing for Mr. Grosvenor, stated that the plaintiff had loaned $350 to the defendant. Certain payments and interest had been made on the note, but the balance for which judgment was eventually given was due. John Grosvenor, acting for the plaintiff, his father appeared to testify in the case.

Another matter that received the attention of Judge Brown in the superior court Monday was the case of George C. Nichols vs. John S. Lewis. The matter appeared on a motion to erase from the docket as per order of the court on May 29, 1922. In this case Mr. Nichols was represented by Attorney P. J. Panahey and Attorney for Mr. Nichols, Attorney E. C. Morse asked that the case be allowed to remain on the docket. Judge Brown said he would let the matter stand for the time being. The case is one in which Mr. Nichols claims the about $150 is due him on a contract. It has been on the docket for [illegible] without coming to trial.

WESTERLY

At the regular monthly meeting of the town council held Monday morning that body voted to submit to the voters in town meeting Tuesday night, a proposition to request legislation from the general assembly that will authorize the town to institute a department of public works. This department would have charge of highway construction, sewerage and water supply.

Thomas McKenzie, superintendent of the water works and sewerage department was present at the meeting and stated that there was much to be desired in having authority over town departments concentrated. He believed, he said, that if a capable, honest official were placed in charge of the public works department much benefit would result to the town. After much discussion the council passed the following vote:

That the representatives of the general assembly be and they are hereby directed to secure during the present session of the general assembly such legislation as may be necessary to create a board of public works for the town of Westerly, vesting in said board of public works of the authority, powers and duties conferred upon the water commissioners by chapter 531 of the public laws and all amendments and matters relating to the care, construction and control of highways as ordered by the town council prescribed, said act to become effective January 1, 1924.

A Startling Discovery for Rheumatism

THE FORMULA OF A NEW JERSEY DOCTOR

Druggists Have Secured the Remarkable Preparation and Are Authorized to Sell it on 10 Days' Trial. Try It.

The discoverer of CAMPHOROLE has aroused a great deal of interest among the suffering over the wonderful results obtained. CAMPHOROLE represents the theory of medication, treating and loosening up those stiff, rheumatic joints, reducing inflammation and drives out the poisonous uric acid by literally causing you to perspire yourself because a sigh of relief as its soothing and cooling effect reaches the sore spots.

If you suffer in acute or chronic rheumatism, send to the nearest drug store for a small size package of Dr. Kruschen's CAMPHOROLE and see for yourself how quickly it acts.

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss., Norwich, Jan. 23d, 1923.
Upon the complaint of the said Lillie A. Ericksson claiming, for the reasons therein set forth, a divorce, foreclosure and the possession of certain mortgaged premises, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of June, 1922.
It appearing to and being found by this Court that Frederic W. Therefore, Ordered, That notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in The Norwich Bulletin a newspaper printed in Norwich once a week for two weeks, successively commencing on or before the 30th day of January, 1923.
By order of Court.
GEORGE E. PARSONS,

ORIENT COLLEGE FUND GOES OVER THE TOP

There is local interest in the announcement from Washington that the joint committee of the Women's Union Christian colleges in the Orient has completed its fund which secures approximately a million dollars from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial fund.
The Rockefeller gift covers six colleges in Tokio, Peking, Nanking, Lucknow, Madras and Vellore. The fund called for three million dollars. A million and a half was secured through a campaign conducted throughout the country, and to which church members in Norwich and vicinity and other individuals contributed nearly $1,000.

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Feb. 5.—Prices moved to higher ground in today's stock market in seeming indifference of week-end news dispatches announcing a virtual break-up of the Lausanne peace conference. The averages of 20 industrials and 30 rails at the close of the market were at new peak levels for the year.
Considerable importance was attached by traders to the fact that prices of stocks had emerged from the narrow trading area in which they have been fluctuating for about 50 business days. Heavy buying of stocks at the close was based, in part, on the fact that prices had broken out of the trading area on the up-side, which was regarded in some quarters as barometric of the course of prices in the immediate future.
Speculators for the decline, acting on the theory that the unfavorable news from Lausanne warranted a reaction, offered the standard industrials freely at the opening but they encountered good resistance and finally abandoned their operations on the short side when the demand for the rail shares assumed large proportions. Early losses were generally recovered and a number of the leaders touched new highs on the movement. Trading slackened somewhat on the rally but became livelier towards the close on the circulation of reports that hope was still held out at Lausanne that a satisfactory agreement would be reached. Announcements of higher iron pipe and gasoline prices had a favorable effect on sentiment.
Renewed activity of railroad shares was ascribed to the operations of large traders, who previously have been devoting most of their energies to the industrial group. Baltimore & Ohio was one of the leaders, touching 32 1-4 for a net gain of 3 1-4 on transactions totaling approximately 35,000 shares. Gains of 2 or more points also were recorded by Chicago & Northwestern, Atlantic Coast Line, Chicago Great Western Preferred and Jersey Central, the last named jumping 20 points to 230.
Publication in the financial district of an optimistic resume of business conditions by Chairman Gary of the U. S. Steel Corporation induced some buying of steel shares. Crucible gained 2 points; Republic 1 and 3-4, Gulf States, 1 1-4 and the others fractionally. Equipments benefited by the upward trend in rails, American Car rising 3 points and American and Baldwin Locomotives, large fractions. Some of the other individual strong spots were Stewart Warner Speedometer, Mack Truck, Corn Products, United Retail Stores, United Fruit, Postum Cereal and Pressed Steel Car, all up 1 1-2 to 2 points.
Call money held at 4 3-4 per cent throughout the day. Time money was firmer with brokers apparently willing to pay 4 3-4 per cent for all but the shortest maturities, but the volume of business was comparatively small. Out of town bankers were the principal takers of Commercial paper, the bulk of the best names still commanding 4 1-2 per cent with little business done below that future.
Foreign exchange opened easier in response to the unsettlement caused in the London market by the Lausanne dispatches, but they made good recovery later and final quotations were, as a rule, slightly above those of Saturday. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.67 1-2 and French francs around 6.45 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Feb. 5.—Establishment of new high records for the year by all the old U. S. government 4 1-4 per cent bonds on gains of 24 to 44 cents on $100, which were later materially reduced or cancelled, and pronounced strength of the Erie railroad mortgages, were the features of today's more active trading in bonds.
French and Belgian government securities were heavy at the start on the unfavorable news from Lausanne. French 7 1-2s and 8s breaking about 1 1-2 points each, but early losses were recovered, and Lyons 6s and Belgian 8s closed 1 and 1-4 points higher. Buying of U. S. government 4 1-4 per cent issues, all of which crossed 99, was predicated on the terms of the British debt agreement which allows Great Britain to pay interest and principal on those bonds at the par price.
Erie Convertible 4s, Series A, B and D, the general 4s and the Consolidated 4s moved up 2 1-2 to 3 3-4 points. Other speculative railroad mortgages also made good progress, particularly Western Maryland 4s, Southern Railway Convertible 4s, Frisco Income 6s, St. Paul Convertible 4 1-2s, Chicago & Alton 3 1-2s, "Katy" Adjustment 5s and Rock Island 6s, all up 1 to nearly 2 points. Louisville & Nashville Refunding 5 1-2s and Northern Pacific 3s were heavy.
Prices in the industrial and public utility groups moved within narrower limits but there was a good demand for local tractions, Pacific Gas & Electric 5s and Magma Copper 7s.
Total sales (par value) were $13,950,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 5.—War possibilities led to a decided upturn today in the value of wheat. The market closed firm at the day's highest level. May 1.19 7-8 to 1.20 and July 1.14 to 1.14 1-8, a rise of 7-8 to 2c compared with Saturday's finish. Corn gained 7-8 to 1 1-8c, oats 5-8 to 1 1-8c and provisions 2 1-2 to 5 cents.
With the Liverpool market showing for the first time in quite a while some apparent concern over the strained relations between Great Britain and Turkey, bulls here had an advantage from the outset. Occasionally, little setbacks in price needed to be overcome, but there was a notable absence of determined selling pressure, and buyers seemed to be acting on the basis that hostilities if commenced might involve Russia and India, as well as the Balkans.
The upward tendency of the wheat market was further accelerated by a falling off in the volume of receipts at primary centers, and by increased clearances of domestic [illegible] for the winter crop [illegible] such lack of Herman Nelson, motorman of the express, said he blew the whistle as the train neared the crossing, but did not see the fire truck until it was directly on the tracks ahead of the train. It was too late, he said, to avoid collision, although he jammed down the brakes. An investigation was [illegible] to determine whether, as the firemen claim, the crossing gates had been left open.

SAVANNAH AWAITING ARRIVAL OF TROOPS

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 6.—Although without definite information regarding the exact hour of arrival of the United States army transport St. Mihiel tomorrow, Savannah tonight rehearsed plans for what is regarded as its greatest celebration—welcoming home the last of the American forces which participated in the World war.

Basing their conclusions on radio messages received from the transport saying the St. Mihiel at noon today still was 355 miles off Savannah, marine men believed the ship could not reach Tybee bar much before 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Evidence that the St. Mihiel is fighting heavy seas and bad weather was seen by marine men in radio messages intercepted here today in which the transport asked radio stations in South Carolina to give her radio compass bearings.

URZON PROUD OF HIS RECORD AT LAUSANNE

[illegible] Marquis Curzon, British foreign [illegible] press this evening that he was content to be judged on the results [illegible] peace conference at Lausanne. He believed, he said, that [illegible] treaty almost [illegible] history at about the treaty [illegible] self-interest or exclusively national advantage. I am content to be [illegible] by the results."

When Lord Curzon left the Lausanne station for England Sunday there was one class farewell by every delegation except that of the Turks. "I felt a terrible, but our mood [illegible] depression," he continued, "for I was convinced that, as soon as the Turks themselves would be [illegible] realized what they had done [illegible] the extent of their error and the weight of the responsibility which they had deliberately elected to assume, and that, before many hours had passed, the reaction [illegible] become definite proportion.

NEAR EAST SITUATION DISTINCTLY IMPROVED

London, Feb. 6 (By the A. P.)—As between Turkey and the allies the situation is distinctly improved, but it is still doubtful if the treaty will be signed before Ismet Pasha leaves Lausanne for Angora.

The adjourned cabinet council met today, without Lord Curzon, who was indisposed, and discussed the subject of the near east settlement briefly. The developments include the receipt by the foreign office of a note from Premier Poincare intimating the willingness of the Turks to sign the treaty, but according to information in official circles, with certain reservations or conditions, the nature of which is not definitely disclosed, but which are supposed to concern capitulations and economic questions. In fact similar reservations to those which on Sunday preceded signature of the treaty.

It is understood that M. Poincare suggested that the signing of the treaty should take place at Paris before Ismet Pasha leaves for home. The British government's position is that if the Turks are ready to sign unconditionally it is ready to send a representative to Paris to meet [illegible] for affixing of signatures, and it is understood that a reply in this sense has been forwarded to the French premier.

CONCESSIONS THAT HAVE BEEN MADE BY TURKS

Constantinople, Feb. 6.—(By The A. P.) The notice given by the Turks that afternoon tomorrow no foreign warship exceeding 1,000 tons may enter the harbor of Smyrna and that no two ships of one nation will be allowed there at the same time was the subject of a conference of the allied admirals here today, as a result of which Admiral Sir Gilbert Nicholson, aboard the British cruiser Curacoa was ordered to Smyrna.

In addition the allied high commissioners here handed a note of protest to the [illegible] government. It is understood the Turks will require such ships as do not meet with their specifications to leave Smyrna harbor by tomorrow midnight.

The enforcement of the regulation would bar the American destroyers, all of which exceed the tonnage specified.

Washington Treaties Approved by Italy

Approval Given by Chamber of Deputies After Premier Mussolini Had Spoken in Favor of the Conventions.

Rome, Feb. 6.—(By the A. P.)—The Italian chamber of deputies today gave its approval to the Washington conference treaties, which will be formally ratified by secret ballot tomorrow.

Approval was given after Premier Mussolini had spoken in favor of the conventions.

There was a small attendance of the deputies for the reopening of parliament and throughout the session the proceedings were uneventful.

During the debate on the Washington conventions some of the deputies spoke in favor of a general reduction in armament, while others advanced the theory Italy should be prepared for all eventualities. The socialists supported disarmament, while the fascisti deputy Giunta declared Italy required naval preparedness.

Admiral Count Thaon Di Revel, minister of marine, pointed out that Italy did not produce sufficiently to feed her people or to work her industries in peace time, much less in war time; indeed, he said, Italy was obliged to import four-fifths of her food and raw materials and therefore in asking at Washington naval equality with France she was demanding the minimum to safeguard her own life.

Premier Mussolini, amid profound attention on the part of the deputies, declared he did not wish to waste time in discussing whether the late war was the last war, or only the last war but one. Journalists from all quarters of the globe, he added, had proclaimed that the Washington conference would result in perpetual peace, but the actual results had been quite different.

"I don't believe in perpetual peace," exclaimed Mussolini. "I don't think even Kant (the famous German philosopher) believes in it." The pacifistic words were greeted with hilarity by the deputies.

"Throughout the events in the history of peoples, Mussolini continued, "when contracts are broken by force of arms. Nevertheless, conventions like the Washington pacts provide breathing spaces. At any rate, I declare that Italy is very glad to join in these conventions, being thus able to disprove the accusations that she is a fire-eating nation. The fact that the fascisti government asks the chamber to ratify the conventions indicates the line it intends to take in foreign politics."

The speech of the premier was loudly applauded.

[illegible] Italy, the A. P.)—Fighting in Tripoli between the Italian troops and rebels has been almost incessant for the last week, according to [illegible] correspondent at Homs. [illegible] rebel detachments, which were forced to retire to the south with [illegible]

The monthly meeting of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce was held Tuesday evening with a large attendance. A short business meeting, presided over by President Valentine L. Murphy, was held after the supper. Secretary Morrill read a communication stating that the local chamber was invited to send a delegate to attend the state banquet in Hartford, the meeting being called to formulate a plan for advertising Connecticut as an industrial and vocational center. Governor Templeton will be the main speaker.

It was voted that the chair appoint a committee of five delegates. W. C. Norris spoke for the entertainment committee and stated that it was planned to make the March meeting an entertainment, and he advised all members to come prepared to laugh. President Murphy announced that a debate would follow on the subject, Resolved, That the 18th amendment is a financial and social benefit to this country. He introduced Emil L. J. Hohenthal of South Manchester, chairman of the Connecticut prohibition committee, who took the affirmative side, and John J. Splain of New Haven, chairman of the All-American National council, who took the negative side of the debate. At the beginning of his talk Mr. Hohenthal gave a history of the 18th amendment. He stated that even before it had become a law it had been individually adopted by 33 states of the union. The speaker said that in the first place the social and moral benefits of the law should be considered in preference to the financial benefits, and that if money was lost by this country through prohibition it was certainly worth it for its improvement on the first two named conditions.

Mr. Hohenthal gave a list of the increases in certain industries and in production since the advent of prohibition, this list being endorsed by many of the largest industries of this country. He further stated that labor as a whole was not in disfavor of prohibition and illustrated this by the statement that in the three largest industrial sections of this country strictly prohibitionists were elected by the laboring class. In regard to the financial benefits to this country, the speaker mentioned the fact that the expenses of the jails in this country homes were very much decreased, and he named a large number of jails which weer entirely closed. He read figures which showed a marked decrease in arrests and committals in this state from the years 1917 to 1922. He remarked that prohibition meant family and individual welfare and that charity expenses were far below normal since the closing of saloons. Prohibition also means a large decrease in insanity, and tubercular conditions, most of which were caused by the drinking of alcohol. He went on to deny that prohibition caused reversion to drugs and made more drug addicts. Throughout his talk Mr. Hohenthal was very plainly spoken and confined his efforts mostly to figures and newspaper clippings.

Mr. Splain began debating his side of the question by asking when prohibition was to begin existing in America. He stated that there was never a legislature elected on the prohibition issue and that the amendment was passed when all eyes were turned in an eager effort to win the World war and paying little attention to the passing of new amendments. He said that prohibition had brought about a contempt and disregard for law which fairly shakes the foundation of the government. It is a moral decaying law which no amount of social and financial benefits can compensate for, and it is un-American because it deprives us of the liberty to satisfy our personal appetites.

The speaker added that history is full of lessons teaching that all forms of supression are detrimental. He further said that prohibition can stop a man from making liquor to sell but it cannot constitutionally stop a man from drinking. It is un-Christian because it breeds contempt for the very law it was designed to make and eventually breeds contempt for all and every law. Is there any law, questioned the speaker, which is so openly disregarded as the 18th amendment? The answer to that is No, and it is based upon the fact that the law is not reinforced by public sentiment. It is inhuman, concluded the speaker, because it is the suppression of the tastes and appetites of men, and it means that the exhausted laborer cannot answer nature's law for a stimulant but he must derive satisfaction from the so-called prohibition rules.

Mr. Hohenthal then delivered an eloquent rebuttal in which he stated that if prohibition was the suppression of personal liberty, then why not allow men to use dope, which in one way is not so bad as alcohol, as it confines its bad effects to one individual and does not spread itself down through a generation. He said that prohibition did not deal with private appetites but with public traffic and that the appetites must be trained not to crave a stimulant. He stated that if we could confine the evil to the evildoer all would be well enough. America never works backward, concluded the speaker.

Mr. Splain entered into rebuttal and read figures which showed an alarming increase in the number of commitments to jail in 44 states between 1917 and 1922, and also an increase in deaths caused by alcoholism as showed by insurance companies. He further stated that there was an increase in insanity throughout the country. He concluded by stating that during the World war we won democracy for other countries, only to lose our own in this country.

Both speakers received the applause of the audience.

Chelsea Savings Bank.

The Chelsea Savings Bank has had one of the best six months in its history.

Ever alive to the growing needs of the city, and backing their faith on Norwich and vicinity, they have loaned a great deal of money to finance the building of new homes for the people of this city. Loans on old homes and business property have also been made which have enabled the new owners to finance their purchases. This has increased the loans real estate account, during the past year, to date $1,058,935.

The strength of this bank and the complete service offered have attracted new depositors and stimulated the old ones to renewed effort to increase their accounts.

Gain of depositors the past year to date has been 1458, and the amount of deposits $216,111.40. Current earnings have made a new top.

Feeling that the depositors who are the owners of the bank should participate in these increased earnings, and having in the past fortified the bank against any losses that might occur, the directors have declared in addition to the regular dividend at the rate of 4 per cent, an extra dividend of 1-4 of 1 per cent., payable on March 15, 1923.

MORLEY AND BOYLAN PURCHASE STEAD BUILDING

An important real estate transaction was consummated Tuesday when George O. Stead sold to P. J. Morley, the hatter, and Joseph P. Boylan, president of the J. F. Cosgrove Co., the building on Franklin square, Nos. 206-210 Main street, known as the Stead block, in which the stores of Mr. Morley and Mr. Boylan are located.

The new owners have acquired one of the most valuable pieces of mercantile property, located in the heart of the best business district in the city. It is a brick building, occupied on the ground floor by the two stores, on the second floor by offices and on the third floor by a hall. The new owners take possession at once.

Before Mr. Stead's ownership, which began 15 years ago, the property had been known as the Pierce block, having been erected about 50 years ago and considered at that time the finest new mercantile building in the city.

The sale for Mr. Stead was made through the brokerage office of James E. Moore.

Oliver Twist at the Strand.

As the engagement of little Jackie Coogan in Oliver Twist starts today at the Strand theatre, the impression gains strength that this is one of the biggest and most notable picture products yet created for the screen.

Not only in the "size" of the production, but in its "intimacy," is art value being recognized, not only does it appeal to the youngsters, but to the matured as well.

It seems to be as nearly perfect as a picture play can be, an entertainment for everybody. Even the pedant and library bookworm, for whom the theatre usually exerts but the slightest influence, is concerned with Oliver Twist to see in what manner the literary spirit of Charles Dickens is set forth upon the screen and by what processes and elimination the narrative as composed by the immortal novelist have been applied to reduce the story matter to the limits of a screen presentation. That Frank Lloyd, in making the adaptation, has employed the rarest judgment and keenest sympathies will be unanimously agreed by the Strand patrons; that the production is all that was claimed for it is likewise agreed and that little Jackie Coogan, the bright star of a brilliant aggregation of players, is at the very apex of his matured yet youthful art is overwhelmingly conceded.

The feature starts its run of four days today and we would advise coming early and also urge women and children to attend the matinees to avoid the crowds at the night show.

A comedy and news will finish this fine program.

Norwich Community Lecture Course.

On Tuesday evening, Feb. 13th, under the auspices of the Norwich churches, Isaac Marcosson, the world famous journalist and lecturer, will appear in Slater Hall. This will be a notable event and his intensely interesting lecture on The Changing East is of strong appeal to all thinking men and women.

Isaac Marcosson has returned to New York after nearly five months spent in Japan and China, studying the economic and political consequences of the Washington conference. This proved to be one of the most exciting of his many world experiences.

He was the first journalist to be received in private audience in Japan by the prince regent and he was also the first foreigner to address the Japanese house of peers. In China his experiences were no less unusual, for he was received by Shu-Shih-Chang, the retiring president, by Li Yuan-hung, the new president, and also by Sun Yat-sen, until lately president of southern China.

Tickets $1.00. The net proceeds will be given to the Backus hospital. Tickets are on sale at The Cranston Co., Broadway.

Big Double Bill at the Breed.

The Mysterious Rider, a Zane Grey story, filmed more powerfully than ever that wonderfully popular author's work has been filmed in the past even by Benjamin B. Hampton, at whose touch the great novels of the world become marvelous photoplays. This may well be called Mr. Hampton's greatest Zane Grey interpretation.

It contains all the elements of wholesome dramatic appeal—appeal for every class of patron from the smallest child to the oldest grandmother and grandfather, and all the folk who are in between. Because it is a hundred per cent pure entertainment, wholesome, elevating and artistic, the very highest art of the [illegible] and the most human, lovable characterizations, breathless suspense, mystery, intrigue, humor, and novel twists—The Mysterious Rider finds a place in the heart of any and every human being.

There's a lovely, lovable girl called Columbine, played by Claire Adams. And a wonderful, manly hero, Wilson Moore, played by the matinee idol of the light opera stage, Carl Gantvoort. And a powerful, mysterious stranger named Wade, played by subtle, polished Robert McKim. And a ravishing, eye-filling blonde beauty known as "Mrs Smith," played by Maude Wayne. And a bull-dog sort of man, sinister and brutal, whose scarred face tells a story—the blonde's husband, Smith played by Frederick Starr. Walter Whitman as Bellounds, the [illegible]ner, and James Mason as Jack Be[illegible]s, the ne'er-do-well son—foster brother of the heroine, t[illegible]mbine—contribute truly great characterizations, and many of the audience may give their favor to two of the cast we name as last but not least—those famous fun makers of the screen, Frank Hayes and Aggie Herring. The Mysterious Rider will be the main feature at the Breed theatre today and Thursday.

For the second feature Viola Dana will be seen in a new comedy drama, titled Love in the Dark. Movie Chats will complete this big double bill.

What is conceded to be the season's finest offering of B. F. Keith vaudeville will be seen at the Broadway theatre starting Thursday.

Margie Kurton, the well known singing comedienne, will open the bill. Following will be Brown & De Mott in a comedy song, talk and dance offering; Burrow & Sullivan in An Interlude of Melody are bound to make a hit. Then comes vaudeville's greatest comedy offering with Ed. Dressler and Blanche Ring[illegible] called A Lovely Day. The Three Odd Chaps will close the bill with musical comedy stops.

Marking the third of his widely[illegible] novels and stories that have been adapted to the screen, Peter B. Kyne's humanizing Mr. Winsby, has been produced by Paramount under the title of Making a Man, with Jack Holt as the star. The story is that of a [illegible] scabbish young man who goes to New York and through a chain of circumstances loses his money, and everything that would identify him. He undergoes all the experiences of a down-and-outer. The picture comes to the Broadway theatre Thursday.

Slater Hall Musical Course.

Frederic Lamond, the distinguished pianist, will appear in Slater Hall, on Friday evening, Feb. 9th. The appearance of this noted pianist is eagerly awaited and a fine recital program will be rendered.

Having been acclaimed "the" Beethoven pianist, Mr. Lamond is naturally anxious to escape from the limitations of a label—however flattering and exalting. Accordingly, he included Tschaikowsky's Pianoforte Concerto in B flat minor in his recent Queen's Hall concert with Sir Henry Wood and the Queen's Hall orchestra and proved himself to be as great an interpreter of this as of the "Emperor" which formed the other part of his program.

It was a reading that Tschaikowsky himself would have lauded, for it chimed with his own conception of concert relations between pianoforte and orchestra. Gifted Mr. Lamond certainly is, and much more. His playing of the finale was nothing short of magnificent in its power and virility. A masterly style, a brilliant technic and a finely trained artistic judgment are the qualities that place Frederic Lamond among the greatest of living pianists.

Other concerts in the Slater Hall Musical Course will be The London String Quartet on Feb. 23; Frieda Hempel, prima donna soprano, in a Jenny Lind concert program on April 6th; Mario Chamlee, tenor from the Metropolitan Opera company, on May 11th.

Tickets for Frederic Lamond's recital $2.00, tax exempt. Course tickets (4 concerts) $6.00. Tickets are on sale at The Cranston Co., on Broadway.

no fighting for a year. There are a half dozen middleweights capable of disposing of Wilson.

Joe Lynch, if he ever consents to meeting with Carl Tremaine, will almost certainly be on the losing end. Several other bantams are equally dangerous.

Criqui, the European champion is being press-agented for a bout with Johnny Kilbane. It is doubtful if Criqui will be able to defeat the feather champion, but there are a half dozen fighters in this country who have better than an even chance.

Will Mickey Walker, the welter champion, be able to hold off Dave Shade?

Also there is a rumor that Benny Leonard is packing on weight so fast that he will soon have outgrown the lightweight limit.

OTHERS HAVE DONE IT; WHY NOT GIBBONS?

It is a laugh!

Dempsey wasn't too small to fight Willard. Bob Fitzsimmons wasn't too small for Jeffries, and so on down the line. Old Joe Wolcott used to fight opponents 50 pounds heavier and a foot taller, and still hand them a lacing.

Personal reasons must enter into such a decision. A glance at the statures of the two fighters is ample proof.

Dempsey weighs only about 20 pounds more than Gibbons. The champion's height is six feet one inch, while Gibbons is a quarter of an inch shorter.

In all other measurements Gibbons compares very favorably with Dempsey. The figures certainly don't bear out the justice of the decision that prevents Gibbons from a chance at the title.

GEORGIA PEACH HAS HARD RECORD TO BEAT

Ty Cobb, with a life-time batting average of .372 leads all players of the world in this respect.

Cobb's mark will undoubtedly live for many years—probably forever. It will be a long time before the game produces another player with the batting eye of Cobb.

While it isn't generally known, Pete Browning was the holder of life-time swat averages until Cobb appeared on the scene.

While with the Louisville club from 1882 until 1892, Browning led all batsmen with .356 life-time average. This mark stood for 23 years.

It took Cobb 10 years to bring up his mark to the average set by the old-time slugger. Since 1915 Cobb has gradually increased the lead.

The greatness of Cobb's feat is made evident by the fact that Rogers Hornsby, the premier slugger of the National league, has an average of only .347 covering his eight years.

Sisler is Cobb's closest opponent with a mark of .350 covering his major league career.

CLINTON EXONERATED FROM ALL BLAME IN DEATH OF ANDY THOMAS, PUGILIST

New York, Feb. 6.—Absolution from criminal responsibility was given late tonight by District Attorney Dodd of Brooklyn to all those connected with the death of Antonio Perraiano, New York pugilist known as Andy Thomas, who died this morning from a hemorrhage of the brain suffered during his bout with Johnny Clinton in Brooklyn last night.

After examining all the surviving participants and several witnesses, District Attorney Dodd said the death was an unfortunate accident and that there were no grounds for making arrests. He ordered the investigation closed. Medical Examiner Vaughan, who performed an autopsy, previously had declared that the hemorrhage was induced by blows received during the fight.

Dr. James E. Thompson, official physician of the state boxing commission, testified that he examined both men before they entered the ring and found their conditions satisfactory. Witnesses told the district attorney the bout was not brutal, that there had been no knockdowns and that when Thomas collapsed at the beginning of the twelfth round the bout seemed even.

THE ATTACK BY HUNGRY HAWK.

"I want a box of candy nuts,
And a bag of lollypops.
And half a dozen chocolate ices
And twenty caramel tops."
said Squirrel Nutcracker as he ran up the tree which had a little candy store on one of its branches, you know, as I told you in the last story.

Well, it didn't take the squirrel lady who kept the store long to wrap up all these good things, and after that Squirrel Nutcracker slid down the tree with the box and carried it over to the sledmobile where little Jack Rabbit and Uncle Lucky sat waiting for him.

"Jump aboard; we're out for fun,
We'll all eat candies by the ton,"

STATE GAME SANCTUARIES.

That part of the report of the fish and game commission which deals with the question of sanctuaries or refuges for game is bound to come in for much attention. The idea is based upon conservation and the plan is to have such sanctuaries about the state which will be patrolled by the commissioners where the game may propagate and be used to feed the regions lying outside of the refuges.

[illegible] the experience of Pennsylvania in this respect as quoted by the commission it becomes evident that if such sanctuaries are created the [illegible] will be more than repaid by the increase in the game supply. The value of such a system has been in effect in the Keystone state for a century and has been a success. Connecticut is now making a start in the right direction and has a splendid opportunity to profit by the experience of other states.

Conservation of game can be carried on as well as for other kinds of crops. It is expected that a certain proportion of the crop is to be gathered in by the hunters and fishermen but [illegible] there will be enough left to [illegible] the following year. [illegible] is possible that [illegible] which has been [illegible] and which [illegible] the game supply. If [illegible] have been advised [illegible] even greater advantage to the state [illegible] there would be no opposition.

HAROLD F. JOHNSON County Agent

County Agent Harold F. Johnson of this city has presented to the executive committee of the New London county farm bureau his resignation as county agent, to take effect March 1st, and the same has been accepted by the committee.

Mr. Johnson has accepted the position of assistant secretary with the Federal Land bank, with headquarters at Springfield, Mass. The Federal land bank is one of the 12 banks authorized by congress to be established in the United States under the farm loan act for the purpose of making long-time loans to farmers. The territory covered by this institution includes all of New England, New York and New Jersey. To date this bank has made approximately 7,500 loans, totaling 24 million dollars, in this territory.

Mr. Johnson has been the local county agent since May 1, 1922, coming here from Newport, R. I., where he had been in county agent work for three years. His policy here has been a progressive one that has brought much to the membership of the farm bureau, whose officers and individual members will be sorry to see him leave New London county.

The committee have discussed with Mr. Ellis, the state leader of county agents, the possibility of securing a new agent. Mr. Ellis had no one whom he could definitely recommend at the time but stated he had several men under consideration that he would be glad to discuss a little later with the committee. The committee agreed to let Mr. Ellis handle the matter of hiring a new agent temporarily.

The executive committee discussed the question of a county program of work and it was voted that President Whitman should appoint the various county project leaders after consultation with the home demonstration agent and county agent. The county projects to be worked upon are much the same as last year and include organization, co-operative buying and selling, livestock, soils and crops, farm management, health, clothing, nutrition and household management.

President Whitman gave a report on the meeting of the state farm bureau federation which he and Mrs. Whitman attended as delegates from New London county. Mr. Whitman was elected a member of the executive committee of the state federation at that meeting.

Mr. Service of Preston presented a plan for a co-operative buying and selling committee of the farm bureau which would tie up closely with the farm bureau organization the co-operative work that has been started in the county. He outlined as possible duties of this committee the organization of county pools to handle fertilizers, seeds, lime and spray materials and to assist in any attempts at co-operative marketing such as the proposed egg marketing association for eastern Connecticut poultrymen. The committee elected Mr. Service as chairman of this committee and Mr. Whitman of Waterford and Mr. Waterman of Lebanon were picked as the other two members to serve with Mr. Service. This committee will not be active in the co-operative buying pools organized for this winter but will probably start their program on co-operative buying work next fall.

MAIN STREET FIRE COMPANY TRANSFERRED TO GREENEVILLE

Engine company No. 1, formerly located at the Main street station, has been transferred to the Greeneville station and will hereafter be known as Engine company No. 2. The crew of Engine company No. 2 is the same that composed the force at the Main street station, namely, Captain John Blackburn, John J. Lynch, Joseph Buckley and Patrick Brennan.

Chief Howard L. Stanton announces that there will be some changes made in the personnel of the call men assigned to Engine company No. 2, as men who formerly were with the fourth company do not live near the new station.

The Pope 35 patrol engine has been thoroughly overhauled and is in first class condition and has been sent to the Greeneville station with the old crews. The alterations on the Greeneville station have not yet been completed, but in order to give Greeneville protection during the coming weeks Chief Stanton sent the crew there Tuesday.

BOAT TRAINS LATE ON TWO RAILROADS

The Worcester boat train due in this city at 5.15 o'clock Tuesday evening did not arrive until 10.30 o'clock, an hour and three-quarters late. It was stated that the delay was caused by a freight train which had become stalled above Greeneville when the locomotive could not get up sufficient steam to haul the load up the grade. People who were depending on the train to reach points further south in some cases abandoned themselves to the long wait at the station, or else took to the trolleys, which were running on better time, and traveled to New London in this manner making connections with the New York boat at New London.

The boat train on the Central Vermont railroad was also late in reaching this city, arriving here at 7.30 o'clock, about a half hour late. The train was held up at Willimantic to wait for the Hartford train on the New Haven road, which was 25 minutes late.

TOOK SEVEN HOURS TO GET UP THE RIVER

Steamer Cape Cod of the Thames River line had a hard struggle with ice to get up the river from New London Tuesday, but finally reached her Norwich dock at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, a seven hour trip, as she had left New London before 7 in the morning.

The ice was firm all the way up the river and it was slow work in the passage, and off Bawley's dock a particularly hard spot was struck as here anchor ice was encountered. This was fast on the bottom and when the boat hit this solid ice she rode up on top of it until her weight would break it away. The last few thousand feet of her voyage were the hardest.

GIRL SLID INTO BARBED WIRE, SUIT FOR $2,500

Suit in the superior court has been brought on behalf of Elizabeth Ruth Bruce Skalina, aged 8, of New London, as brought by her father, Alfred S. Skalina, against Bradley, James and Agnes Sheedy of New London for $2,500. The complaint is that the girl went sliding on Feb. 19, 1922, and coasted into a barbed wire fence maintained by the defendants on their land on Darrow street and between their land and the property of George W. Darrow. It is claimed the barbed wire fence was less than 5 feet from the ground, contrary to the statutes, and the Skalina girl's face was badly cut and disfigured.

COLCHESTER SUIT FOR $2,000 FOR SLANDER

In a suit brought in the superior court for this county, John Stula of Colchester alleges that Michael Zaris of that town slandered him and sues for $2,000 damages. The alleged slanderous words, said to have been spoken in the presence of Mary Chemerynska on Dec. 26, 1922, were: "John Stula is living with a woman who is not living with him," which were false and malicious, the plaintiff says, as he was living with his lawful wife.

PETITIONS STATE DEPARTMENT FOR WEST MAIN STREET

A petition circulated by Frederick T. Backus, securing 150 signatures, has been sent to the state highway department asking that the state take over and maintain the highway west of the city line on West Main street to a point near Maplewood cemetery, where a piece of state highway begins.

The stretch of road covered by the petition is the only piece of main road within the city where the state highway department does not come to the city line.

If this petition is granted by the state highway department, it will link in with the Salem and Essex highway, upon which Senator Rogers has presented a petition for state maintenance.

The petition, which was taken to Hartford and left with the highway department by Mr. Backus, reads as follows:

To the State Highway Department, State of Connecticut:

Greetings:—

We, the undersigned, petition your honorable body to take over the maintenance and control of the highway westerly from the city line on West Main street in the town of Norwich to the beginning of the present state highway, a distance of about one and one-half miles.

Mr. Backus has had several communications from Highway Commissioner Bennett in which he states that he understood that this was a part of the highway included in the bill in the present general assembly having to do with added trunk line system between Norwich and Salem. With the assistance of First Selectman Casper K. Bailey and the selectmen and representatives from this vicinity it is expected that this bill will be accepted and the petition granted under the new trunk line system.

GROUNDHOG MAKING GOOD ON WEATHER PREDICTIONS

Ever since that groundhog shipped out of his hole last Friday, took a look around, caught sight of his shadow and sneaked back again shivering as he prepared for six more weeks of winter, the powers that handle the weather have been distinctly with him.

Friday night the official prognosticators came out with a prediction for severe winds and the [illegible] nature of the winter. All day Saturday the mild day looked as if they had guessed right. FENTON CALLS HALT ON MONEY FOR SCHOOL FADS

Hartford, Feb. 6.—Minority Leader Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic of the house of representatives declared today that House Leader John ... would have his whole hearty ... in Buckley's move to ... the state board of ... authority over citizenship courses which it is proposed to extend to private as well as to public schools.

"The state board of education is introducing altogether too many fads into the school system," said the democratic leader, "and it is high time the legislature called a halt. Every new fad adds to the cost of education. In my town, our school expenses have nearly quadrupled in the past twenty years, due largely to the new requirements of the state board, and the same is true all over the state. Moreover the teachers already have all they can do to teach the children what is prescribed, without adding new subjects. Sound teaching of American history is as good instruction in citizenship as any special course can offer."

House Leader Buckley's amendment proposes to strike out a ... in the citizenship bill which would direct the state board of education to prepare and distribute to private and public elementary schools an outline of questions and suggestions relating to the study of citizenship. MARKET EXTREMELY ACTIVE

New York, Feb. 6.—Stock prices were pushed up to new high levels for the year in today's market, the most active of the year, in another aggressive buying movement which was stimulated by more extensive public participation and feverish activity of speculative pools. The market again appeared to ignore the foreign situation, which has exerted a restraining effect on business for the last two months, and took its cue from the more favorable trend of domestic trade and business conditions.

There were several constructive developments to account for the strength and activity of individual groups and shares. These included announcement of higher prices for all grades of wire goods, crude rubber and Cuban raw sugar, publication of the 1922 report of F. W. Woolworth company showing earnings of $27.11 on the common stock as against $20.40 in 1921; the declaration of the Packard Motor car company to call for payment, April 15, all outstanding serial notes, amounting to about $5,030,000.

At 107 1-2 and accrued interest, and an increase of from 1 1-2 to 1 3-4 per cent. in the quarterly dividend of the New Orleans Texas and Mexico railroad.

The upward movement embraced all sections of the list but was particularly effective in the equipments, tobacco dividend paying rails motors and sugars. Considerable profit taking made its appearance in the early afternoon, particularly in the steel shares and some of the high priced specialties, but the offering were well absorbed and gains offerings were well absorbed and gains of 1 to 2 points were quite common at the close.

Speculative railroad stocks forfeited their leadership of that group to the higher grade dividend paying shares, many of which gained 1-4 to 2 1-4 points being recorded by Canadian Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Louisville & Nashville and Southern Pacific while Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Great Northern preferred were not far behind. New Orleans Texas and Mexico advanced nearly 2 points to 31 7-8 on announcement of the higher dividend but reacted a point at the close.

Chandler and Studebaker led the advance in motors, the former closing at 77 1-2 for a net gain of 3 3-4 and the latter touching 121 for a net gain of 3 3-8. Baldwin broke through 137 and then fell back to 126 3-4 where it was [illegible] 1-4 on the day. Some of the other individual strong spots included Pressed Steel Car, Woolworth, American Pump, Famous Players, Am. Agricultural Chem., American Woolen, Gas Electric Storage Battery and Dutch. All up 2 points or more.

BOND MARKET

New York, Feb. 6.—Substantial gains in foreign government securities and speculative railroad mortgages and heaviness of the old United States overnment 4 1-4 per cent. bonds, all of which fell below 99 for net losses of 10 to 25 cents on $100, Featured today's active trading in bonds on the New York stock exchange.

Gains of 1 to nearly 2 1-2 points in Bordeaux 6's, Lyons 6's, Marseilles 6's, Seine 7's, Framerican 7 1-2's, and French 8's carried them 5 to 7 points above the extreme low levels recorded less than two weeks ago. South American issues also were strong, particularly Rio de Janeiro 8's of 1947, Uruguay 8's and Brazil 8's.

In the railroad list the greatest strength and activity was displayed by the St. Paul, Erie, Seaboard Air Line, Chicago & Alton and "Katy" issues with the liens of a few high class dividend payers like Norfolk & Western convertible 6's, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico income 5's and Northern Pacific refunding 6's also showing good gains.

Trading in industrial mortgages was less active but American Smelting 5's Colorado Industrial 5's, U. S. Rubber 7 1-2's, Punta Alegre Sugar 7's and Virginia Carolina Chemical 7's all closed at least a point higher. Chile Copper 7's dropped nearly 1 1-3 points.

Total sales (par value) were $12,306,000.

New issues today totaled about $35,000,000, the largest of which were the $10,000,000 Pacific Gas and Electric 5 1-2 per cent. first and refunding mortgage gold bonds offered at 98 1-2 to yield more than 5.60 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds of the St. Maurice Power company, Ltd., offered at 99 1-2 to yield about 6.55 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Likelihood of peace between Great Britain and Turkey carried prices downward in the grain markets today. Wheat closed heavy, 1-2c to 1 1-2c net lower, with May $1.18 3-8 to 1.18 1-2 and July, $1.13 1-4 to 1.13 3-8. Corn lost 1-2c to 1 1-8c, and oats 3-4 to 7-8 cent. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 3c decline to 12c advance.

Wheat showed some weakness at the outset, but it was only toward the end of the day that the market underwent a decided fall. The difference was that during the earlier dealings many traders seemed to be in doubt as to whether peace talk had any substantial basis. Later dispatches received here, however, were definite enough to bring about general selling, and to leave the market with but little support.

Liberal enlargement of the United States visible supply total together with continued absence of new export business acted further as a weight on values in the wheat market. Besides, snow was falling over much of the winter wheat belt, and although a return of cold weather was looked for the temperatures were expected to be less severe than was recently the case. On the other hand, primary receipts today were smaller than a week ago and as compared with last year's figures.

Notwithstanding that a new high price record for the season was touched in the corn market today by July and September, declines in sympathy with wheat were the rule. Adverse crop news from Argentina failed as a counterbalance. Oats followed corn.

An upturn in the hog market made provisions average higher.

OUTBREAK OF INFLUENZA GROWS MORE SERIOUS

Epidemic Conditions Again Threaten Danger To Thousands

Gain Strength to Resist the Germ by Taking Father John's Medicine.

Health authorities say that an epidemic of influenza is now threatened in many sections of the country and the need for caution is greater than ever. The disease appears to have really come back and while doctors urge calmness, they admit that the danger is everywhere present and every safeguard should be taken.

Your greatest danger from the germ is when your are tired or run down. In this condition your system is unable to fight off the disease germ and you need a strengthening food tonic such as Father John's Medicine to rebuild your resisting power. The pure food elements of Father John's Medicine make new strength and fighting power.

If you catch cold your danger is even greater because colds quickly develop into grip or pneumonia.

Every home should keep Father John's Medicine on hand during this time of danger because it is the logical, safe remedy for colds. Its soothing elements heal the irritated lining of the breathing passages; its gentle laxative effect drives out impurities and its strengthening elements are of great value. Guaranteed absolutely free from alcohol or any dangerous narcotic drugs in any form, Father John's Medicine may be taken with safety by every member of the family.

The danger from cough or cold "cures" containing morphine or opium in any of its disguised forms is especially great at this time because these narcotics weaken the patient, depress the heart action and open the way for more serious illness.

LODGER HAS NARROW ESCAPE IN JEWETT CITY FIRE

Jewett City, Feb. 6.—Great excitement was caused shortly before 8 o'clock Tuesday evening when a fire was discovered in one of the lodging apartments on the upper floor of the Finn theatre block. A man known here as Del Avon occupied the room and when Dennis Barnett broke in the door Avon was found partly suffocated on the bed which was in flames. Mr. Barnett drew him to the hall and returning fought the flames until the firemen arrived. His hands were painfully burned. The belief is that Avon was smoking in bed. Officer McDermott had the man taken to the police station after he had been wrapped in a blanket. He was not burned to any extent.

The lodger next door notified Barnett who was on the theatre floor below. A large audience was in the theatre to see a performance of the Checker Girls, when the alarm was sounded. Thanks to the many exits and a crowd that kept their heads, the main floor and galleries were quickly emptied with little excitement. The firemen made a quick response to Box 14. The streets were packed with people who stood in the snowstorm to watch the firemen. There was no damage to the building.

JEWETT CITY

At the first meeting of the new board of borough government, held Monday evening, Warden Mathew Geary presided. The following assignments were made:

On streets, Warden Geary and Burgesses Kahn and Haskell; on police, Burgesses Kahn and French; on fire, Burgesses Godek and Haskell; on nuisances, Burgesses Godek and French; on building, Warden Geary and Burgesses Godek and Haskell. L. G. Buckingham was elected a member of the electric light commission vice J. F. Hennon, term of office expired.

The funeral services of Ephraim Manny were held from Hourigan Bros. undertaking rooms Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Herbert L. Wilbur, pastor of the Methodist church was in charge of the services. Friends acting as bearers, laid the old man to rest in the Pachaug cemetery.

In a way, he was, as he used to say, a stranger in a strange land. Since his death it has come to be known that fifty years ago, in the south, he was an experienced horse trainer, and handled some of the fastest racers in the southern stables, including the famous Star Pointer.

Howard Campbell, a native of Jewett City, the son of F. S. Campbell, narrowly escaped serious injury last Friday when two ferryboats, the Plainfield and the Catskill collided in the fog off Liberty street, in the lower New York harbor. Mr. Campbell lives in Bayonne, N. J., and commutes to New York every day. He was a passenger on the Plainfield, and was near the point of impact, but his injuries were only minor.

Thoroughbred dogs seem to be furnished from Jewett City lately. A man from here had an advertisement in The Bulletin the other day offering a thoroughbred Collie. He said Tuesday that he could have sold a dozen. Another man sold a pedigreed police dog to a man in a near by city Monday for $125.

In connection with the Knights of Columbus celebration here Sunday, special attention is called to the high class work done by Captain Dan Coogan and his gilt edge degree team of Narragansett council, Westerly. The local class numbered twenty candidates.

At a regular session of Reliance lodge, Monday evening the committee on entertainment reported their duties completed and the entertainment a grand success. A rising vote of thanks was given the committee, also G. A. Haskell for his generous gift of the refreshments. A committee volunteered to act for the next entertainment. They are Norman B. Parkhurst, L. M. Carpenter and Walter Benjamin.

In the account of the American Legion Women's Auxiliary election the name of the secretary should be Mrs. George H. Thornton, and the names of the executive committee should have read: Miss Rose St. John, Miss Mabel McBroome, Mrs. D. F. Finn, Jr., Mrs. John Godek, Mrs. John Oakes, Miss Susie Morgan, Mrs. Lucy Pechie and Miss Martha Davis.

Worshipful Master Norman B. Parkhurst, Senior Warden Dr. Frank D. Brownell, Junior Warden George E. Ball and Worshipful Edwin M. Gray of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M. are in Hartford to attend the anual session of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut.

Gleason, who is a member of the local postoffice force, several brothers and sisters and two grandchildren.

The semi-monthly social of the Mystic Country club is to be held on Thursday. The committee is as follows: Mrs. G. F. B. Leonard, chairman, Mrs. Percy Stowe, Mrs. Raymond Snell, Mrs. John Noyes, Mrs. Llewellyn Kinney and Miss Bertha Foote.

SPRING HILL

About 40 neighbors and friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey C. Davis Friday evening and gave Miss Bertha Smith a surprise consisting of a miscellaneous shower in honor of her approaching marriage with Clarence H. Bosworth. The house was prettily decorated with valentines and large red hearts, groups of two being pierced by Cupid's arrow. A pleasing program of music and readings was given. The program consisted of solos, "Keep Your Neer and Where the Morning Glories Grow, by Mrs. Wayne Stowe; "The Tumbledown Shack in Athlone and My Sunny Tennessee, by Mr. Littleworth; O Heart of Mine and When the Apples Grew on the Lilac Tree, by Miss Frances Davis. An appropriate reading by Mrs. LeRoy Smith, followed by current events of Spring Hill.

After the program, popular songs and games were enjoyed. The gifts were presented in a large container covered with red crepe paper decorated with white hearts. The fun in opening the packages was increased by several jokes, one of which was marked "A manicuring set, with best wishes, to Clarence Bosworth" which consisted of a bread knife and a horseshoer's rasp. The gifts consisted of many useful articles of linen, china, glass and aluminum, etc. Refreshments consisted of sandwiches, cake and coffee.

A large "lovers' cake" was surrounded by hearts and covered with a decoration of feathery fern dotted with red flowers. Over this was an arch covered with cupids from which were suspended two large red hearts joined together with a white ribbon with the knot untied. While the cake was being cut the recipe was read for Lover's Wedding Cake.

The Balkan Jacket Distinguishes The Suits For Spring

Youthfully becoming to the nth degree are the new Suits. Their jaunty jackets, embellished by embroidery or rows of braiding are very intriguing, and the flaring sleeve adds a note that is bound to capture attention. You'll feel tremendously stylish in one of these Suits on the first spring-like day.

There are both two and three-piece Suits among these early arrivals, Poiret Twill and Tricotine being the favored weaves, navy the favored color. The longer more conservative lines have not been overlooked for those of more mature figure, and all are charmingly lined with crepe de chine.

POETRY

WOODLAND SECRETS.

The pleasant things of earth I love;
Upon its breast I like to lie
And watch the little leaves above
That laugh whene'er the wind goes by.
I love the winds—their varied tone
In harmonies forever new;
Sometimes they sing, sometimes they moan
To break one's heart; and I love too
The little breezes in the grass
That only whisper as they pass.

I cannot get too close to earth;
Its ... life forever lures.
I wonder how it comes to birth,
And how it toils, and how endures;
And as I marvel, old theories fade
And new thoughts in my brain are ...
That not for man alone was made
This planet and its verdant crust,
But that the Power that made hath care
For all that lives—and love to spare.

I love to stray the woods along
And strive to make some friends for me
Among the wild folk that have known
Naught of mankind but cruelty.
And how ... I've felt a pang
To see them start, and startled shun
My ... hand—a token of warning rang

And watch them through long hours.

And when acquaintance as they go
And when all effort seems to fail,
Then Fancy takes and ends the tale.

SAYS RELIGIOUS PUBLICITY SHOULD ADVERTISE RELIGION

Religion, not crowds, should be the aim of religious publicity according to Rev. Charles A. McAlpin of New York, speaker at the Baptist Ministers' conference at the First Baptist church in New London Tuesday morning. The church must appeal to the eye as scientifically as does the business man. Seventy-five per cent. of [illegible] we know comes to us through the eyes. No commercial product can hold its own if it loses men's eyes.

A church should advertise religion, not merely meetings where religion is discussed and confirmed. The paper was followed by a lively discussion. Rev. H. J. Chase of Preston City, pastor-elect of the Montauk Avenue church, conducted the book review on Q. E. D. or The New Light on the Doctrine of Creation, by George McCready Price.

A fine luncheon was served by the Women's society of the First Baptist church.

Those present included: Rev. Chester H. Howe, New London First Baptist; Rev. Charles A. McAlpin, New York; Rev. David A. Pitt, Norwich; Rev. A. J. Chandler, New London, Rev. and Mrs. Joseph A. Elder, Huntington Street Baptist; Rev. P. S. Collins, Bozrah; Rev. E. E. Scales, Jewett City Baptist; Rev. F. S. Robbins, acting pastor, North Stonington; Rev. G. H. Prior, Jewett City; Rev. Charles A. Merrill, Noank Baptist church; Rev. W. D. Hetherington, Pritchville; Rev. G. W. Borden, Quaker Hill; Rev. R. J. Chase, Preston City; E. L. Stone, Shelton; Rev. AUTOISTS HOLDING BACK ON RENEWING LICENSES

It has been noticed that automobile operators are rather tardy in securing a renewal of their licenses for the year 1923. All operators' licenses expire Feb. 28. Only a trifle over one-tenth of the licenses have been renewed so far this year. If this evident tardiness continues there may be a rush in the closing days of the month that will seriously inconvenience the motor vehicle department and be annoying to the applicants for a renewal of licenses.

There are now in the state 171,400 licensed motor vehicle operators, 4,061 for public service, and 2,350 motorcyclists, making a total of 177,811 licensed. Of this number only 17,702, in all, have had their licenses renewed. The motor vehicle department desires the fact emphasized that at midnight on Feb. 28 all old licenses expire.

She spoke of the great need in all our home mission field and of her confidence in the operating that Connecticut women would again rise to fill their share in this need.

RAILROAD CUTS FATALITIES WHILE AUTO ACCIDENTS GAIN

Two of the modern methods of transportation of passengers are by motor vehicles over the public highways, and by railroad trains operated over a privately maintained right-of-way. A comparison of the safety incidental to both types of transportation is interesting. During 1922, in the three southern New England states — Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island—there were 848 fatalities chargeable to motor vehicle accidents, which was an increase of 7.3 per cent. over the figures of two years previous.

During the same period the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad reports a decrease in fatal accidents resulting from train operation of 20.7 per cent. This large decrease in railroad accidents is largely the result of the work of the New Haven's [illegible] with increased intensity its campaign against trespassers [illegible] tion of way, with the result that a reduction of 37.3 per cent. from the year previous was brought about. In accomplishing this very substantial decrease, the railroad acknowledges with gratitude the cooperation afforded by the newspapers, public authorities, school superintendents, factory owners, and others along its lines in helping to spread the gospel: Keep off the railroad tracks!

The safety of human life is something in which everyone is interested. The efforts of the railroads in this direction which have been productive of such good results, furnish an example for similar work on the part of those having control of the licensing of motor vehicles.

ANDERSON ADVISED NOT TO MAKE DISCLOSURES

New York, Feb. 7.—William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Men Youth Anti Saloon League, today was advised by his counsel not to reveal to Assistant District Attorney Perora where he got $24,700 to advance the league for publicity, or how he spent it.

"I do not see the usefulness of any disclosures of the names to whom the items constituting this $24,700 were paid," former Senator Edgar T. Brackett, joint counsel for the league and Mr. Anderson, wrote Mr. Pecora. "Not a dollar of it was spent for any corrupt or improper purpose."

When Mr. Pecora learned of this attitude, he announced he probably would not examine Mr. Anderson further—that "the questions will remain unanswered, insofar as this informal inquiry is concerned."

SAVANNAH WELCOMED RETURNING RHINE TROOPS

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 7.—By the Associated Press)—America's "last thousand" came home from Europe today, signalizing the nation's closing action in its participation in the world war.

From the deck of the United States army transport St. Mihiel, the soldiers who kept watch on the Rhine got their first glimpse of their homeland after an absence of five years. With them were French, Belgian and German wives and children who see for the first time the land they are to call home.

Savannah turned out to a man to welcome home in behalf of America the returning troops and to greet the women and children from the country's former allies and enemy nations. The reception began shortly after 10 o'clock this morning when the cutter Yamacraw and the tug McCauley met the transport beyond Tybee bar. At quarantine, a party of congressmen, Governor Thomas W. Hardwich of Georgia, Mayor Paul Seabrook and other state and local officials and army officers boarded the St. Mihiel from the cutter Yamacraw.

As the transport neared Savannah she was greeted by a salvo from the historic cannon, presented to the Chatham artillery by George Washington, and from a battery of French 75's, trophies of the world war. The [illegible] answered each blast with deep-throated [illegible] whistles and sirens throughout the city and on river craft took up the [illegible]

Spectators scattered along a mile and a half of water front kept pace with the transport as she sped up the river. They stormed the docks, overpowering police guards. Fire hoses were brought into play to clear the crowd from about the ship. The stream of water struck members of the congressional reception committee [illegible] the party boarded the transport. The committee, including Senators Harris and Robinson, Congressmen Tolmson, Upshaw, Lankford, Crisp and Hulbwinkle, were [illegible] aboard ship by Colonel Walter T. Bates, of the eighth infantry, in command of the troops.

Debarkation followed the formal welcome in behalf of the nation. The married soldiers stayed aboard with their families while their comrades formed to parade through the city. They were reviewed by Major General Farnsworth and Major General Shanks.

After the parade the enlisted men were guests at a barbecue arranged by the local American Legion post. A dance for the enlisted men and a banquet for the officers kept the arrivals busy tonight.

The St. Mihiel brought back 905 officers and men, comprising two battalions and, service company of the 8th infantry, a detachment of the first engineers, who wear the French Fourragerre for valor; the 20th service company, signal corps and a detachment of medical corps men. The first battalion and service company of the 8th infantry will be stationed here at Fort Screven while the third battalion will go to Fort Moultrie, S. C., to join the second battalion there. The engineers aboard, with the signal and medical corps men, will be landed at New York.

The St. Mihiel was expected to sail at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning for Charleston.

Nearly every state in the union is represented in the personnel landed by the transport, although almost half of the enlisted men were reported from southern states.

Savannah divided its interest between the returning doughboys and their foreign born wives. The wives seemed equally interested in the homeland of their Yankee husbands. They were given first place at the transport's rail as the vessel came up the river. They returned greetings shouted to them from the shore, several holding up children for a glimpse of the throng lining the water front.

There were 65 German wives, four French and two Belgian aboard the transport, with 24 children. Accommodations aboard the transport were not to the liking of the women, they reported. They were quartered in the compartments aft, while their husbands occupied the forward hatches. Sea water for baths, continuous sea sickness and weather that forced them to remain for long periods below decks were outstanding difficulties, the women said. Chapped faces and hands were exhibited by men and women alike, as mementos of the voyage.

Several of the war brides will not remain in the United States, their husbands say, who declare they intend to return to Germany when they have obtained discharges from the service.

UPHOLDS THE PRESENT ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Premier Drury of Ontario today informed a temperance delegation that in his opinion the present Ontario temperance act should remain undisturbed.

This was construed to mean that the provincial government does not intend to support the proposition for a vote to the people to permit the sale of beer and foreing wine in this province.

Only sixteen states have been free from lynchings in the last ten years.

Capital Punishment for German Sabotage

French Sentries Ordered to Fire to Kill—Measure Necessary to Stop Destruction.

Duesseldorf, Feb. 7.—(By The A. P.)—The death penalty will be inflicted on Germans caught in the act of tampering with railroad equipment or signal boxes or for other acts of sabotage endangering the lives of travelers, the French authorities announce. This is the first time threats of capital punishment have been made by the occupying authorities.

Sentries have been ordered to fire to kill upon any person approaching railroad crossings, tower houses or stations and refusing to halt after the customary challenge. The French say that these measures are necessary, owing to increasing destructiveness on the part of the Germans.

General Jacquotte explained today that the military law provides capital punishment for such offenses, and declared that if the Germans in obeying the orders of "the committee for defense and reprisals in the Ruhr," persist in these outrages no mercy will be shown.

Agents of the committee are circulating freely in the Ruhr, especially from Elberfeld, which is less than two miles from the extreme advance posts of the French occupation at Dornap. Troops completely encircle Elberfeld, the line running from Dornap to Vohwinkel, thence southeast to Lennep, then to Honberg to the north, and again west to Wulfrath.

The newly occupied area is in sullen mood, the populace being sulky and refusing to hail the same, serve food in the restaurants to the French or salute the French officers and making every attempt to render the life of the troops unbearable. The womanfolk have been threatened by the male element with chosen heads if seen conversing with French officers or soldiers.

Commander Bezaux at Vohwinkel does not appear to be worried, however saying: "They will come around all right soon." He added that he was doing his utmost to avoid friction by billeting the troops in public buildings and not in dwelling houses.

French control of the railroad yards around Elberfeld prevents the export of any coal to southern Germany. The Germans have not attempted to pass coal through the cordon, but late last night tried to ship by wagon a car train of benzol, which was confiscated. The service lines running to Cologne from Elberfeld are normal, but the Bavarian Palatinate is at a complete standstill, as are Mayence, Coblenz and the entire occupied area in the Rhineland and the Ruhr.

The citizens of Elberfeld [illegible] night [illegible] exploded [illegible] the commencement of the city and do not discriminate between the different nationalities of foreigners. Correspondents crossing the city were halted and made to show their passports, but the police refused to make any effort to check the angry crowds around the automobiles threatening physical violence to "the swine foreigners."

The explanation that the correspondents were English and American brought the retort: "You are just as bad as the French and by don't you [illegible] them [illegible] the Ruhr [illegible]

The output in the [illegible] ten per cent of normal, yet the commercial [illegible] Cologne [illegible] French today placed an embargo on gondola cars leaving the Ruhr whether loaded or light.

FRENCH OCCUPATION IS COSTLY TO GERMANY

Berlin, Feb. 7.—(By The A. P.)—French occupation of the Ruhr up to and including February 4 cost approximately 374,000,000 marks in supplies furnished by the Germans, according to figures announced in official quarters. There is some discussion as to whether France or Germany ultimately will bear this expense. The German newspapers contend it is a French liability because the occupation was not authorized by international law or the Versailles treaty.

Reports have reached here that the Villa Huegel, home of the Krupp family, has been occupied and is used by three generals, seventeen other officers and their staffs.

10,000 TO 30,000 NEEDLE WORKERS ON STRIKE IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 7.—The state this afternoon attempted to take a hand in a strike of several thousand dress and waist makers which went into effect this morning.

Industrial Commissioner Shientag, through his mediators, attempted to get in touch with officials of the dress and waist makers' union and the association of dress manufacturers for the purpose of conducting an informal inquiry. His men, however, were unsuccessful, and Mr. Shientag indicated he thought it bad policy to issue subpoenas.

Union leaders claimed that the strike order had been strictly obeyed and that 10,000 to 30,000 workers had marched out of several hundred shops. The manufacturers, on the other hand, after maintaining silence all morning, finally issued a statement denying the union's claims and terming the strike a failure.

Leaders of the strike asserted its chief purpose was to enforce demands for weekly salaries instead of piecework pay, but Herman L. Flam, president of the Manufacturers' association, asserted that coupled with that demand were others which the employers could not grant and remain in business.

One of these, he said, was that if a worker was retained after a week's trial, he was to be retained for life. Another, he added, was that no manufacturer should take in a new partner without approval by the union and that if the new partner previously had been engaged in business, his workers also would have to be hired.

SUICIDED AFTER QUARREL WITH CHINESE HUSBAND

New York, Feb. 7. — A girl who claimed to have been married to Lee Jung, a Boston Chinese, knocked today on the door of a Mott street suite occupied by Mrs. Loretto Chin, another white woman, told her that she had quarreled with her husband in Boston; produced a bottle from which she drank and a few hours later died.

Mrs. Chin told the police she knew the girl only as Margie and that they had both worked in Boston as telephone operators. The police believe the girl was weakened by opium smoking until her nerves snapped.

Central American Conventions Signed

Treaty of Peace and Amity Designed to Insure Internal and International Peace.

Washington, Feb. 7.—The Central American conference, which began December 4 at the invitation of President Harding, was concluded today in the hall of the Americas of the pan-American union with Secretary Hughes presiding and the plenipotentiaries of Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica expressing gratification over its success.

A treaty of peace and amity, eleven conventions and three protocols designed to bring about closer relations and to insure the maintenance of internal and international peace among the Central American republics, were signed at the final plenary session, which was attended by members of the diplomatic corps and high officials of the United States.

Costa Rica refrained from signing a convention establishing free trade among the other four republics, and the United States agreed to join the other five in the establishment of commissions of inquiry and an international arbitration tribunal.

Secretary Hughes, who acted as chairman of the conference and of its committee of the whole, through which the actual negotiations were conducted, replying to the expressions of gratification and thanks of the Central American plenipotentiaries, voiced "our earnest desire to promote the general interests of peace in this hemisphere and to aid you in finding a solution of your own problems to your own proper advantage."

The treaty signed by the five Central American delegations recognizes the maintenance of peace as the first duty of their governments and pledges each not to recognize any government resulting from a revolution. Each signatory also agrees not to intervene in the internal affairs of any other, nor to permit the organization within its territory of a revolutionary movement directed against any recognized government. Secret treaties are barred.

Differences arising between the republics which lack sufficient gravity to warrant arbitration are to be considered by commissions of inquiry. An arbitration tribunal is to be formed for the handling of graver disputes, and will be composed of judges selected in a manner similar to the procedure of The Hague court.

In furtherance of the peace policy, a convention limiting armaments for five years was signed.

RIVERS AND HARBORS ITEM OCCUPIED SENATE

Washington, Feb. 7. For the second consecutive day, the senate devoted its entire session today to discussion of the $56,000,000 rivers and harbors item in the annual annual army bill but an agreement was finally reached for voting to stand on all pending amendments not later than 4 p. m. tomorrow.

The debate, beginning as soon as the senate convened, covered a wide range of argument for and against waterway transportation and related topics, including the constitutional [illegible] federal government to assume jurisdiction over intra-state lakes and streams for purposes other than that of insuring navigation. With few exceptions, every senator present was drawn into the debate.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, whose amendment reducing the item to $7,000,000, as recommended by the budget bureau, inaugurated the day's debate, declared many projects provided for in the lump appropriation would not assist commerce "one penny," and were indefensible from any standpoint. They embodied in some cases, he said, improvement of rivers, "down which a duck couldn't swim."

FORECASTS ADVANCE IN PRICE OF MEN'S CLOTHING

Boston, Feb. 7.—An advance of $5 a suit on medium grade men's clothing was forecast today by Julius C. Morse, of this city, vice president of the National Retail Clothiers' association, in an address at the annual convention of the New England association.

"I believe the present high prices of cloth will hold for the next two years," he said, "with slight variations either way. But certainly not to return to prices as low as a year ago. There is no danger of a buyers' strike because the advance to the consumer for next year can be held down to a $5 bill on medium grade clothing.

The association adopted a code of ethecs affirming that advertising constitutes a covenant with the public and that statements made in advertising were as binding as an oath and as sacred as a personal pledge.

WIDOW OF REV. E. W. HALL HAS SAILED FOR ITALY

New York, Feb. 7.—While scores of reporters sought her on another liner, Mrs. Frances Noel Stevens Hall, widow of the Reverend Edward Wheeler Hall, of New Brunswick, N. J., who was murdered last September with Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, a choir singer, sailed for Italy today on the America. The vessel touches tomorrow at Boston.

Mrs. Hall was accompanied by Miss Sally Peters, who acted as her confident and adviser during the long and fruitless investigation of the double slaying.

Neither name appeared on advance lists of the America's passengers. It had been announced that Mrs. Hall would sail today on the Mauretania, which put out for a 66-day Mediterranean cruise.

ARMY FLYING MACHINE SAVED WOODSMAN'S LIFE

Charlevoix, Mich., Feb. 7.—An army fighting machine and medical science, today saved the life of Jesse Cole, a woodsman, who was injured Monday on Beaver Island, an inaccessible dot in Lake Michigan which physicians were unable to reach, because of ice conditions, until an airplane was called into service.

A plane from Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, safely made the trip to Charlevoix this morning, picked up Dr. A. N. Armstrong here and carried him to the cabin where Cole had been suffering with a fractured skull. An operation was performed and late today the patient had recovered consciousness. Dr. Armstrong reported he (undoubtedly) would recover.

PRESIDENT URGES CONGRESS TO APPROVE BRITISH DEBT SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Chief Executive Personally Appeared Before Joint Session in Advocacy of Prompt Action—Declared Frankly His Opposition to the Attaching of a Soldiers' Bonus Bill to the Legislation—Party Managers in the House Predict Action by That Body Within a Week—Senate Advocate of the Debt Measure Are Determined That Action on the Matter Will Not be Delayed Long.

Washington, Feb. 7. — President Harding personally urged upon congress today that it not only approve promptly the British debt settlement agreement, but that it also come to a decision, one way or another, at this session on the administration shipping bill.

There is time, abundant time, for decisive action on both these tremendously important questions," he declared. "Either is fit to be recorded a chapter in great achievement and both will mark a signal triumph. I remind you that both are inseparably related to our good fortunes at home and our high place in the world.

Approval of the debt settlement, for the formal submission of which the president went to the capitol, was forecast by republican leaders. The first step along the legislative way was taken immediately after Mr. Harding concluded his address before a joint session of the house and senate in the house chamber, identic bills amending the existing debt funding law being introduced in both branches.

Party managers in the house predicted action by that body within a week at the latest, but the situation in the senate was less clear. Some leaders there favored calling up the debt bill immediately after the house acted, but others thought there should be first a renewed effort to obtain a vote on the shipping bill. Advocates of early consideration of the debt measure insisted, however, that whatever the final decision, action on this legislation would not be delayed long.

The senate situation was regarded in some quarters as foreshadowing ultimate failure of the shipping bill, but its supporters insisted that it would be passed. Direct reference to the senate situation was made by Mr. Harding, who told congress he had ventured to allude to the shipping bill, because it "had been threatened" that it shall not be allowed to come to a vote."

The executive offered no suggestion as to which of the measures should have procedure, nor did he make any recommendation as to the form the legislation approving the debt settlement should take. He did state frankly, however, his opposition to the attaching of a soldiers' bonus to the legislation, declaring that congress should give "a frank, exclusive and direct decision, uninvolved by any disposition of the monies which the funding programme ultimately will bring to the federal treasury."

In urging approval of the agreement recently reached by the American and British debt commissions, Mr. Harding declared that the agreement was "a recommitment of the English speaking world to the validity of contract."

"It is in effect a plight against war and war expenditures," he said, adding that it was "a covenant of peace no less effective than it would be if joint British and American opposition to war were expressly agreed upon." Again he declared it was "an example of encouragement and inspiration when the world is staggering in discouragement and bowed with the sorrows of years that were the fears of wars which humanity is praying may be avoided."

Failure of the British undertaking, the executive continued, "would have spread political and economic discouragement throughout the world." Success of that undertaking was declared to be "a new element of financial and economic stabilization, when the world is sadly needing a reminder of the ways of peace."

COOLIDGE'S REMEDY FOR NATION'S DIFFICULTIES

New York, Feb. 7.—In a change of heart and not in a change of treaties, or constitutions or laws will be found the ultimate remedy for the nation's difficulties, Vice President Calvin Coolidge declared tonight in an address at a dinner given by the Prudential Insurance company.

War—of nations and of classes—Mr. Coolidge declared, was the source of the people's greatest burdens and the nation's most disturbing problems. He pointed out that elimination of the evils and huge expenses attendant upon conflict and its aftermath was the most important element in a return to peace and contentment.

Peace and an ordered governance in accordance with standing law constitute a first necessity, he said. Only in such a society—one which posses stability—can there be economic progress.

"In spite of appearance," Mr. Coolidge went den, "our country made no profit out of the war, while only loss is apparent in the recent strike in the coal fields and in the railroad shops, and in industrial strife generally. Always it has been peace, obedience to law and industrial harmony which have been the contributing factors to that American business success which is reflected in the general prosperity of the people."

Mr. Coolidge pointed out that national security for a single year costs the United States $2,624,000,000 out of a budget of $3,078,000,000. Added to this, he said, were the costs of industrial strife.

"Directly and indirectly," he said, "this may reach a total of $2,000,000,000 during a year."

SNOW STORMS COSTLY TO GREATER NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 7.—Disposal of this year's snows in greater New York will cost the municipality something like $190,000 an inch, it was estimated today after the city board of estimate had appropriated an additional $1,000,000 to keep the snow removal department functioning.

There have been approximately 16 inches of snow so far this winter, compared with a normal fall of 26 inches and $3,500,000 has been appropriated for cleaning up after the storms. Of the first appropriation—$2,500,000—all but $200,000 has been spent.

Approximately seven inches of snow had fallen with the conclusion of the storm today. This is the season's record fall.

Preceded by a spell of exceedingly cold weather, the storm has caused some distress among families who have had difficulty in obtaining coal. Threats directed against the Brooklyn borough fuel administration by chilly householders have caused that department to ask police to station a patrolman at the door of fuel headquarters.

Storm conditions were well in hand tonight. The weather bureau's promised renewal of snow had not materialized by evening and the street cleaning department had succeeded in opening up all the busiest streets in the greater city. Transportation conditions, somewhat demoralized during the earlier hours, were again normal, with incoming trains arriving on time.

547 MILLIONAIRES SAIL FOR PLEASURE CRUISE

New York, Feb. 7.—The liner Mauretania, charted at a cost of $1,250,000, sailed with 547 millionaires and near millionaires on the most costly pleasure cruise ever arranged in New York.

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, with Mrs. Gary and a party of friends, occupied the Mauretania's two "royal" suites. American Express company charts showed the cost for the two suites to have been $40,500. The cheapest accommodations on the liner were held at $1,000.

Mr. Gary declined to discuss business topics.

"I am going for a rest and a pleasure trip," he said. "No business whatever."

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
26 Church Street Telephone 1023

P. A. Raymond of the Raymond-Pur Corporation, New York city was in this city Wednesday and held a conference with Mayor Charles A. Gates and First Selectman Russell A. Andrews to interest them in the matter of securing coal for Willimantic. The coal can be secured by any town in Connecticut and is known as the British admiralty, mined in Wales, Great Britain. The coal will be shipped either from New York, New London or Norwich and the price aboard ship is $9.25 per long ton. Mr. Raymond stated that the price per ton for unloading from the ship to barges would be 90 cents and 20 cents for loading from barges to coal cars. The price per long ton would then be $10.35.

The freight charged, if the coal came from Norwich, would be $1.19, which would bring the cost to $11.45 to the consumer, plus the hauling charges. The total cost would be one-third less than the prices charged by local dealers for American coal with 30 per cent substitutes.

The British admiralty coal is of good quality, giving one hundred per cent greater heat than Pennsylvania coal and with less ashes, explained Mr. Raymond.

The idea is for customers to club together and to order carload lots which will be shipped from points where barges unload onto railroad cars to points of destination.

Mr. Raymond concluded that arrangements could be made for the shipping of 4,000 tons of coal to Willimantic alone. The tons will be long (2,240 pounds).

State Policeman John Regan and an assistant were in this city recently testing weights and measures with especial care to those of coal dealers and gasoline service stations.

One coal merchant was found to be delivering more coal than his orders called for when Officer Regan held a driver of the Sussman Coal Company and asked the man how much coal he had on the truck. The answer was two tons, 4,000 pounds, to be delivered at the home of Dr. Louis L. Mason at Fairview Heights. Officer Regan made the driver return to the coal yard with his load and he proceeded to weigh it. He then weighed the empty truck and the difference showed that there had been 4,055 pounds of coal on the load or 55 pounds overweight. Mr. Sussman was complimented for his congenial manner of doing business with his customers.

The annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Joseph's hospital was held recently at the nurse's home. Reports were read by the president, treasurer and chairmen of various committees all of which showed good work for the past year.

There were 828 articles and garments made during the year for use in the hospital and the making of these received much assistance from Mrs. Ellen Mathewson of Warrenville, by the Ladies' Aid Society of the local Congregational church, by Mrs. James Johnson of Scotland, by Mrs. Harold Maine and Mrs. Martha A. Pendleton of Windham and Mrs. H. C. Lathrop for the missionary society of the Congregational Society of the Congregational church in Windham.

A unanimous vote of thanks was extended these women whose assistance is deeply appreciated.

It was voted to give a social and dance in April as a means of raising funds to conduct the work of the auxiliary for the current year. Mrs. James Aspinwall was named as the chairman with Mrs. A. C. Scripture in charge of refreshments and Miss Agnes Nelligan cashier.

In her report the president thanked the officers and active members for their cooperation during the year, also the sustaining members for the annual fee of $1 which proves so helpful in carrying on the auxiliary.

The following officers were re-elected for the year: President, Mrs. John Reilly; vice presidents, Mrs. A. C. Scripture; Miss Clarrie Stiles and Mrs. F. P. Moriarty; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Herrick; recording secretary, Miss Agnes Nelligan; financial secretary, Mrs. James Hurley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. E. Gould.

Miss Katherine Bates Bennett of New Rochelle, a dramatic reader of great ability, successfully impersonated 14 characters in presenting The Yellow Jacket. The play is a Chinese drama and was very much appreciated by the audience.

The remainder of the program consisted of violin and piano selections Forest Whispers, two violinist selections, by Miss Elizabeth M. Case, violinist, and Ruth W. Pollard at the piano.

The local police department was notified Wednesday afternoon that a Dodge touring car had been parked in front of Labor Union hall on Main street for four days. The wrecking of still another silent policeman was added to the casualty list Wednesday afternoon when a large beef delivery truck owned by the Wilson company of New London and driven by Fred W. Marooney of Waterford struck and smashed one of the "cops" at the corner of Main and High streets. The matter was reported to police headquarters and arrangements were made for a settlement.

Oliver Twist at the Strand Theatre.

That little Jackie Coogan has finally come into the period of his greatest possibilities was the opinion of house filling throngs at the Strand theatre yesterday when Oliver Twist was presented. That Jackie equalled with his precocious genius and his marvelous instinct for acting, all the opportunities the role of Oliver afforded him was equally certain, and that he will have extended his circle of admirers by many millions more throughout the world, is in the nature of an axiom, so sure it is.

An inherently vigorous story has been wedded of pieces of the original Dickens' novel and this wedding process is entirely Frank Lloyd's, who not only adapted the scenario from the book, but directed the making of the picture with his usual—indeed unusual—skill. Nothing that Lloyd has done is a finer manifestation of the director's scope of vision. His understanding of human emotions and his capacity to handle intimate scenes with feeling and tumultuous episodes (like that of the chase after Oliver and the capture after Fagin) with powerful, thrilling realism were fully disclosed.

Producer Lesser did not content himself with just one star, either. He surrounded his principal luminary with the best players available for the various roles. Jon Chaney's Fagin merits an article all his own, so graphic and perfect was the picture of "the merry old gentleman." In a single word it is Chaney's most effective piece of portraiture.

Oliver Twist which is a First National Attraction will remain at the Strand theatre for three more days. A comedy and News completed the program.

Gala Keith Vaudeville Bill at the Broadway.

A very promising program of B. F. Keith vaudeville has been arranged at the Broadway theatre for the last half of this week starting today.

For the second time within a short period, Jack Holt, Paramount star, appears in an adaptation of a popular Peter B. Kyne story, Making a Man, which will be on view at the Broadway theatre today, Friday and Saturday. Recently he was the star of While Satan Sleeps, in which he scored a knockout success.

Making a Man is the story of a wealthy young snob, A tyrant among his employes and neighbors alike, who puts one straw too many on the camel's back, so to speak. His life threatened, he escapes to New York. There he loses the little money and clothing he took in his hurried flight, and finds himself unable to draw on his credit. Broke, hungry and tired, he meets on a park bench, "Shorty" McCabe, a down-and-outer. From Shorty the man Winsby, played by Mr. Holt, learns the definition of a real man. Of course, there is a girl in the story, this role being done by Eva Novak. Others in the cast include Bert Woodruff, Frank Nelson, Robert Dudley, J. P. Lockney and Kalla Pasha.

Let this trial offer prove for you at our expense whether more Iron in your blood will make you well and strong Physician tells why you must have Iron to give you Health, Strength, Energy and Endurance.

"Lack of iron in your blood produces the most terrible of all devitalizing weaknesses and makes a man or woman a physical and mental wreckling, nervous, irritable and easily tired out," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician at Bellevue Hospital (Out-door Dept.) and the Westchester County Hospital. "It is the iron in your blood that takes up oxygen from your lungs. The food you eat contains carbon. As digested food is absorbed into the blood, the carbon in the food unites with the oxygen and iron in your blood, and by so doing gives off tremendous power and energy, thereby giving you great force, physical and mental vigor, and producing the material which becomes active, living cells, flesh, muscle, bone and tissue, thus performing one of the most remarkable miracles of life. Without iron, even three big meals a day will not do you any good—you do not get any strength out of your food—it is like putting coal into a stove without a fire."

Blood examinations by physicians all over the country show that three people out of every four do not get enough iron in their blood, often due to modern methods of cooking and modern diet. For centuries scientists tried in vain to produce iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, beefsteak and apples. At last the problem was solved, so that you can now obtain this newer form of iron from any druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron, which is ready for immediate absorption by the blood the moment it enters the system. A single daily dose of this newer form of iron gives your blood the opportunity of assimilating iron in concentrated form, iron like the iron that you could get by eating raisins, apples or spinach. It is often remarkable what a tremendous amount of pep, vigor, force and energy a little more iron will give a person whose blood is deficient in this important substance. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time.

Trial Coupon
Fill in this coupon with your name and address and take it to any druggist in your city. Deposit with him the price of one regular full-size bottle of Nuxated Iron. This is not a payment, but a deposit only. It is still your money. If you are not more than delighted with the results obtained by two weeks' use of Nuxated Iron, simply return the empty bottle to your own druggist who will promptly refund your money. We will repay the druggist the full amount he refunds upon receipt of the coupon and wrapper.

When Willem Mengelberg conducted the Philharmonic orchestra for the concert last week in Carnegie Hall, he gave something for his hearers to think about and take away with them in his performance of Beethoven's "Ervica" Symphony. It was a performance of surpassing beauty and power.

The soloist was Frederic Lamond, a British pianist of Scotch extraction, who has made a great reputation in Europe. Mr. Lamond wishes to escape from his repute as a "specialist" in Beethoven, which has pursued him for many years, it is no shame to be a "specialist" in Beethoven, but he can also play other men's music.

In the New York concert he played Brahms' second piano concerto in B flat. It was a performance extremely fine. The music was conceived in the largest mold and was played with great vehemence and power, with a really splendid sweep. It seemed to convince all that Mr. Lamond can play something besides Beethoven's music. His audience was stirred to demonstrative applause and the gifted pianist was recalled.

Single tickets, $2. Course tickets $6.00 (4 concerts). Tickets are on sale at The Cranston Co.

Breed Theatre.

One of the most fascinating productions ever seen in Norwich—a story of love, mystery and intrigue, which is the feature at the Breed theatre today. It is called The Mysterious Rider and it is adapted to the screen from the novel by Zane Grey.

A splendid all-star cast enacts the story which is replete with rare comedy as well as drama, suspense, romance and adventure. The judicious injection and subtle treatment of comedy in the serious matter of the play was a feature which put last night's audience in a strongly appreciative frame of mind.

The picture deals with the love affair of Columbine—ably and artistically played by the beautiful Claire Adams, and Wilson Moore (Carl Gantvoort) while a little sub-plot funny enough and complete enough to be a comedy in itself depicts the efforts of the ranch cowboys to keep their unattractive, aggressively-inclined but professionally marvelous cook Maria, from deserting the ranch because of her lonesomeness for a "steady." One of their number, Lem Billings, played by that master comedian, Frank Hayes, is forced by the drawing of a card to become her suitor. With this situation as a base a joyous little comedy is enacted, artistically paralleling the event serious theme of the story. Too much cannot be said of the highly talented aggregation of artists assembled by Benjamin B. Hampton, the producer, for the proper enacting of this great story. Robert McKim, Claire Adams, Carl Gantvoort, Maude Wayne, Frederick Starr, James Mason, Walter Whitman, Frank Hayes and Aggie Herring play the principal roles and each and every one of them is simply ideal in his or her part.

Nero Shows Famous Holocaust.

The scene in Nero where the tyrannical ruler stands upon a balcony of his palace and watches the flames devour the city of Rome illustrates one of the famous facts of history. Jacques Greitlad, the celebrated French actor who plays the part of the wicked emperor, gives a marvelously life-like portrayal of the character. It will be recalled that Nero set fire to the city himself in order that he might gain an inspiration and write a song that would show off the beauty of his singing voice. The French actor's handling of this scene brings out the colossal conceit of the selfish, brutal tyrant.

The newest club is sponsored by a number of wealthy men and the incorporation papers stated that club is not for profit but for the encouragement of clean and healthful racing. JOHNSON AND WILLARD MATCHED TO FIGHT AT GARDEN ON MAY 12TH

New York, Feb. 7.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, and Floyd Johnson, of Iowa, aspirant to the world's title, were matched today to meet May 12, in a 15-round bout to a decision at the new Yankee stadium, for the benefit of the milk fund of the mayor's committee of women. The boxers were guaranteed $25,000 each.

Although he has announced that he was opposed to holding heavyweight bouts because of the large amounts of money involved, Chairman William Muldoon of the state boxing commission has approved the Willard-Johnson bout because the net proceeds will go to charity.

The bout may lead the winner to an encounter with Jack Dempsey, the title holder, as both men have been in the forefront of recent discussions of the next battle for the world's championship. It was pointed out tonight that sentiment toward a title bout may change sufficiently after the Willard-Johnson battle is held to warrant Chairman Muldoon changing his mind.

Willard, who has been training daily in the gymnasium at Madison Square Garden, will look for a permanent camp site in the next few days and probably will locate near Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Johnson, who also has been training in the metropolitan district, likewise will probably move upstate.

The annual bout for the milk fund last year was between Tom Gibbons of St. Paul and Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, light-heavyweights, and produced $75,000 for the charity. It was estimated today that the Willard-Johnson fight would net about $300,000 for the fund, as the capacity of the Yankee stadium is several times that of Madison Square Garden, where Greb defeated Gibbons.

It was originally intended to match Gibbons with Johnson for the 1923 milk fund, but Willard was substituted and the St. Paul man probably will meet another opponent in the garden ring on March 19.

Both bouts are under the management of Tex Rickard. The Yankee representative is understood, ter[illegible] [illegible] stadium without cost to the [illegible] committee.

In order to promote athletic competition the officials of the Southern Amateur Athletic [illegible] contemplate presenting an all-round prize to the best athlete. The contestants will be required to compete in at least four of nine sporting events to be selected by the committee.

Michigan's baseball schedule will comprise 24 games, these including the Southern games in the spring as well as the games of the regular season. Two games with Western State Normal, one at Kalamazoo May [illegible] the other at Ann Arbor May 26 have been added to the card, Coach Ray Fisher has announced.

The steamer John N. Worth of the Thames River line succeeded in reaching her dock about 7 o'clock Wednesday night after having been stuck fast in the ice in the Thames river about seven hours. The steamer came up the river, breaking the ice before her, and all went well until the boat reached the point at the mouth of the Shetucket river where the Cape Cod had trouble with the ice Tuesday. Here at noon the boat went hard and fast on to the ice which was piled to the river bottom. For hours the men worked with axes endeavoring to chop the ice away from her bow, hoping that the weight of her Norwich-bound cargo would send her down through into the water.

Later in the day a tug came to the aid of the boat and the two succeeded in breaking out the ice and making the remainder of the trip to the dock. The return trip to New York will be made as soon as possible.

The sight of the boats in the harbor, icebound, attracted wide attention Wednesday evening and crowds watched the men working to get the Worth to her dock.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

STARTING FOR CANDY DATE

Now, let me see, we left off in the last story, just as Little Jack Rabbit fastened a rope around the beak of old Hungry Hawk, who had poked his nose through a knothole in the shed where the two little rabbits and Squirrel Nutcracker were hiding.

"Oh, don't let go that rope, I beg, I wish you'd tied it round his leg. It may slip off this beak and then, How would you tie it on again?"

"Don't worry, Uncle Lucky," said Little Jack Rabbit. "I've got him fast," and then, the little rabbit tied the other end of the rope to a hook in the wall and after that, he opened the door:

"Come on, let's get away from here Now is the time, the coast is clear. We'll leave this old hawk to his fate. And get back home before it's late."

So, Uncle Lucky slid into the Sledmobile with Little Jack Rabbit and Squirrel Nutcracker, and then, away they went as fast as a comet and maybe faster and by and by, after a while, they saw a great big pile of snow right in the middle of the road.

"Goodness gracious weebus!" exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit. "We'll never be able to get through that, nor over it unless I can make the sledmobile jump," and just then, all of a sudden, a little brown bear came around from the back of the snowdrift and said:

"I've got my little house under the snow
So, please be careful where you go.
You'd better turn round and go away,
For I want my nice snow house to stay."

"Well, this is a fine kettle of fish," said Uncle Lucky. "Look here, little bear, why didn't you build your house some other place?"

"Because," answered the little bear, "the bridge at the end of the road is broken down and I'm here to tell all the people about it."

"Well, why didn't you tell us that at first?" said Squirrel Nutcracker, "it would have saved a great deal of time," and after that, Uncle Lucky turned the sledmobile around and off they went, and by and by, in a little while and thirty seconds, they came to a cross roads and on a big sign post was written:

"Take the road to the right, beyond wish.
To go to the town of Jellyfish.
The road to the right will take you straight,
To a pretty town called "Candy Date."

"Which way shall we go?" asked Uncle Lucky.

"It isn't Friday, so what's the use of going to Jellyfish town?" said Nutcracker.

"All right, then, we'll go to Candy Date," said Little Jack Rabbit, and in the next story you shall hear what happened in Candy Date Town.

WESTERLY

James J. Moore and a party of friends motored to Providence Wednesday evening to attend a theatre.

The following Westerly people have left town to take part in the annual winter sports at Bethel, Maine; Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Price, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Burdick, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stanton, Dr. and Mrs. Albert H. Spicer, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Campbell, Mr. and and Mrs. Frank Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Utter, and the Misses Ruth Taylor, Katherine Foster, Dorothy Ward and Mrs. Daniel H. Larkin.

The regular financial town meeting was held Tuesday evening and there was a large gathering of voters and several ladies were present. Heated discussions were had when the different appropriations were read. The appropriation for the public schools was $116,500 and in addition to this a special appropriation of $3600 for the purchase of three lots from the Hannah Crandall estate on High street was made.

A lot of argument was heard in regard to the roads and the amounts of money that should be spent on them. Many taxpayers expressed their grievances at the conditions of the streets where their property was located. An appropriation of $65,000 was made for the roads and the sum of $40,000 was voted for the Bradford road on the condition that the state pay a like amount, the total to be expended on this road to be $80,000. An extra appropriation of $10,000 was made for the White Rock road, the work to start at Babcock's corners and to be continued as far as that amount will permit.

An appropriation of $14,500 was asked for the Westerly police department and this was met by statements from various citizens to the effect that the police department of Westerly is already too costly and efforts should be made to reduce the present costs of that department. After much discussion on this matter the resolution asking for $14,500 was adopted. While this vote was decided by those in favor standing, and those opposed remaining seated, it has been questioned whether the matter was fairly decided. In this meeting as in most meetings there are always a lot of the voters who prefer to stand in the rear of the hall rather than be seated. They were apparently counted on the first vote and there is a great question in the minds of several voters whether they were accounted for on the second vote when those opposed to the police appropriation were asked to stand.

Rep. Samuel H. Davis introduced a resolution asking for the sum of $2,000 to fight the mosquito at the local beaches. Simon P. Nichols of the Potter Hill road said that there were as many mosquitoes last year as he had ever seen after a summer of experimenting in their extermination. He suggested a compartment of wire to be arranged for those inhabitants who could not stand the mosquito menace, said compartment to be designed and maintained by themselves.

The sum of $3,500 was appropriated for the expenses of the town hall.

The sum of $6,000 was voted for the poor department and $1,000 for the Westerly poor in hospitals.

James O. Lynch was before the meeting and objected to several of the items in the budget and asked that an explanation be made of several of the expenditures in the past, namely an appropriation of $1200 for the automobile for the Westerly police department which was never procured. He also asked to have explained a balance of $800 in the road commissioner's department.

It was unanimously voted at the regular meeting of Narragansett Council, No. 21, K. of C. held Tuesday evening that the report of the committee investigating the debate in the Westerly High school held recently be accepted as satisfactory and as far as the K. of C. was concerned the matter was closed. A vote of thanks was extended to the committee.

ETORRS CHAPLAIN CHALLENGES DR. GRANT TO DEBATE

Rev. Marshall Dawson, chaplain of Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, has sent a letter to Dr. Percy Stickney Grant of the Church of the Ascension New York city, challenging him to debate. In his letter to Dr. Grant Chaplain Dawson says:

"I am on the basis of 20th century biology, psychology and economics. I will offer to meet you in debate upon the proposition announced by you as appearing in the New York Times of Monday, viz., that St. Paul's doctrine of the evil of man's nature and fitness for a hope beyond the grave is both outside and false. As evidence of my right to propose such a meeting with so eminent a leader as yourself I enclose a page from the Boston Transcript from which it will appear that you (in the Boston editor's opinion) are quite as black a heretic to biology as the New York papers give to yours."

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Much interest bearing on the financial affairs of the town may be found through a study of certain tax collecting memoranda made available through the filing of the recent report of Tax Collector George A. Williams and of the tax money returned at the selectmen's office for the six months ending January 31, 1923, as follows:

Property	Sprink.	Interest	Pts. & Fees	Pers
1922.	$ 671.86		$ 28.77	$ 4.00
918.	782.65		50.37	6 09
919	186.56		54.33	6 00
920.	$32,782.48	$213.56	$3,382.43	$70.00
921.	27,861.03		1,427.77	44.00
Total	$62,739.39	$213.56	$4,894.77	$130.00

Uncollected taxes at end of fiscal year, July 31, '22 amounted to $67,193.72

Less above total 62,305.56

It will be noted that the recent heavy collections on the lists of 1919 and 1920 were also accompanied by increased money and less amounting to practically, a sum to be sheared at

Next the annual financial meeting of the town is to be held during the coming month, when the board of relief will have completed its labors. One of the duties of this meeting will be to set the tax rate for 1923. In view of the back taxes that have come so recently to swell the town bank account, what rate will the taxpayers fix? Will the taxpayers vote a rate sufficiently high to meet urgent expenditures or will they look with long eyes at the recently collected tax money and seek to have it applied toward meeting current expense?

Reference to the last annual town report may be made of special interest in determining how much of this tax money may be considered as real welfare and how much of it relates to expenditures on the 1922-23 budget. It is conceded that such back taxes as recently have been received from the 1920 tax list, this roughly amounting to $30,000, represents a return of money that the taxpayers have already made good by raising a similar sum to pay bills it should have gone to pay when it was originally due. This $30,00, or thereabouts, may, therefore, be assumed to be available for use in reducing the town's indebtedness.

It is not so easy, however, to determine how much of another $30,000, or thereabouts, collected in back taxes on the list of 1921, will be available for town debt reduction, for no one knows as yet how much of it will relate to expenditures on the 1922-23 budget.

However, if the taxpayers are willing to go into the March financial meeting of the town and vote to raise sufficient "new" money to care for the budget and not depend on the recently collected back taxes to pay current bill, at least $30,00 can be applied to reducing the town debt, and likely even a more substantial sum.

The last annual town report showed the indebtedness of the town of Killingly to be $176,459.49, so such a payment as is contemplated would bring the debt down to at least $146,000, a low point not touched since 1908 and possibly even more.

Such a foresighted policy would mean decided easier going after this year in the financial affairs of the town, and a materially lower tax rate, for which so many have been waiting for such a long time.

Of further interest is the fact that uncollected taxes on old lists still amounts to $33,884.98. A taxpayer can contemplate with no how fine it would be to hope that this money also had come in and was available for reducing the town debt. And the taxpayer may wonder too who the people or corporations who owe these back taxes are not forced to pay them that the tax burden on those who do pay may be proportionately lightened.

Of interest also to consumers of coal Killingly during a winter when coal is low to get even enough to keep a home fires burning is the variation in prices for the commodity in this town. Throughout this season some firms have steadily held coal at $15 per ton. This has been the minimum price quoted. Other firms have asked as high as $16.50 at the yard and the delivery [illegible] has brought the charge up to $19 or $19.50, depending on how good a bargain one could make with trucking. In quarter ton lots as high as $20 per ton is being asked in town. No attempt has been made to claim that the highest price coal sold here this winter was materially better than the $15 coal, the greater part of which has been of excellent quality. The freight rate per ton is the same. What the cost to the dealers per ton has been is not a matter of public knowledge.

The public helpless in the situation pays the high price when it could not buy at the low price and wonders how it all came about. Verily Yuletide is an institution [illegible] a conspiracy [illegible] maps.

About 150 attended the whist given Wednesday evening in Pellett's hall under the auspices of the S. S. of Telephone Company employees' association [illegible]. The local committee in charge of the arrangements was made up of Miss Susie Quinn and Miss Mary Geer.

Nearly 7 inches of snow fell in the storm that ended about 4 a. m. Wednesday after endurin from 7 o'clock the preceding evening. As has been the case with storms of recent weeks, the snow was light and was easily moved where that seemed necessary during Wednesday. The storm had practically no effect on rail or traffic.

Danielsons chamber of commerce has set March 3 as the date for one of its great semi-annual selling events a Dollar Day carnival of bargains. This was decided at Tuesday evening's meeting. The next meeting, President Alfred L. Reed presiding, proved especially interesting. Talks were given by William K. Leith, Walter Anderson and C. E. Brown.

Plainfield High school's basketball team will be here Friday evening for a game with the Killingly High school team in the town hall. Plainfield has withdrawn from the Quinebaug Valley league as told in the Putnam news this morning, so Friday evening's game will not count as a league game.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

PUTNAM

The rumor on the part of householders in Putnam for coal shows no signs of abatement. Attention was particularly directed to the insistent demand of would-be consumers by the fact that two coal concerns saw fit to have their office telephones temporarily disconnected in order to avoid answering a veritable rain of calls from persons who wanted to buy fuel. This same expedient was resorted to in an adjoining town the past week and its adoption is said to be due to the fact that the dealers avoided a deal of controversy over distribution of short limited amounts of hard coal to comers in by eliminating telephone conversations on the subject. The dealers are storing themselves in the matter not only to [illegible] but as well to [illegible] shortage and counsels patience with the situation.

No great amount of business other than routine was transacted at the monthly meeting of the common council. Of special interest was the appearance before the body of George W. Baker of the Red Cross organization and Miss Katherine Byrne, also representing the Red Cross, to present reasons in favor of the proposal that the council make an appropriation towards the maintenance of the district nursing service, which has been invaluable. There is a lack of funds at the present time for the continuance of this service, which includes a salary of $1,500 for the nurse, Mr. Baker said. The salary would be guaranteed by the Red Cross, Miss Byrne said, but the aid of the town and city was desired in meeting other expenses of the service.

As indicating the scope of the work done by the district nurse attention of the council was called to the fact that the nurse treated 1,184 patients during 1922, making 5,972 visits. She had supervision on 55 maternity cases and rendered aid in other ways. [illegible] amount collected was only $300, and part of this came from an insurance company for which the district nurse performs certain services. No definite action was taken on the matter by the council.

The monthly report of Captain Re- Deluze of the police department to the council showed that 18 arrests were made during the month of January, nine of these being for intoxication. Five of those brought before the city court were sent to jail. Fines and costs during the month amounted to $120.15. Property valued at $45 was stolen and recovered.

Auditors J. Harry Mann and Lucius H. Merriam filed their reports [illegible] and ordered [illegible]

A request was received from the Putnam Light and Power company [illegible] on its property south of th ecity. The matter was referred to the highway committee.

Mrs. Mary Lueth, wife of Theodore Lueth who committed suicide by shooting herself in the head at her home in Hartford on Sunday, will be remembered here as Miss Browning, who formerly lived on the Sayles farm at West Thompson. The woman fired a bullet into her right temple about nine o'clock Sunday morning when her husband back was turned. Mr. Lueth, a railroad man, said that his wife had been suffering from a nervous trouble.

She was 31 years old and was married Oct. 8, 1919 in New Canaan. The couple had been living in Hartford a short time.

Mr. Lueth had come in from his night run on a freight train over the Willimantic division and suggested that his wife accompany him to Webster, Mass. She was not anxious to go according to the husband made the remark that if he went alone he would be a widower when he returned. Mrs. Lueth began dressing however, and shortly afterwards Mr. Lueth came into the room for a collar. He was in a clothes closet at the time.

Hearing an exclamation from her husband she turned around just as she pulled the trigger of a .32 caliber automatic revolver. He rushed to her side, picking up the revolver and putting it on a dressing table. Dr. A. I. Schwartz who lives in the same apartment house was called and rendered first aid, but in other ways [illegible] amount collected was only $300, and part of this came from an insurance company for which the district nurse performs certain services. At the close of the meeting the noble grand, Mrs. Austin Harris, asked the members to be seated while the degree team rehearsed a new march. Mrs. John Davis was invited to play the piano for the march. She played with all her might, never turning her head as the "team" marched into the room, when all at once there was a shout of "Shower!" and packages of all descriptions were showered upon her. One feature of the occasion was very touching. That was the vocal selection by William McGuggage, accompanied by John Davis. It was entitled The Little Black Sheep That Stood on the Hill. It was very lengthy and expressive and caused so much applause that it was repeated.

FINANCIAL.

Day's total sales, 1,206,000 shares.
20 industrials averaged 101.05, net gain .04, high 1923, 101.05; low 96.96.
20 railroads averaged $8.80, net loss .15. High 1923, 88.93; low, 84.53.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, Feb 7.—Heavy profit taking sales and some professional short selling, particularly in the speculative industrials, impeded the upward movement of prices in today's stock market, but bullish operations in selected shares based on favorable individual influences, steadied the list and the averages of closing prices showed comparatively little change.
The rapidity of the recent advance had left certain sections of the market in a weakened technical position which invited professional operations on the short side. The reaction, however, was held within narrow limits, the usual leaders such as U. S. Steel common, Baldwin, Studebaker and American Can, in which liquidation was quite heavy, yielding only fractionally on the day.
Speculators for the advance were again assisted by another series of constructive domestic developments including lower call money rates, declaration of an extra dividend of 75 cents on Eastman Kodak common, publication of the 1922 report of the Republic Steel & Iron Company showing a net profit of $18,815 as against a net loss of $5,665,242 in 1921, declaration of an initial dividend of 62 1-2 cents on the new stock of Standard Oil of Indiana, which is equivalent to $5 annually on the old stock or $1 more than the rate paid before the 100 per cent stock dividend was declared.
Publication of the modified segregation of the Lehigh Valley Railroad caused some selling by a speculative interests who apparently were disappointed at the feature of the plan which provides that stockholders will not be permitted after December 31, 1927, to hold both railroad stock and certificates of interest in the divorced coal company properties. The stock touched 71 and then reacted to 69 1-4, where it was off 1 1-4 on the day. Southern Pacific and "Nickel Plate" each dropped a point, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico advanced 1 2-3 in response to belated buying on the higher dividends, and Louisville and Nashville was pushed up 4 points, but the other active issues showed only fractional changes.
Sugar, machinery, chemical and farm implements shares were in fairly good demand throughout the day. Cuba Can preferred, Allis Chalmers, Advance Rumely, International Harvester, International Agricultural Chemical preferred and Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred rising 1 1-4 points to 4 points. Eastman Kodak jumped 6 points to 104 on announcement of the extra dividend. Some of the other individual strong spots were American Express, American Cotton Oil preferred, Atlantic Refining, Mullin Body and Utah Copper, up 2 to 7 points.
Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent., but eased off to 4 in the early afternoon and closed at that figure. The time money market continued quiet with a few loans arranged at 4 3-4 per cent. for the longer maturities. Commercial paper was active with the bulk of the prime names still commanding 4 1-2 per cent.
Foreign exchange business was unusually quiet except for a moderate offering of francs at the opening which carried the rate down 15 points to 6.25 cents. Other changes were normal, demand sterling selling just above $4.67 1-2.

Anderson's counsel, ex-Senator Brackett, had informed Acting District Attorney Pecora that his client was legally exempt from quizzing about the $24,000; that the transaction had been outlawed by time; and that it had ceased to be a subject for possible criminal prosecution.

Mr. Pecora refused to accept this view. Replying to ex-Senator Brackett, he stated that the $24,000 debt alleged to have been incurred [illegible] ago, had not been [illegible] 1919, when the league authorized Anderson to repay himself the $24,000 from contributions to the dry fund.

Joseph, who was under cross-examination, said he received a check for $10,000 from the actress with the understanding that it could be applied on his fee, but that if there was any balance he was to invest it. His accounts showed he had charged the entire sum as a fee. Miss Frederick asserted the whole amount was given for investment purposes.

JEWETT CITY

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Jewett City creamery company was held Wednesday afternoon. A complete report of the secretary and treasurer, B. C. Bliss, was accepted as read. The following officers were elected: President W. C. Terry; board of directors, E. G. Weather, G. A. Haskell, George Ellis, F. B. Terry. The vacancy in the board caused by the death of Dr. J. Byron Sweet, was filled by the election of Arba Browning.

B. C. Bliss was re-elected secretary and treasurer and Mr. Starkweather and Mr. Ellis, auditor.

Never since the creamery began, close to forty years ago has its condition been as satisfactory, or its manufactured output as great, with a steadily increasing demand for its high grade commercial product.

Six months ago an additional route was established; that is 32 miles in length. The gatherer collects the cream from the great milk producing section, contiguous to Central Village, Wauregan and Plainfield. During the year outstanding among the improvements at the plant, a new 200 gallon noiseless cream ripener has been installed to accommodate the extra cream from the northwest. Also, as auxiliary power, the company has added a six horsepower gasolene engine to their machine equipment.

During the year just closed the creamery has gathered 192,202 pounds of cream, and has manufactured and sold 53,800 pounds of butter, practically 27 tons.

The local merchants have been wide awake during the last year, is proven by a glance at some of the mid-winter inventories and records of the twelve months' sales.

In interviews with them is to be seen the often proven fact that the real store serves. Local merchants have striven to be the agents of their customers, receiving a fair profit for finding and placing the yards on their counters. This idea of merchandising breathes the spirit of fairness, and the business grows because the store serves.

A wedding, with unusually attractive features took place at the Methodist parsonage at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Alice H. Smith and Everett A. Miller, both of Jewett City were married by Rev. Herbert L. Wilber.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, the parents of the bride, gave a supper at their home.

The bride received many beautiful gifts of silver, cut glass, linen, china, and money. Her gift to her maid of honor was a gold brooch with amethyst setting. The best man received gold cuff links.

Both the young people are popular and enjoy the esteem of many friends. Mrs. Miller is the only daughter. She is a graduate of the River-side grammar school, the president of the I. H. S. class, and a member of the Methodist church. Mr. Miller is a World war veteran and is connected with the Hyde garage.

The mercury in local tubes performed unusual gymnastics Thursday. At 6 a. m. readings were variously reported from different parts of the town as being from 7 to 10 below zero. At 3 p. m. the mark of 41 was reached, a rise of 50 degrees in 9 hours. As near as can be reckoned, there has been a fall of 60 inches of snow in Griswold since the first flurry last fall. Ice on the several lakes and pools that has not been disturbed is full two feet thick.

Lovers of skating have been out of luck in this section. Snow and sleet storm following each other in close succession, have served to make this popular sport here impossible.

During the war several young men from this section became radio operators under the government instruction, and were assigned to duty on local vessels. One from Jewett City, who was on the Nantucket shoals is interested in the following information from Washington:

Nantucket shoals, off the Massachusetts south coast, one of the most important lightship station in the world, and the point where many an incoming traveler gets his first glimpse of America, will be marked within a few months with the last word in light vessels.

One of the new lightships under construction at Bath, Me., will replace the present ship on Nantucket south shoals. It will have a radio fog signal to warn ships which pass, will be equipped with electric signal lights, and will have an oscillator in place of a submarine bell for use during fogs. The new vessel will be fully equipped for radio communication.

U. S. navy records show that E. Hiscox, of Jewett City, served as radio operator on the Nantucket shoals light vessel for several months during the war.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Fine Program at the Broadway.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville which was presented at the Broadway was enjoyed by a filled house.

Marjie Burton, the singing comedienne, opens the bill with a song and imitation offering. Brown & De Mont entertained with some fine singing and comedy; Patrice & Sullivan in their offering showed that they possessed good voices and could play both piano and violin; then followed Pressler & Klaiss called The Lively Duo. These two are certainly a lively duo and comedians par excellence. They were literally showered with applause. The Three Odd Chaps offered the closing number which consisted of fine singing with musical comedy steps predominating but it remained for William Foy to give the public the nearest approach to a genuine holocaust that has ever been presented.

J. Gordon Edwards, the famous director, spent over a year in Italy with a company made up largely of foreign actors and the scenes were filmed in and around Rome. Among the massive scenes is the interior of Nero's palace, and the marble portico from which he views the burning of Rome, while the fear-maddened populace flee for safety through the streets.

Jacques Greitllat, the Nero of the cast, gives a remarkably life-like portrayal of the character. Paulette Duval as Poppaea, Alexander Salvini as Horatius, Edy Darclea as Acte and Violet Mersereau as Marcia are leading members of the cast.

Oliver Twist Now at the Strand.

A great many of the patrons of the Strand theatre, yesterday went to enjoy a screened series of antics performed by the screen's most gifted and adorable boy. They remained to marvel at the genius of a real actor to whom comedy is but one of many forms of expression. Many went impelled by their love for the lad whose image they have watched so many times projected on the silver sheet. They remained to thrill in the presence of a tiny tragedian. Jackie Coogan was the boy, the play was Frank Lloyd's adaptation of Charles Dickens' Oliver Twist, presented as a First National Attraction.

Bill Sikes was played by George Siegmann with powerful strokes. Lionel Belmore's Mr. Brownlow was a benign but masculine and lovable soul; and all the rest in the great cast deserve more than the mere mention of their names and the roles they played. Each was a conscientious performance, coordinated and controlled by the genius of Frank Lloyd who in Oliver Twist reveals more of subtlety than in any other work of his, but no less of power, and who thus verifies his right to stand in the position assigned him—in the very front rank of the world's greatest directors.

A comedy and news was also enjoyed.

Norfolk.—At the meeting of the Norfolk Girls' club held at the clubroom in the Center school building Miss Florence L. Clark, who on Saturday will become the bride of Edward Backman of Stamford, was given a miscellaneous shower.

Norwich Community Lecture Course

Isaac F. Marcosson is so well known that he needs no introduction. For more than a decade his articles have appeared in all the leading periodicals, especially The Saturday Evening Post.

His reputation is international. During the war he won the title of "America's Foremost Reporter," having been on all the fronts and seen more phases and met more leaders of the titanic struggle than any other journalist.

His lecture, The Changing East, is of the greatest interest. Mr. Marcosson spent five months in Japan and China where he went to study the economic and political consequences of the Washington conference. He met practically every outstanding political, military and business personage in the two countries and was the guest of Marshal Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war lord at Mukden. He saw the Civil war on both northern and southern fronts.

This famous lecturer, Isac Marcosson, appears on Tuesday evening, Feb. 13th, in Slater Hall, under the auspices of the Norwich churches. Tickets $1.00. On sale at The Cranston Co. The net proceeds will be given to the Backus hospital.

Nero Coming to the Breed.

The latest William Fox master picture, Nero, has been booked for showing at the Breed theatre for five days, starting Sunday. According to all accounts, this is a record-breaking production. It was received during its New York run with the highest praise from press and public and has been setting a new high mark on the box office statements around the country.

Nero is a wonderful spectacle. Written by Charles Carver and Virginia Tracy, it follows the historical facts in the life of the last of the Caesars an dintroduces a beautiful love story in which a Roman general and a Christian princess are the principal characters.

Sensational effects of unusual merit abound in Nero. The one that presents the most novel and impressive features is the burning of Rome. There have been fire scenes on the stage and seen by th hundreds, but it remained for William Foy to give the public the nearest approach to a genuine holocaust that has ever been presented.

J. Gordon Edwards, the famous director, spent over a year in Italy with a company made up largely of foreign actors and the scenes were filmed in and around Rome. Among the massive scenes is the interior of Nero's palace, and the marble portico from which he views the burning of Rome, while the fear-maddened populace flee for safety through the streets.

Jacques Greitllat, the Nero of the cast, gives a remarkably life-like portrayal of the character. Paulette Duval as Poppaea, Alexander Salvini as Horatius, Edy Darclea as Acte and Violet Mersereau as Marcia are leading members of the cast.

Breed Theatre.

With John Gilbert in the star role, Honor First, his latest William Fox feature, will be shown at the Breed theatre today and Saturday. Press reports from other cities where this picture has been shown accord it high praise. Many who have reviewed the feature assert that Gilbert is at his best.

The story deals with the difference in character and temperament between twin brothrs, both of whom served in the French army during the war. Gilbert portrays both brothers. His work as the cowardly brother is said to be especially worth while. This characterization calls for extraordinary force in acting.

Not only is the story of the picture intensely gripping and worth while, but the photography and direction are declared to be o fthe best. Jerome Storm, who is fast becoming one of the foremost directors in the film world, staged the picture.

Many of the scenes were photographed under extraordinary conditions and are described as masterpieces of photographic art. When the picture is seen at the Breed theatre the patrons will be justified in looking for a real treat.

As an added feature Charlie Chaplin and Jackie Coogan will be seen in The Kid and Ruth Roland in The Timber Queen and the Pathe News will make up the remainder of the bill. Continuous show Saturday from 1.30 to 11 p.m.

JEWTRAW, RECOVERED FROM INJURY, WINS FEATURE RACE AT PLACID

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, won the 220-yard and Edward Reed, Chicago, captured the one-mile race at the opening on Mirror Lake rink here today of the fourth and final meet in the Adirondack gold cup skating championship series. As a result of their victories, Jewtraw and Reed are tied with 30 points each in the score for the meet. Jewtraw now has 360 points for the Adirondack gold cup and 220 points for the Maxwell 300 point trophy.

Jewtraw, Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., and William Steinmetz, Chicago, fought out every inch of the 220-yard event, until Gorman and Steinmetz collided on the last turn in the final lap and fell. Paul Forsman, New York, then finished second, with Joe Moore, New York, a close third. The winner's time was nineteen and two-fifths seconds.

Reed's sudden sprint in the bell lap of the one-mile race granted him victory. His dash apparently came as a surprise to the rest of the pack and he had gained considerable advantage before the chase was picked up. Jewtraw and Moore, skating well back, also started a furious sprint, but too late to gain even a place. Gorman finished second and Valentine Bialis, Lake Placid, was third. The time was 2:30 4-5.

The events scheduled for tomorrow are the one-half and three-quarter mile races. The weather has moderated considerably, but not enough to mar the track and ideal conditions are expected tomorrow. Harry Kasky and Roy McWhirter, both of Chicago, failed to enter the races today because of injuries sustained in the national title competition at Endicott. They are expected, however, to be seen in action tomorrow or Saturday.

The summaries:

One-mile race: Won by Edward Reed, Chicago; second, Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B.; third, Valentine Bialis, Lake Placid. Time: 2.50 4-5.

Point scores: Jewtraw and Reed, 30 each; Forsman and Gorman, 20 each; Moore and Bialis, 10 each.

Season point score, Adirondack gold cup series: Jewtraw, 360; Gorman, 200; Kasky and Richard Donovan, Endicott, 150 each; Edward Corcoran, Endicott, and Bialis, 70 each; Forsman, 50.

NEW YORK TRACK MEN TO COMPETE AT BUFFALO

New York, Feb. 8. — Entries from New York in the national track and field championship events in Buffalo, February 17, were selected tonight by the Metropolitan association of the Amateur Athletic union. The entry list will close tomorrow. Those selected were:

D. Abromet, Newark Athletic club; 16-pound shot put, Orvill Wanzer, New York Athletic club; medley relay, Columbia university team, composed of Walter Higgins, Walter Koppisch, Frank Brannan and Victor Graeb.

In addition to these, winners in the tryouts in standing high jumping and standing broad jumping at the Wilco Amateur Athletic club in Brooklyn, Saturday night, will take part. Two extra men in the 70-yard high hurdles also will be sent to Buffalo. They are Harrison Thompson, of Princeton, and Loren Murchison, of the Newark Athletic club.

BALTIC BOY SHOWS WELL ON TRINITY SQUAD

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 8. — With the beginning of the second half of the Trinity college basketball schedule, Coach H. D. Drew has available a squad of 20 men from which to form the varsity. Due to both faculty restrictions on students, requiring a high grade of scholarship, and the one term rule of the athletic association, the squad until the present time has been weak.

Among the men likely to make the varsity quintet is Jimmie Burr of Baltic, who starred for the freshman football team last fall. Burr is one of the fastest men out for the Trinity team, and will undoubtedly place on the team as soon as he recovers from an injury he suffered when he fell on his back while skating. Although Jimmie is the smallest man out for the team his speed has the advantage in close play.

Competition between the members of the squad is keen. Never since the sport was revived at Trinity following the war has Coach Drew had so large or fast a squad. The schedule during the next few weeks is the hardest yet tackled by Trinity. It includes games with Brown, Feb. 10, at Providence; Mass. Aggies, Feb. 13, at Hartford; Colgate, Feb. 16, at Hartford; Lafayette, Feb. 22, at Hartford; Connecticut Aggies, Feb. 28, at Storrs, Conn.; and Stevens Institute of Technology, Mar. 3, at Hoboken, N. J.

BANNER YEAR FOR OUR RIFLE SHOOTERS

Nineteen twenty-three will unquestionably be the banner year in marksmanship, says Brig. Gen. Fred H. Phillips, Jr., secretary National Rifle association.

Towards the end of making this twelve months notable in the annals of rifle history organized rifle shooting, the National Rifle association of America has been at work the past year, laying the foundation for a series of local, national and international competitions, the parallel of which has never been known. That in the face of foolish and discouraging anti-firearm legislation the increasing difficulty of obtaining suitable and accessible range sites in communities which day by day are becoming more thickly populated, and the economy wave which crippled all government appropriations, rifle shooting should have attained the widespread popularity which it enjoyed during 1922, argues well for the interest which will be shown during 1923 in the sport which provides our strongest national bulwark.

In addition to witnessing the holding of the international match in the United States during which period the American riflemen will be hosts to the shooters of continental Europe, 1923 is the twentieth anniversary of the birth of the national matches which were first held at Sea Girt in 1903.

Every shooter should, and undoubtedly does, feel a keen personal interest in bringing to a successful conclusion the ambitious plans which are afoot concerning marksmanship in 1923. The individual shot can best aid in this work by promptly reaffiliating, if he is already an annual member of the N. R. A.; if he is not, by immediately identifying himself with the organization which has been responsible for practically all the progress in rifle shooting since the days of the seventies.

It is not enough that a shooter is a member of an affiliated club. Club fees paid to the parent body do no more than defray the legitimate overhead expense of handling club organization, issues and purchases and other routine matters pertaining to the promotion of shooting; in other words, making it possible for the shooter to take advantage of the many privileges which he enjoys.

The blood and the bone, the brawn and the sinew of organized rifle shooting are the individual members of the N. R. A. The annual membership fee is so small that no rifleman worthy of the name can afford to remain unidentified with the parent body or to fail to give it his support.

Every year a great number of individual riflemen are realizing how important it is to the future of the shooting game for every rifleman to support the N. R. A. in its efforts to keep the game alive, to combat unwise legislation, to encourage the passage of laws which will spread the art of straight shooting, and to build up and maintain the greatest factor for national safety—a citizenry trained in the use of arms.

PLAINFIELD BUDDIES WIN FAST GAME FROM WAUREGAN

In one of the cleanest exhibitions of basketball ever witnessed, the Plainfield Buddies defeated the St. John's team of Wauregan by the score of 44 to 28 on Wednesday evening. The game was stubbornly contested from the first and each team exerted themselves tremendously. Jack Mercier, left guard on the Plainfield team played one of the finest games ever seen on the local floor. He was continually on the alert, always watching his man and utilizing every opportunity to run up his personal score. Through his remarkable insight he scored 13 baskets and shot one foul. Struthers; Plainfield's left forward, played a dazzling game, caging four baskets and three fouls. Bibeau made two baskets and Plomchon one tally.

Stanley Gasiorek, Wauregan's only mainstay, scored four baskets and shot six fouls. Gasiorek strained himself to the limit and the fans appreciated his efforts. Penn came into prominence with three baskets and a foul to his credit. R. Maynard made the other basket. B. Plankey, E. Plankey and Dersert, who substituted the second half, all played a top-notch game. The lineup follows:

Struthers	Right Forward	Penn
Cooper	Center	R. Maynard

THOUGHT THERE WAS SURE SOME MISTAKE

Frank Bancroft, famous ball player, manager and one of the bright lights of the pastime some 20 years ago, offered Bill (Yale Bill) Hutchinson, who was, at that time, one of the greatest of all college pitchers, $300 a month if he would sign with his team. This was in 1884. Bill was willing but Father "Hutch" said nay. Bill's dad was a deacon in a church and had given Bill a spiritual training besides an expensive college education. Bill was placed in the office of a western railroad company at $50 per month and struck there when he was past voting age. Capt. Anson of the Chicago Nationals induced Bill to go into organized ball and later promised him a berth on the famous Chicago team. Hutchison signed with the Des Moines club of the Western league and did phenomenal hurling for the organization during 1887 and 1888. In 1889 Bill began his remarkable career with the Chicago club and for years was regarded as one of the great lights of the game. Father Hutchison wouldn't believe it when he saw his son's first contract calling for $600 a month. "Why," said the old gentleman, "that is as much as the president of our road gets. It must be a mistake. It must mean $600 a year."

ALEXANDER'S RECORD IS ONE TO BE PROUD OF

Here are some reasons why one great hurler can make a third rate baseball team look like a first choice aggregation: Grover Alexander, during the seven seasons he pitched for the Philadelphia Nationals, worked in 331 games of which 278 counted in the won or lost columns. Grover's percentage in victories during that time stood .683. The club's percentage during the same period stood .551. Alex pitched 59 runless games, fanned 1,404 batsmen, held the opposing batsmen to an average of .215 in hits and hurled 75 games wherein his opponents made five or less hits per game. In the last three seasons that Alexander was with the Phillies the club won a pennant and landed in second place twice.

This is contradicted by the fact that Mary Brown, former national tennis champion, recently won the Del Monte golf title and that H. Chandler Egan, former national golf champ, won the tennis championship of the Pacific northwest.

Frank Bagley will receive his full share of 33 1-3 per cent. of whatever Gene Tunney receives in his encounter with Light Heavyweight Champion Harry Greb. Bagley stated that he had made that proposition with Tunney before he released him and that Tunney agreed. The same applies to George Engle, former manager of Greb, who will also receive his share of Greb's money.

TO ATTEND INTERNATIONAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Washington, Feb. 8.—Julius H. Barnes, president, with a number of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will head a party of forty or fifty business men who will sail from New York Saturday on the Coronia to attend the second general meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce at Rome, March 13 to 24, the American section of the organization announced tonight.

The American delegation, it was said, is expected to number about 200, other members planning to sail later on various ships. Commercial attaches in a number of countries also have been directed by Secretary Hoover of the commerce department to be present at the meeting, and O. P. Hopkins, first American director of the federal bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, and Alan Goldsmith, chief of the western European division of the bureau, also will attend.

GIRLS FORCED TO MARRY MEN THEY DON'T LOVE

Pawpaw, Mich., Feb. 8.—Charges that twenty-six girls, members of the Israelite House of David, at Benton Harbor, had been forced to marry men they did not love, and who were selected for them by Benjamin Purnell, head of the sect, are made in an affidavit introduced in circuit court here in an $800,000 damage suit brought against Purnell by Ruth B. Reed and Gladys B. Hubel of Detroit. The affidavit was made by the plaintis, who claim to be former members of the cult, and to have been forced into marriage when 16 years of age.

Attorneys for the House of David offered affidavits by members of the colony challenging the veracity of the charges. The affidavit also charged immoral practices against Purnell and other members of the colony.

Parents of the plaintiffs were wealthy residents of Australia when they came to Benton Harbor to join the cult, the complaint, declares. After being admitted, all their property is alleged to have been turned over to Purnell. The mother still is a member, it is said, and is out of sympathy with the daughters' complaint.

Judge Desvoignes has reserved decision on a move for an injunction restraining service of a capias that would compel Purnell's personal appearance in the case.

RECENT THREATS BY KLAN IN LOUISIANA

Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 8.—T. H. Harris, state superintendent of public education, today addressed to Paris school boards and parish superintendents throughout the state a letter calling upon them to do everything in their power to prevent occurrences similar to those of recent date in Jackson and Winn parishes when he said two school teachers were ordered by letters bearing the seal of the Ku Klux Klan to leave the community.

The fleeing of the principal of a Jackson parish high school after the Ku Klux Klan had ordered him to leave, has just brought to light a similar incident, the letter said.

A teacher, serving his second year in a Winn parish school, according to Mr. Harris, left the community after he received a communication bearing the seal of the St. Maurice Ku Klux Klan. The communication, Mr. Harris said, informed the teacher that while his services were satisfactory he was a Catholic and a member of the Knights of Columbus and therefore would not be permitted to teach. He was threatened with a visit by a midnight party if he did not leave, the superintendent declared.

DISAPPROVED SENTIMENT IN PRAYER OF CHAPLAIN

Denver, Colo., Feb. 8.—The Colorado house of representatives this afternoon adopted a resolution of censure, expressing displeasure and disagreement with the sentiment expressed today in the opening prayer of Chaplain J. R. Rader.

Sections of the prayer which drew directed fire recited:

"Our courts are corrupt; God has been expelled from our churches; our pulpits are filled with essayists; our boys and girls are going to the dogs; our laboring men are going to work with empty pails while our farmers starve and the middlemen wax fat on exorbitant prices."

The chaplain began with the exclamation: "Oh, Lord, how long is this condition to endure" and ending with the supplication that diety guide the law makers to the end that "greed might be overcome, and justice done among men."

JOHN WANAMAKER'S SON IMPRISONED IN FRANCE

Pont-L'Eveque, France, Feb. 8 (By the A. P.)—John Wanamaker, son of Rodman Wanamaker of New York, has been sentenced to six months imprisonment and to pay a fine of 50,000 francs by the correctional court here on a charge of having obtained 145,000 francs from the director of the Deauville Casino on checks for which it was alleged no funds for payment were available.

Early in December judgment for $12,266 was entered in the county clerk's office in New York against John Wanamaker in favor of the Deauville Casino at Cannes. Hyacinthe Kingrose, counsel for the Casino, is said to have explained that the claim against Mr. Wanamaker was based on the failure of the American Express company in Paris to cash three checks, alleged to have been issued by Mr. Wanamaker to cover one million francs lost while playing baccarat at Deauville. It was asserted at the time that no allegations relating in any way to gambling were mentioned in the papers filed in New York. Judgment was taken by default.

UNWISE MEASURES.

The bills which have been introduced in congress by Senator Heflin and Representative Frear relative to legislative action relative to the United States supreme court is not likely to get far. The mere tinkering of a nature which cannot be regarded as desirable.

By the bill presented in the senate it is sought to require that there shall be seven members of the supreme court concur in agreement before there can be a decision of unconstitutionality. In other words even though there should be a majority concurring the fact that three justices looked at the matter in a different light would be sufficient to prevent a decision.

Such would mean that the United States supreme court, the court of last resort would be subject to the action of congress, instead of the Constitution, since the senator would bring about this change through congressional action rather than by constitutional amendment.

Even worse is the bill by the congressman from Wisconsin who would have congress given the power to recall judges without impeachment and would also have congress authorized to set aside by a two-thirds vote the decisions of the supreme court.

This would mean the making of congress the court of last resort and subjecting the highest court to a political body. It would mean that congress would not only make the laws but also interpret them according to its wishes. Knowing what the methods and influences are that are employed in congress such an idea can be expected to get but slight support.

The efforts to prevent child labor in certain states through federal action has been disappointing but it doesn't warrant going to the lengths that are advocated by these bills and weakening the importance and position of the United States supreme court.

ARE WOMEN SMOKERS RESPONSIBLE?

Something that needs to be run down has been discovered by the national board of fire underwriters in figuring up the fire losses for the past year, when they find that the losses from matches and smoking has jumped to a total of nearly $26,000,000 when the average for the past six years has been about $20,000,000.

Just what was responsible for that jump of about $6,000,000 must of necessity give the underwriters some concern. Even though they may not be able to check it, it is nevertheless desirable to know where the trouble lies that greater efforts may be concentrated thereon.

In looking over the field of possibilities the board is prompted to ask this question: "Can the more general use of tobacco by women during the past few years be the reason for the startling advance in the fire losses from the twin-hazard of matches-smoking?"

That is a question that might well be submitted to the country. There are many who might offer some first handed information upon the subject. It is no secret that many more women are smoking today than ever did before. There are those who have had an opportunity to observe how those among the more careful sex who have taken up the weed are disposing of the firebrands they use.

That the underwriters should consider the possibility of the increase in the fire losses due to matches and smoking to those who are responsible for the large increase in the consumption of cigarettes is not unreasonable and yet it doesn't establish it as a fact. By their query, however, the underwriters may get some valuable information and yet an inquiry of a different nature will probably be required before a satisfactory answer is obtained.

One thing is certain, nevertheless, and that is that the girls who are smoking may get credit if there is any considerable reduction in the losses from the twin-hazard during the present year.

NEARER THE GOAL.

Those who have feared that the Washington conference results would not get ratification from any more countries than have already acted must be disappointed by the favorable action which has been taken by the chamber of deputies of the Italian government.

Up to now Italy and France have been the two nations that were lagging. Indications pointed to the fact that Italy was waiting to see what France was going to do, inasmuch as it was not disposed to curtail its navy if the neighbor was not going to. The attitude in France has been favorable to similar action but it has been repeatedly delayed. And yet new sentiment and expressions in favor of approval have been coming from France when it found time to give thought to other than the many things that have been commanding its attention.

By the action of Italy the impression is gained that it feels confident that France will do as it has said that it would. France has hesitated to take this step quite the same as it has been unwilling to deplete its protection armywise. Nevertheless it rests alone with Europe now to make it possible to put into full operation the agreement to check the headlong race in expenditures for naval purposes which has too long prevailed among the leading nations.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The weatherman has no consideration for those who are interested in better transportation.

The man on the corner says: The look on the groundhog's face must be that of entire satisfaction.

There is no quota on now concerning "If Winter Comes." The real concern now is if summer comes.

There may be other signs but when the price of gasoline is boosted it is prima facie evidence that spring is coming.

The Germans must realize that the harder they fight the French the more complications are they piling up for themselves.

Over 12,000 persons were killed by autos in 1922 and yet some seem to think that too much attention is being paid to safety efforts.

Those who expected to escape without shoveling any more snow this winter should have joined the northern colony in Florida.

There is less chance for the speeders these days, but there are those and like to splash through puddles and pepper pedestrians and buildings alike.

America has 84 per cent of all the autos in the world. And you can probably see most of them any pleasant Sunday afternoon going past your house.

There is a plan in Massachusetts to call voters to the polls election day by whistles and bells. There are certainly times when something even more persuasive is needed.

The appeal that comes from the sanatorium for old phonograph records of which people have tired is one that should awaken keen interest. Many there are who have sought just such an opportunity to help others with what they have no further use for.

PEDDLING APRONS

"Well, my boy," began the owner of the apron factory, "do you want to try your luck again this week?"

"I certainly do," responded the ambitious young man who was studying law, but who sold aprons in the rural districts every week end in order to help out financially.

"I didn't sell very many last week," he admitted ruefully. "Saturday I did the territory around Melton, but as it happened, they were having an auction sale on live stock and household goods on a farm some miles away, and most of the farmers and their wives had gone to attend it, so I got only a few orders.

"I had been told that a very wealthy widow, Mrs. Resby, owned the fine, prosperous-looking place down the road, and I made up my mind that if she was home I was going to land a big order.

"So I went to the house and rapped at the kitchen door, and a voice called 'Come in!' I found the most pathetic looking little woman, sitting huddled up in a chair, her clothes almost in rags, and she had the saddest, most helpless look on her face. I couldn't believe it was Mrs. Resby, but it was.

"When I began talking aprons to her she shook her head slowly. But I persisted. When I showed her that black sateen model with the gay cretonne trimmings she kept looking at it wistfully.

"Then her eyes filled with tears and she said she couldn't buy any because she didn't have a cent in the world. Knowing that she owned the place, I guess I didn't look very credulous.

"She went on to tell me that after her husband's death she had deeded the farm over to her son and his wife, on their promise to provide for her in the same way she had always lived. But from the day when the property passed into their hands they ruled the house and farm, and she was merely a servant without a servant's pay. It sort of got me, somehow, to see her sitting there and crying."

"But her friends and the neighbors—"

"They thought she was still the owner, because the son and his wife, insisted, for reasons of their own, that the transfer should be kept strictly secret.

"As the the son and his wife were also at the auction sale, there was no chance of getting an order in that house, but I left a circular and my card.

"On the way back to Melton I kept thinking of the old lady. Suddenly it flashed through my mind that it was funny how all the neighbors believed she owned the place. You know the county newspapers print the list of property transfers and so it would become public that way. Then I began to wonder whether the deed had been really recorded. I turned my flivver around and hurtled four miles in the opposite direction to the county seat, and looked up the register of deeds in the court house.

"Well, the deed wasn't in the record. By this time I had forgotten all about aprons and room rents as I dashed back to the Resby place. You can imagine her surprise at seeing me again.

"I told her about the deed not being recorded and asked her whether she knew where the document was kept. No, she didn't know. Her son had it hidden and locked up some place. It looked like a stone wall.

"Then suddenly she got up and went into another room and came out with a tin box, saying that she just remembered that he had it out shortly before he left for the sale. The boy had an ordinary padlock, but in his hurry he had neglected to snap the lock tight, so I simply lifted it off.

"There were a lot of paper and the deed was at the bottom. The old lady looked it over and identified her signature. Then we laid it on the fire in the kitchen stove and, bingo! she was again owner of the farm."

"But you could be arrested—"

"Not a chance in this case. And you should have seen the change in the old lady! She laughed like a young girl as she came out in the yard to see me off. I wish I could have stayed to see the fun when the others returned, but I had to beat it back to the garage with the rented flivver and then catch the last train to the city. So you see I didn't make much money last week.

The owner of the factory turned to his desk, then handed the law student a check. The recipient looked at it wonderingly.

"What's this for?"

"Your Mrs. Resby sent in an order on Monday for aprons, and this is your commission."

The law student again looked at the amount on the check and then he grinned.

"Say, she must be buying aprons for the whole country!" he laughed.—Chicago News.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Pensions and Allowances

Pensions paid by a corporation or an individual to retired employees for services rendered are taxable. Pensions paid by the federal government to retired civil employees also are taxable, except as provided by the revenue act of 1921, which exempts "amounts received as compensation, family allotments and allowances under the provision of the war risk insurance and vocational rehabilitation acts, or as pensions from the United States for services of the beneficiary or another in the military or naval service of the United States in time of war." Under prior acts all pensions paid in recognition of services rendered by the pensioner were taxable.

Allowances, whether paid by the government or private individuals to one who performed no duties, as, for example, to a widow in recognition of services performed by her husband are regarded as gifts, and are not taxable.

Pensions and bonuses paid by a state or political subdivision thereof to its residents who served in the military or naval forces during the war with Germany do not constitute taxable income.

Benefits paid by a labor union to members while on strike are to be included in the income, subject to tax, of such members.

Annuities paid retired employees of the federal government under the act of May 22, 1920 are subject to the tax to the extent that the aggregate amount of payments exceeds the amount withheld from the salary of the employee. When an employee leaves the civil service before becoming eligible for retirement and receives the amount of salary withheld together with interest, he should report as income only the amount of interest for the year in which received.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William H. Anderson, whose financial relations with the Anti-Saloon League have been made the subject for an investigation is one of the experienced strategists of the league, with a record of successful labor in Illinois and Maryland before settling in New York city, in 1914, to become general superintendent for the organization in the Empire State, a position which he still holds. His experience also includes one year in Washington, D. C., as acting superintendent of the national organization. Mr. Anderson grew up in Illinois, graduated at Blackburn College, in that state, and then went to the University of Michigan, for his legal education. He practiced law for a season, but became an ardent champion of temperance and decided to use his talents in its behalf; and in time he came to be one of the best lobbyists and reform strategists that ever labored in the halls of national and state legislatures, as well as a skillful organizer of the normal operations of the Anti-Saloon League.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Apostrophe to a Bible Discussion.

Mr. Editor: That the discussion of local topics through the medium of Letters to the Editor forms a highly interesting department of the press, cannot be denied, and many readers follow it with as much eagerness as, perhaps, others do the sporting columns.

The discussion pending, for some time, between Mr. Capell and Mr. Coffey on Biblical interpretation, therefore, is no exception, and has had its following on both sides.

It is not our purpose, here, to intrude our opinion or judgment on the merits of the argument, but as one confessedly in sympathy with Mr. Coffey, we think that in his latest letter he goes too far; in assuming that, on Biblical grounds, Mrs. Eddy's book and teachings are to be condemned, just because she was a woman.

Although it is the Oriental custom to despise and degrade women, this neither is nor was a part of Judaism, nor has it any sanction in their religious life. Whatever distinction existed did not grow out of inferiority, but upon other grounds.

In fact the high recognition of woman begins with the Genesis of our race. If, in the temptation, the woman was the first to fall, it was by the woman's seed that the serpent's head would be "bruised." If, by the woman came the curse, by the woman came also the remedy—redemption from the curse. (Gen. 3-15.)

There was no lack of honorable women, all down the time of Jewish history to the Advent, and it was "Anna, a prophetess of the tribe of Asshur," who coming in at the instant when the Child Jesus was being presented, gave thanks, and spake of him to all that looked for redemption in Israel." (Luke 2: 38.)

Wasn't that good preaching—and by a woman?

In the gospel dispensation the wife is used as a type of the church—surely a crowning symbol. And the relation of the husband to her as that of Christ to the church, (Eph. 5-24) that of oneness.

In these days of easy divorce in Connecticut, when the courts are kept busy for that purpose, we have surely departed far, very far, from the conception of Christian relationship which the Bible outlines and inculcates in regard to the ordinance of marriage and its sacredness; and here is offered an inviting field for church and ministerial activity.

O, no, let Mrs. Eddy's book and her works be judged on their merits, not by the assumption that they are worthless, because she was a woman.

Percy Stickney Grant Fulfils Prophecy, Thus Proving the Bible True.

Mr. Editor: Dr. Percy Stickney Grant is a teacher of a false theology. There are many such instructors. Poor, foolish humanity receives counterfeit doctrines, as a basis for religion. True divinity is not generally approved. Why do not people accept or reject the Holy Bible after each one has examined it for himself? Numerous preachers are paid to teach men the way to heaven. It is a frequent fact that the sermonizer is interested more in his salary or other result of his selfish ambition than he is solicitous for the eternal salvation of mankind. Deluded persons assent to deadly religious prescriptions as they would agree to a supposable oracle. Teachers like Dr. Grant are, by the virtue of their dogmas, on the way to eternal ruin and damnation, and witless men are following them. Awake, O Earth! Cannot you read in the lives of godly beings that Jesus Christ is the Only Begotten Son of God—equal with the Father God.

The soul who consciously grants not to Him that honor but who has within himself the Christ-like spirit, admits unawares His deityship. Look, at the pure, gentle lily and look at the lightning, and learn by all nature that Jesus Christ is the Power of God. Is not Nature a reflection of moral beauty, and ethic perfection, and where in human history is seen faultless character but in the life of Jesus Christ? Why have not the enemies of Jesus Christ broadcasted His fault if He had one? The whole world has been silent to that matter. His enemies use His name, as a synonym for godliness, perfection, purity, goodness and wisdom. He claimed to be the Power of God. Liars say He is not the Power of God, and yet they assert He is was a perfect man. How is this if He is not the Power of God?

To those who believe the Bible, its statements are authoritative. The Old Testament declares that a child would be born and His name should be The Mighty God. See Isaiah, chapter 9, verse 6. The New Testament states that the Word, referring to Jesus Christ, was in the beginning with God, and that He was God and that all things were made by Him and that without Him nothing was made that was made. See John's Gospel, chapter 1, verses 1-3. The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us. Verse 14, Jesus Christ is the power of God to save men from the power of sin and from the penalty of its guilt. He is God's remedy for sin for Jew and Gentile.

I know of men transformed from drunkards to saints by the power of Jesus Christ. I know of the transformation of thieves to honest men by the power of Jesus Christ. I know o strife subdued by peace by the power of Jesus Christ. "Wherefore He is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him, seeing He ever liveth to make intercession for them." Hebrews 7:25.

God hath appointed Him to be the Judge of the living and the dead. John 5:22. Acts 10:42. We must all stand before the judgment seat of Christ. 2nd Corinthians 5:10. Why, do you say I do not believe that, seeing that you do not know it is not so? It is reasonable to disbelieve only that of which we have accurate knowledge. You will know the truth about Jesus Christ when you pray to God as you are, a sorrowful sinner, and cry to God for pardon and mercy submitting your will to His will as revealed in the Bible.

The assurance of forgiven sins, reconciliation with God, of the hope of eternal life, of love, joy and peace that will then be in your heart will prove to you that Jesus Christ is the Power of God.

Jew and Gentile are eternally lost without the power of Jesus Christ.

"Neither is there salvation in any other for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."—Acts 4:12.

Dr. Grant, and others teaching the same things, are fulfilling prophecy and thus proving that the Bible is true. The forecast declares "there shall be false teachers among you who privily shall bring in damnable heresies even denying the Lord that bought them and bring upon themselves swift destruction."—2nd Peter 2:1.

Instead of demolishing the Bible as these false teachers are trying to do, they are upholding its inerrancy.

Urges Horse Drawn Apparatus.

Mr. Editor: This letter does not come to the public print in the form of criticism of our fire department. I think we have as good a department, both as to equipment and personnel, with an efficient chief at its head, as any city of our size in the country. As everyone knows, Norwich is a city of many hills, and in the winter time, the going is particularly bad. The writer is under the impression that one piece of efficient horse-drawn, general apparatus, to meet the needs of Norwich conditions, is particularly desirable.

Trusting to luck won't always keep down a fire loss.

Respectfully,

CITIZEN.

Wives of Famous Men

Rachel Donelson Robards, Wife of Andrew Jackson

One of the most interesting personal stories in all American history is that of the courtship and marriage of Andrew Jackson, seventh president of the United States. His wife was a widow, Rachel Donelson Robards, although her husband was still living when Jackson first met her.

The daughter of a wealthy Southern gentleman, Rachel Donelson was married while quite young to Capt. Louis Robards, a young man of an extremely jealous nature. Rachel was a most attractive girl and very popular in Kentucky, where she lived with her husband and his mother. But Robards' tyrannical and jealous attitude got in the way of their happiness, and soon Rachel had returned to North Carolina to be with her mother.

Mrs. Donelson, a widow at that time was afraid to live alone in the house, so she kept a few boarders, included among them Andrew Jackson. Soon after Mrs. Robard's return to her mother the captain sought a reconciliation and visited his wife in North Carolina. Here he became jealous of the courtly and chivalrous manner of Mr. Jackson, and construed it as an improper affection for Rachel. He pursued her and made her life miserable even after Jackson had left the Donelson household. He threatened all sorts of dire things, and finally, in 1791, obtained upon false testimony a preliminary decree of divorce.

In the meantime Jackson's affection for the poor Rachel had grown, and when he learned of the divorce he hastened to her side and they were married. When in the following December he learned that the final decree had been issued he and Rachel were remarried to put an end to all possible gossip.

Of course, politically this romantic story of Jackson's marriage was distorted and used against him by his enemies. But he loved his wife devotedly and was ready to shoot any man who referred slightingly to the pair. They lived happily together for nearly 40 years when Mrs. Jackson died of heart trouble in December 1828.

Little John, age four, was riding with his mother on a train which made slow progress and frequent stops. For some time he did not notice these, so busy was he with his talking, but finally a sudden stop attracted his attention. In all seriousness and with a look of deep concern he asked: "Mother, don't you think I better get off and push?" And when his mother laughed he added: "Well, don't you see? It can't go."

POISON CAUSED DEATH OF MISS MARIE BLOOMFIELD

New York, Feb. 8.—An autopsy today disclosed that Miss Marie Bloomfield of Columbus, Ohio, honor student at Barnard college, whose body was found in a dormitory room last night, died from the effects of poison.

A poem in her handwriting and an open letter addressed to Mrs. Bruce Frederick Cummings, of London, England, widow of the English naturalist, who wrote under the pen name of W. N. P. Barbellion, indicated that Miss Bloomfield had been led by morbid introspection to doubt her ability to fulfill her ideals, and to welcome the idea of death.

The letter to Mrs. Cummings, whom Miss Bloomfield never had met, expressed gratitude for a communication and declared that she had been soundly influenced by the works of the late Mr. Cummings.

A chronology of Miss Bloomfield's early life at Oregon, Ill., shortly before her death published "The Journal of a Disappointed Man." Letter to brother, published "A Last Diary," and "Enjoying Life," all expressing a passionate and morbid love of nature and life and a sensitive, though bitter, courage in the face of inexorably approaching death.

BRITISH DEBT TO COME BEFORE HOUSE TODAY

Washington, Feb. 8.—Arrangements were made today in the house to bring up tomorrow legislation which would give effect to the British debt settlement agreement submitted to congress yesterday by President Harding. Passage of the measure by an overwhelming majority was regarded as a foregone conclusion and republican managers hoped to obtain a vote before night.

Final action then would rest with the senate, but there were indications that the administration shipping bill would be given precedence there, at least for a time. Advocates of such action on the debt question had not given up hope, however of displacing the shipping bill with the debt legislation.

It was stated [illegible] debt measure was given [illegible] after the ways and [illegible] reported out by [illegible] twelve to three the bill [illegible] yesterday by Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, a member of the American debt commission. As [illegible] by the committee the measure [illegible] only would save congressional approval to the work of the British and American debt commissioners, but would authorize the American commission to effect settlements "simple and not requiring complicated terms" with the other debtor nations.

The limitation on the terms to be accepted will contain [illegible] Belgium and the other nations owing money to the United States was written in at the suggestion of republican members who [illegible] after Mr. Burton had announced at an open hearing that it was not the purpose of the American commission to arrange terms with the countries which were more favorable than those given Great Britain.

RED PEPPER HEAT ENDS RHEUMATISM

Red Pepper Rub takes [illegible] from sore, stiff aching joints. It [illegible] and certainly [illegible] old rheumatic torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get started just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing like such concentrated, penetrating heat as red pepper. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat in three minutes it warms the [illegible] spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Lillian Brown Jewett.

(Contributed.)

It is with deep grief and regret that we are called upon to part with our much loved and esteemed relative, neighbor and friend.

Mrs. Lillian Brown Jewett, who was taken from our midst very suddenly and unexpectedly, on Tuesday of this week, from heart failure.

Mrs. Jewett was a woman of excellent personality, and one ever ready, with her kindly help and council. Whoever sought her, could always find in her a ready helper, as her large heart was her choicest possession. She was a very smart, capable, and persevering person, never letting any opportunity slip by, when she could be of comfort to whomever sought her assistance in any capacity. She always found occupation for her valuable time, never using it, to sit with folded hands, as her large circle of friends can testify. Always, from the age of her becoming self-supporting she used her income for the comfort and happiness of others, rather than for her own personal pleasure and pride. Mrs. Jewett is a member of several orders in this city who will miss her ever ready and willing assistance, and who will feel her loss keenly.

SAYS HE THREATENED WITH PISTOL FOR MONEY

Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury heard in the superior court here Thursday trial of the suit of Thomas Venditto against Louis Taner, both of New London, on Venditto's claim for $1,650 to collect a bill for building a cellar on Montauk avenue in August, 1915. Taner has a counter claim for $450.

The trial will be continued in court today (Friday), with Attorney G. C. Morgan and Abel Tanner for the plaintiff and John C. Geary for the defendant.

After the plaintiff testified at length, other witnesses for him were John J. Ryan, William Carino, Joe Campania and Frederick R. Benvenuti. The plaintiff rested at 3:20 p. m.

He told of going to the job on Saturdays in order to pay Venditto so that the workmen would get their pay, and of several attachments which were filed against him by creditors of Venditto, which prevented Taner from paying him money. As a consequence the work stopped for four or five weeks, but Venditto then resumed it and finished it in two or three weeks but didn't clear away the rubbish. Mr. Taner told of one time when he said Venditto pulled a pistol and said: "I'll shoot you if you don't pay my money." Taner said he called the police and Venditto ran away.

FREIGHT WRECK AT VERSAILLES SPILLS 8,000 GALLONS GASOLINE

A west bound freight engine running light, one of the largest used on the Providence division of the New Haven road, crashed into the rear end of a freight train Thursday morning about 6 o'clock a few hundred feet east of the Versailles station.

A tank car of the Gulf Refining Co., which was on the rear of the train, and a box car loaded with cases of mercerized cotton yarn were wrecked and the engine had its front smashed in although it did not leave the rails. No one was injured but the track was blocked for the balance of the day. A wrecker arrived at 1 in the afternoon and began to clear the track.

The damage was estimated at approximately $25,000.

When the engine hit the tank car, which contained 8,089 gallons of gasoline, the tank was pierced and the larger part of the gasoline ran to waste, although some people in the vicinity were able to save a little gas. A forty foot embankment contributed to the difficulty of saving the contents of the tank car.

The contents of the box car, which was just ahead of the oil car, were also scattered along the track and down the bank. It contained a shipment of 50 cases from the Myanza Cotton Mills Co., of Woonsocket, to the Burson Hosiery Mills at Rockford, Ill.

According to a report, the accident was due to the absence of a flagman and the failure of the engineer of the freight to flag the special engine.

JUDGE AVERY HEARS SUIT OVER JUDGMENT

A suit by Edward B. Smith & Co., brokerage firm, against James Gardner of New London to recover on a judgment of the superior court secured against James Vellis, formerly of New London, was heard by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court in New London Thursday. He reserved decision after hearing the evidence and the arguments.

In March, 1920, the Smith Co. brought suit against Vellis to obtain payment for stock which the defendant had bought on margin and on which the plaintiff alleges it overpaid the defendant. The defendant refused to return the money and the company obtained judgment for $1,209.86. In the suit a garnishee process was served against Gardner, who was indebted to Vellis on a contract for the purchase of the Liberty Lunch in State street.

An execution of the judgment was made upon Gardner who refused to pay it and the present action is on a scire facias proceeding to compel the defendant to show cause why he should not pay the execution.

Attorney Arthur T. Keefe represented the plaintiff and Attorney Warren B. Burrows the defendant.

Mr. Gardner gave testimony to show that he did not owe Vellis any money at the time the attachment was made in the suit by the Smith Co. against Vellis on Feb. 18, 1920. He testified that on Feb. 4 or 5, 15 notes for $1,000 each, payable one a month beginning March 10, which were to cover the balance due on the purchase price of the restaurant were assigned by Vellis to the Limpert Sales Co. of New York, to which the former was indebted and that he (Gardner) subsequently paid all the notes as they became due.

Peter Gardner, brother of the defendant, testified that Vellis told him that he had put everything in the hands of John Dimas, his partner, in the restaurant business.

WILL MAKE PLEA FOR FREE HIGHWAY BRIDGES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 8.—Among the important hearings tomorrow is one by the committee on roads, rivers and bridges on the bills discontinuing tolls on bridges on trunk line highways. This intimately affects New London county as New London is bordered by the Connecticut and Thames river bridges, two tolls being collected almost within its borders. This measure was before the assembly two years ago and while the sentiment on its favor was strong it was thought best in view of the financial condition of the state at that time, to defer action to this session. It was shown at that time that the cost of construction and maintenance had been paid for by the tolls collected. It has been understood that when this condition was reached the bridges would be made free.

A large delegation is expected to be present from New London.

The hearing is scheduled to be held in Room 65 at 2 p. m.

KEATING AND FENTON WAR VETERANS' SPEAKERS

Special messages of interest to the veterans of all wars will be given by Captain W. P. S. Keating, M. D., and Captain Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic at an open meeting to be held Saturday night at the town hall under the auspices of the Norwich Council of War Veterans.

The council completed arrangements for the meeting Thursday and it is expected that there will be a large attendance at the meeting which will be open to the general public. The meeting will be called to order at 8 o'clock by Charles N. Burdick, president of the council.

Many a man who gets his back up like a camel gets like a bear.

EXTRA GOVERNMENT CLAIM AGAINST KRONIG CO.

A government claim for approximately $1,109 for extra income tax for 1917, which has been presented against S. Kronig & Son, Inc., bankrupt, is causing another hearing in the bankruptcy case, which has been set for Feb. 16.—Notices to the creditors have been sent out by Bankruptcy Referee Thomas M. Shields. Earl Mathewson is receiver of the company.

Before the recent death of Leo Kronig he had filed with the trustee an acceptance from a majority of his creditors for a compromise of 25 per cent. in settlement, total claims aggregating about $43,000.

Meanwhile, however, the government claim has appeared, so that there are now not enough funds to carry out the terms of the composition agreement.

In his notice to creditors on the hearing Referee Shields holds out hope that some considerable money may be realized from the sale of the lease of the store. This, he says, was appraised as of no value, but he believes it can be sold for several thousand dollars, and he is not sure but that the creditors will realize more than the composition.

NORWICH REPRESENTATIVE WANTS LONGER VOTING HOURS

Hartford, Feb. 8.—Representative W. W. O'Leary of Norwich appeared this afternoon before the judiciary committee and spoke in favor of Senator Sulsman's bill making the voting hours in state elections from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Mr. O'Leary stated that at the last state election in Norwich 150 persons voted after the polls had closed. Questioned by Representative Cronin of the committee as to whether he meant that they actually voted, he replied that they did actually vote. Asked further by Mr. Cronin how this was done, Mr. O'Leary replied that it was by agreement.

Chairman Bingham asked why, if it had been possible to vote that way under the existing statutes, any change in the law was necessary.

Mr. O'Leary replied that it was possible such an agreement in the future could not be made.

The request created considerable comment about the corridor in the committee room.

Representative O'Leary's proposal arises from what happened in Norwich at the election last November when 60 men and women were allowed by Moderator M. H. Jensen to vote in the Central district after the legal hour for closing the polls.

These were all people who were actually inside the polling place before 6 o'clock, the time for closing the polls, but failed not been able to vote before the clock struck the hour. They had arrived and entered the town hall before the legal closing hour, but they had been unable to vote because of the contested conditions as the checkers had not been able to handle the crowd in time.

Moderator Jensen ordered the outside doors closed at 6 o'clock and allowed no more persons to enter to vote, but he ruled that all those who were in the polling place when the hour struck were entitled to vote and he directed the checkers and other election officials to keep on with their work until all had voted. The waiting list was cleaned up in 20 minutes and Moderator Jensen then declared the polls closed. His count of those waiting agreed with the count made by others that there were approximately 60 who were waiting to vote at 6 o'clock.

The committee recommended that a per capita tax of $2.50 be laid on each lodge member, less than thirty years a Mason, and that all Masons thirty years or more be urged to contribute towards the home.

Of the tax of $2.50, the sum of $2.15 will be turned over to the Masonic Charity foundation and the balance of 35 cents be devoted to Grand lodge uses.

CONGRESS IGNORES BUDGET ON RIVERS AND HARBORS

Washington Feb. 8.—The senate today adopted itself with the house in deciding to override the budget bureau's recommendation as to expenditures for work on rivers and harbors.

By a vote of 46 to 35 the senate tabled amendments to the annual army appropriation bill which would have removed the waterways item from $50,850,000, as passed by the house, to give $27,000,000 figure set by the bureau in one case, and to $12,000,000 in another. A final effort by Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, to raise the item to $20,000,000 was defeated 38 to 44.

The vote on the waterways provision came after the senate had devoted practically three days to its consideration, and it was expected to clear the way for early action on the army bill itself.

Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, who offered the motion to table the amendments to the waterways appropriation, declared most of the criticism against specific items was based on no better ground than that the items were small and the commerce affected unimportant in size.

"I maintain," he said, "that the people of a small fishing village have the same right to government aid in getting their produce to market as have the people of New York. The only difference is that the case of the village the cost might be $2,000 and in the other instance $50,000,000. I move to table these amendments so that the issue may be clear cut."

BISHOP MANNING ISSUES CHALLENGE TO REV. GRANT

New York, Feb. 8.—Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal church delivered before 1,000 national officials of the church, laymen and English vicars, banqueting with the Church club at the Waldorf-Astoria, tonight, an address which was interpreted as a direct challenge to Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant to utter publicly, and in unmistakable language, the doubts of the deity of Christ he recently implied in his pulpit at the Church of the Ascension.

"Let me say with all possible plainness," the bishop declared, "that if any member of this church—bishop, priest or deacon, should deny the deity of Our Lord Jesus Christ and express it in clear, courageous, unambiguous terms, no one need have the slightest fear that the church will shrink from meeting this issue, nor that she will fail to make definite action,, and the whole body of the clergy of this church will approve such action.

But the point to be kept clearly in mind is that the church cannot take formal action against denial of her faith unless the denial is expressed in words that are clear and unevasive, and are acknowledged by their author."

The address was heard by Bishop William Brown of Virginia, president of the Protestant Episcopal house of bishops, Bishop Thomas Gailor of Tennessee, president of the National Episcopal council and five other bishops, as well as several vicars of London parishes and hundreds of church officials and laymen who crowded the auditorium and balcony of the Waldorf's grand ballroom.

Neither Rev. Dr. Grant nor Rev. Dr. Howard Merrill Brimhall of Darien, Conn., with Monday night declared in the New York press and Bishop Manning should be brought to trial for their utterances during the existing controversy, were in attendance.

DANIELSON

A very distinctive honor has come to Mrs. C. Alton Frost of Riverview in winning the first prize offered for examples of Irish lace by the American Thread company at its needlecraft exhibit in New York. Mrs. Frost submitted an original and beautiful design, suitable for a centerpiece, and about six inches in width. In competition with exhibits from all over the world it was selected for premier honors, and on Thursday Mrs. Frost received a check for $65 as a special award. Under the terms of the competition the thread company reserves the right to retain the lace by doubling the amount of the award. The lace has not been returned and Mrs. Frost was uninformed Thursday evening as to whether it will be.

The prize winning lace has occupied Mrs. Frost's attention at odd times since last summer and was completed just before Christmas. Those who saw the completed design urged Mrs. Frost to enter it in the New York competition with the happy result herein set forth.

Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock funeral services for Byron H. Young, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young of South Killingly, were held at the undertaking rooms of A. J. Wood on Westlands street. Rev. Walter B. Williams conducted the services. The body was placed in the receiving vault, at Westfield cemetery. Four brothers of the deceased acted as bearers.

There appears to be inclination in some quarters to question the authenticity of an item that recently appeared in this column relative to the fox snare being pulled in the district of Brooklyn over Danielson way by a dog. In further estoppel of the fact it may be set down that the snares were turned over to the state police by the man who found them and the state officers now have them in their care.

Extensive rebuilding operations are to be undertaken by the state highway department when the better weather comes on a section of the Danielson-Willimantic state highway. Several miles of this route are to be rebuilt between Hampton and Willimantic. The section that is to receive attention has been built for years and is not in as good condition to withstand the present day heavy traffic as the department desires.

At the home of Mrs. C. W. Atwood, Broad street, Thursday afternoon, a whist under the auspices of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., was held. There was play at 13 tables. Refreshments were served. The committee in charge was made up of Miss Helen Perkins, chairman, Mrs. E. H. Keech, Mrs. C. W. Atwood and Mrs. Sabin S. Russell.

Keeping up its record for turning in low temperatures, February brought an 8 below mark, as shown at Woodward's store, Thursday morning. At other points in town instruments showed readings of 12 to 16 degrees below just before 7 a. m. Four mornings of the month to date have shown a total of 34 degrees below zero, 10 below being the mark on two successive mornings, 8 below on another and 6 below on another, as shown by the records at Woodward's store.

Forcefully, yet with no outward show, textile workers in this territory are at work along lines that they expect will bring about a restoration of the six hour week, one of the things that cotton textile manufacturers are resisting with great vehemence must not be done if the cotton mills of the north are not to be further handicapped in competing with southern cotton mills. If there is any one thing however, it is that 48 hours should constitute a week's work. That's why the matter is such an important one in view of many manufacturers' opposition to it.

The subject is one under almost constant discussion by the workers, and is as regularly discussed, but from a different viewpoint, by the manufacturers. A telling point that the workers make is that the 48-hour week is in vogue in the majority of places where there are unions of textile employes while 55 hours is the general rule, though there are exceptions, where the workers are not organized. Promising to obtain a return of the 48-hour week is one of the chief allurements being held out in the work of organizing cotton mill workers, now quietly but steadily going on here.

Applications continue to come in for membership in the Danielson Rod and Gun club, and Harold B. Atwood stated Thursday afternoon that there were $2 paid up memberships at that time. Memberships are coming in from all sections of the surrounding country, as is desired, for the club is by no means a local one and hopes to be of country-wide service in restocking operations and other work in the interest of better hunting and fishing. The club also has the assurance of Commissioner Titcomb that it will receive every consideration in its efforts to restock the woods and streams of Windham county.

A general meeting of the members is to be held next Wednesday evening at the central fire station and it is anticipated that the attendance will be representative of numbers of towns and villages in this part of the state. Several matters of interest will come up for consideration.

The honor list at Killingly High school was made public Thursday and is as follows:

Members of the Ladies' Sewing circle of St. Alban's church are to meet at the rectory this (Friday) afternoon to make arrangements for the Lenten season.

Rev. Walter B. Williams, B. C. Hopkins and Charles W. Hale have been at Hartford attending the Masonic grand lodge session of Connecticut.

Such conferences are being held in each state. Postoffice hours for that date will be announced later.

Dates in the bowling match between Barber of Danielson and Fillmore of Norwich have been changed. On Feb. 20th Barber will go to Norwich to roll and on Feb. 22 Fillmore will come to Danielson. Twenty-one games are to be rolled during the match, which will be decided on the number of games won and not on total pinfall.

Franklin Crosby, student at Wesleyan, is spending a few days following the midyear examinations with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Crosby, of Academy street.

County Y. M. C. A. leaders will come to Danielson to hold a meeting at the Methodist church Tuesday evening. A supper will be served by the ladies of the church.

And now comes the man who suggests that police dogs be used to trail the men who are setting snares in the town of Brooklyn. Police dogs are good trailers and getting the snarers would be excellent advertising for the breed.

Charles Pickett, for many years hostler at the roundhouse of the New Haven road in the Putnam railroad yard, is dead of pneumonia. Mr. Pickett passed away at the Day Kimball hospital after an illness of a few days. Mr. Pickett was one of the heaviest men in Putnam and weighed well over 300 pounds. Former he was a resident near the Sabin place, in the town of Killingly. He leaves his wife and children. Before coming to this city as a railroad worker many years ago Mr. Pickett was employed in mills in villages of the town of Killingly and was well known in Attawaugan and Ballouville.

As has been the custom for several years, a deputy collector of internal revenue will be at the rooms of the chamber of commerce in this city from February 23 to 28 inclusive, to assist those who desire such aid in making out their annual income tax returns. There is no charge for the service rendered.

In connection with the approach of the time limit for filing tax returns—March 15—it is interesting to note that many who escaped paying a tax last year because of depression in lines of endeavor in which they are engaged will be called upon to pay this year because of the fact that the past year was more prosperous than was 1921.

The Norwood (Mass.) high school basketball team will be here this Friday evening to meet the Putnam High school team at the school gymnasium. Here is what may be considered the premier event of the season in high school basketball in this city. The Norwood players have not tasted defeat this season and are being touted as the champions of the Inter-Boston high school teams. Following the game here this evening there is to be a dance at the school.

Members of the student body of Putnam high school are especially anxious to give the visitors something pleasant to remember from this evening's visit here, because the Putnam High team was royally entertained when it made a visit to Norwood last year.

Even the most hardened old Eskimo among the residents of Putnam was willing to cry "Enough!" Thursday morning after venturing out into another of what is proving to be a long series of Arctic temperature days. Theremeters about town showed 12 to 14 below zero just before sunrise and from the surrounding country reports came in of reading as low as 16 under the zero mark.

Aside from the discomfort of such unusually cold weather, there is the business side of the matter to consider. The severity of the weather since the first of the year and obstructed roads due to storms has operated to cut down the out of town trade and this is reflected in sales in many Putnam stores.

Happy indeed will be the greater majority of humanity when something stouter in the way of weather is offered this section than has yet been experienced for any length of time this winter.

Following an annual custom, there is to be a public reception at the state trade school in this city on the evening of March 27. All departments of the school will be in operation and all who attend are assured of seeing a great deal that will be of interest to them. Director H. H. Ellis established last year that such receptions are of very general interest, and he hopes the success of that reception will be duplicated this year.

Although this city has its trains and trolleys and radio sets galore, one sometimes hears things in Eastford that one does not hear in Putnam. For instance, A. M. Bowen of that far off corner of Windham county now comes forth and sets down on paper where all can see that he heard the explosion that caused loss of life and wreckage one day last week. And Springfield is at least 40 miles from Eastford.

Members of the Putnam Country club have been extremely active this week in an endeavor to make a success of their plan for raising money with which to pay off a mortgage on their property to the south of the city. What they have been able to do will be set forth for all who are interested this (Friday) evening evening when the drive they have been conducting will end.

Coke and other substitutes for real honest-to-goodness fuel is being used in Putnam homes to patch out the remainder of a winter worse than any experienced during the war, insofar as a suitable fuel supply is concerned. Frankly the coke is a flivver in combatting such cold weather as the past six weeks have brought. Mixing soft coal with hard coal is not at all satisfactory, but these are hardships that must be endured in getting through the winter such as may not be duplicated in many years relative to a combined fuel shortage and unusually low temperatures. Some of the coal shortage in Putnam is due to the fact that cars of fuel originally designed for this city has been diverted to other points.

Francis Ouiemt, former open golf champion, is among those who has contributed to funds now being raised by the Putnam Country club. He has sent a check for $5, and in a letter to George E. Shaw, one of Putnam's most enthusiastic golfers, wishes that gentlemen the good luck to be able to play even a better game of golf than before undergoing a surgical operation for the removal of a leg, asserting that he has met in England several first class players who have lost the use of a leg, yet are playing a higher grade game than ever before.

The program prepared is certain to prove a very instructive one.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

RATION SERVICE FOR FEBRUARY

The February ration service has just been received from the Connecticut Agricultural college and the New London County Farm Bureau issues the following information in regard to rations for this month:

"The feed has had rather a firm tendancy during the past month. Just at present wheat feeds are strong on the market. Cottonseed and oil meal continue at about the same prices. Gluten still stays rather high and is hard to obtain in many sections. Hominy feed has shown a slight advance. Corn and oats are about the same price with a tendency toward advancing. Shipping conditions are in bad shape. It would be well for dairymen to keep stock up with a reasonable supply of all feeds as they are obtainable.

All prices takes into consideration there seems no reason for changing the rations as given in December and January. It is not advisable to keep changing rations, unless there is an exceptional change in grain prices, on certain feeds, or unless some decided change is made in the roughage feeds.

WATCH OUT FOR CATTLE LICE

Many requests are coming in asking for treatment for cattle lice. There are many louse powders on the market and many of them give good results. Probably one of the easiest and most common remedies to use is raw linseed oil. Apply with some kind of a brush. Rub lightly into the hair, back of the horns and ears, and along the back bone, and at the tail setting. It is also well to apply back of the elbows. Any of the coal tar solutions may be used but if they are used at this time of the year, the animal should be wiped fairly dry and blanketed to prevent catching cold. Most of the coal tar products are used at the rate of one part to 50 parts of water. Directions always come with the disinfectant, and these should be followed. A second application should always be applied in from 7 to 10 days in order to catch the young that may have hatched out since the first application. When oils are used, it is not advisable to rub the animal to any great extent, and they should not be exposed to the sun for a day or so after the application. Several applications may be needed before the animal is freed from these pests. Stables and bedding should also be cleaned out and the stanchions sprayed with some coal tar disinfectant, using a 2 to 3 per cent solution. The more thorough the treatment the quicker the animals be freed from lice.—A. R. Merrill, Dairy Specialist, Conn. Agr. College, Extension Service.

OUTLINES FEBRUARY SCHEDULE FOR FARM

Start your spring farm plans at once by making a map of your farm, is the advice of a county agent. It is by this method only that the farmer, particularly if he is cultivating a large area, will be able to know in a moment whether he is giving his land the treatment it deserves, and whether he is farming it in the most economical manner.

When the outline of the farm is made, locate next to the buildings, then the woodlot and pasture could be put in very roughly, but the fields and the shape of the fields should be located with great care. Next put down on this map the fertilization that each field has received in the last two years. Then show on the map the kind of crops that were grown last year and the crops to be grown this year.

When this is done one will be able to see at a glance whether he is using any sort of rotation of crops that might be adaptable to his farm; if he is fertilizing each crop most economically, the approximate amount of seed, lime and fertilizer he will need this spring, the misshapen fields that should be changed by removing fence, etc.; the amount of land plowed and the amount to be plowed.

Then when this is done and the seed and fertilizer have been ordered for another year, he can make out roughly the succession of operations for the spring. In this way one operation will not be piled upon another when spring opens.

Here is an excellent farm schedule:

1. Map of the farm should be made.
2. Seed and fertilizer ordered for 1923.
3. The farm workshop should be kept busy to see that all tools which are to be used in the spring are sharpened and ready for use.
4. Clean out the brooder house, the incubator and run the latter for three or four days to make sure that it will work when you want it.
5. Select out the hens and roosters to be used for mating.
6. Matings should be made two weeks before eggs are set.

TELLS VALUE OF WOOD LOT

In New England more than 66 per cent. of the forested land is on the farm, and in the northern states the income to farmers from timber products is estimated at $162,000,000 yearly, according to the state forestry service. With a view to increasing the value of his timber to the farmer in this section agents of the Hampden county (Mass.) Improvement League are preparing to increase their activities this year in dealing with the problem of the farm wood lot. To bring home to the Hampden county farmers the possibilities of his wood lot the following bulletin has been prepared for woodlot owners:

"Do you realize that the woodlot is generally the most abused portion of a farm? Do you consider your timber as a farm crop and treat it as such? Are you improving the condition of your woodlot by cutting firewood from dead or dying trees, diseased trees, the less valuable kinds and trees interfering with the growth of better ones? These are the 'weed' trees to be removed for the same reason that weeds are taken out of other farm crops.

"Are you careful not to injure young trees when cutting timber? Do you believe that young trees which are usually considered as brush have a value? These trees form the basis for more timber. Do you know that trees improve and build up the soil by the decomposition of the leaves and twigs which fall to the ground?

"Are you using your woodlot as pasture? Little or no grass grows on well stocked woodland and the food value is small in whatever grass is found. Then too, the damage to the trees, young or old, and to the soil itself far exceeds the benefits derived from the use of the woodlot as pasture.

"Are you utilizing every foot of your farm by growing trees on portions not suitable for cultivation and which may be unproductive now? Trees can be planted in such places during spare time at little cost which will increase the value of the farm.

Are you taking precautions to protect your woodlot from fire and are you urging your neighbor to do likewise? A tree will make a million matches—a match may destroy a million trees. The woodlot furnishes employment for yourself and teams during the 'off season' on the farm, without which this time might prove a serious loss.

"The right handling of forest trees on the farm will make it more prosperous, add to its comforts as a home, and enhance its value as an investment."

SQUARE DEALING FOR SWEET CORN

In laying out the plan for the vegetable garden, one item of importance should be borne in mind. That is that sweet corn should be planted in squares, or at least in rectangles, instead of long single rows, or even double rows.

Nine hills of corn planted in a square will produce more corn to the cob than the same nine hills planted in a straight line. The reason for this is that the square planting gives a better distribution of the pollen or powder from the tassels upon the silks. Each silk represents a grain of corn on the cob. It must receive pollen to fill out the kernel of corn. In the single row planting much of the pollen is wasted. The wind is the main agent of pollenization of corn. Bees occupy a part in the work, but not a very prominent one, as in the case of other plants, for the tassel and the cob and silk are separate on the corn, the two, although separate on the stalk forming the complete organism for producing the seed.

In square planting, from whichever direction the wind may come, the pollen is bound to be blown through the planting, and fertilization accomplished. In the single row the greater portion of it is blown away, a gentle breeze, which merely shakes it down, being the best for fertilizing.

If you want plump well filled ears plant the corn in squares, or at least rectangles.

It will be necessary to pick out this portion of the garden in making your plans and adjust to it. Of course, a fair yield can be secured on straight, single rows, as every gardener knows, but a much heavier-grained ear is bound to result from squares. Often ears only half filled out are found in the long rows, or rows in which the end has not developed. This is due to incomplete pollenizing because the pollen has blown away instead of performing its proper function.

WHITE CLOVER IS GOOD HONEY MAKER

There is one plant at least that the beekeeper can afford to sow and encourage the cultivation of, namely sweet clover. Long ago people noticed and remarked on the fact that bees were unusually attracted to the small white flowers of this [illegible] and long ago the plant took a reputation as an abundant source of fine white honey.

Melilotus alba, white sweet clover, is a hardy biennial plant growing to a height of about 18 inches the first year, dying down during the winter and attaining a height of anywhere from 4 to 6 feet the second season with a spread of from 2 to 4 feet. When once started off in suitable soil it reseeds itself and tends to spread.

White sweet clover does best on natural limestone soils or on soils in this section which have received a good application of lime to sweeten them. It will grow on poor sandy soils, along a sandy railroad embankment, or at the side of a hard clay road bed provided the soil is not too acid. Melilotus alba is a great soil improver since it is a legume and has all the ability of the best plants of this family in gathering large amounts of nitrogen from the air and storing it in the form of proteins in its stems, leaves and branches.

DRIVE LICE AWAY AND INCREASE MILK FLOW

Probably no one cause is so universal for the decrease in milk flow as lice on the dairy cows, according to one county agent, who says that at least 50 per cent of the herds are affected by lice. Where animals are badly infested, it will make a difference of two quarts of milk a day to the animal. If takes systematic treatment to entirely get rid of such insects.

One dairyman who has charge of a large herd of cattle in that town, said he had tried all kinds of recommendations, but for him there was only one that seemed to be practical. This was the use of material known as "Black Flag Dust." He said that this can be obtained at any drug store.

He places it in an old salt-shaker. This is dusted on the animals from the head back to the tail. If this is put on once every three weeks for about three times, there will be no lice left. But he also added that it would be wise when the animals are turned out of their stanchions to take kerosene oil and spray or brush it over the stanchions and sides of the walls of the dairy stable. This is done as a precaution to kill any lice in these places.

"Black Flag Dust" will do the work because of its guaranteed content of volatine nicotin. It is believed that this material will be more effective for killing insects when used under fairly warm temperature conditions. The county agricultural agent has not used this himself, but has had fairly good results from the use of kerosene emulsion. Just because it is a liquid it is much harder to apply and is likely to cause cold to the animals on which it is applied. The dust, on the other hand, can be applied at any time, and will not cause cold.

The owner of cattle should treat his animals this month for it is during the spring time and approach of warm weather that the lice begin to irritate the animals and decrease the flow of milk.

SELLING EGGS BY COLOR OF SHELLS

Every little while the time honored discussion that the quality of an egg may be told to a certain extent by the color of the shell is revived. So far as the intrinsic value of the egg is concerned, there is no real basis for such a belief, but so far as market conditions are concerned there is sometimes a cash value to support such an idea.

Almost every poultryman knows, for example, that New York city will pay a higher price for white shelled eggs, while the Boston market will pay a higher price for brown shelled eggs, and that frequently there is a difference of two cents a dozen in favor of the color preferred in the various markets. In other markets the matter of the color of the shell is usually of small importance, and in the markets of our smaller cities, towns and villages the people sensibly seem to place more value on the freshness and cleanliness than they do on the color of the shell.

Crate Eggs by Color.

One important rule in packing eggs for market, however, is to keep the color of the egg shells in the package uniform, so that the eggs will not look like a mixed lot. White eggs will usually sell better if placed in a crate by themselves, and likewise brown eggs will do the same. Some poultrymen, especially those supplying a fancy trade, deem it advisable to crate eggs of various shades of brown so that all eggs in the package will look very much alike.

Fowls of European origin lay white shelled eggs and those of Asiatic origin, as a rule, lay darker shelled eggs. Eggs of different varieties of the same breed may vary slightly in color. For example, the eggs of dark plumaged fowls usually have darker colored shells. A cross between two breeds, one of which lays brown shelled eggs and the other white shelled eggs, usually results in fowls that lay eggs of a color intermediate of the brown and white.

There is also a noticeable variation in the color of eggs from different hens of the same variety. The color of the shell is more pronounced in eggs laid first than those laid later in the season.

Dark Eggs from Asiatics.

The more Asiatic blood a fowl has in its veins, the darker will be the color of the egg shell. The eggs with the darkest colored shell are laid by Langshans. The color of the shell produced by the most popular egg producers is given in the list following:

White Shells—Anconas, Andalusians, Crevecoeurs, Campines, Games (some are tinted), Hamburgs, Houdans, Leghorns, La Fleche, Minorcas, Polish, Redcaps.

Many poultry breeders making a specialty of eggs believe that one of the most desirable points is to keep hens producing eggs of uniform color. Hence, the color of the egg they most desire they try to keep as pure as possible. For example, as soon as a Rhode Island Red or Plymouth Rock or any other pure bred fowl are crossed with any other fowls they usually produce off color eggs.

Sometimes, even a pure bred fowl will begin to show some reversion to an old ancestor and lay eggs that are not true to the color of her variety. Careful poultrymen usually eliminate such hens from the breeding flock because if they are used in breeding the fault will be probably perpetuated.

Although the color of the eggs is considered to be more or less of a fancy by most people, most poultrymen will usually agree that it pays to have a uniform color, and this should be considered by the breeder who wants to get the most money for his product.—S. W. Shoemaker.

EAT NO SWEETS IF YOU ARE RHEUMATIC

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat no sweets for awhile, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid or body waste matter, and is often generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity, in damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this toxic acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste and stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

RATION SERVICE FOR FEBRUARY

The February ration service has just been received from the Connecticut Agricultural college and the New London County Farm Bureau issues the following information in regard to rations for this month:

"The feed has had rather a firm tendency during the past month. Just at present wheat feeds are strong on the market. Cottonseed and oil meal continue at about the same prices. Gluten still stays rather high and is hard to obtain in many sections. Hominy feed has shown a slight advance. Corn and oats are about the same price with a tendency toward advancing. Shipping conditions are in bad shape. It would be well for dairymen to keep stock up with a reasonable supply of all feeds as they are obtainable.

All prices takes into consideration there seems no reason for changing the rations as given in December and January. It is not advisable to keep changing rations, unless there is an exceptional change in grain prices, on certain feeds, or unless some decided change is made in the roughage feeds.

WATCH OUT FOR CATTLE LICE

Many requests are coming in asking for treatment for cattle lice. There are many louse powders on the market and many of them give good results. Probably one of the easiest and most common remedies to use is raw linseed oil. Apply with some kind of a brush. Rub lightly into the hair, back of the horns and ears, and along the back bone, and at the tail setting. It is also well to apply back of the elbows. Any of the coal tar solutions may be used, but if they are used at this time of the year, the animal should be wiped fairly dry and blanketed to prevent catching cold. Most of the coal tar products are used at the rate of one part to 50 parts of water. Directions always come with the disinfectant, and these should be followed. A second application should always be applied in from 7 to 10 days in order to catch the young that may have hatched out since the first application. When oils are used, it is not advisable to rub the animal to any great extent, and they should not be exposed to the sun for a day or so after the application. Several applications may be needed before the animal is freed from these pests. Stables and bedding should also be cleaned out and the sunnyions sprayed with some coal tar disinfectant using a 2 to 3 per cent solution. The more thorough the treatment the quicker the animals be freed from lice.—A. R. Merrill, Dairy Specialist, Conn. Agr. College, Extension Service.

OUTLINES FEBRUARY SCHEDULE FOR FARM

Start your spring farm plans at once by making a map of your farm, is the advice of a county agent. It is by this method only that the farmer, particularly if he is cultivating a large area will be able to know in a moment whether he is giving his land the treatment it deserves, and whether he is farming it in the most economical manner.

When the outline of the farm is made, locate next to the buildings, then the woodlot and pasture could be put in very roughly, but the fields and the shape of the fields should be located with great care. Next put down on this map the fertilization that each field has received in the last two years. Then show on the map the kind of crops that were grown last year and the crops to be grown this year.

When this is done one will be able to see at a glance whether he is using any sort of rotation of crops that might be adaptable to his farm; if he is fertilizing each crop most economically, the approximate amount of seed, lime and fertilizer he will need this spring, the misshapen fields that should be changed by removing fences, etc.; the amount of land plowed and the amount to be plowed.

Then when this is done and the seed and fertilizer have been ordered for another year, he can make out roughly the succession of operations for the morning. In this way one operation will not be piled upon another when spring opens.

Here is an excellent farm schedule:

1. Map of the farm should be made.
2. Seed and fertilizer ordered for 1923.
3. The farm workshop should be kept busy so see that all tools which are to be used in the spring are sharpened and ready for use.
4. Clean out the brooder house, the incubator and run the latter for three or four days to make sure that it will work when you want it.
5. Select out the hens and roosters to be used for mating.
6. Matings should be made two weeks before eggs are set.

TELLS VALUE OF WOOD LOT

In New England more than 65 per cent. of the forested land is on the farm, and in the northern states the income to farmers from timber products is estimated at $162,000,000 yearly, according to the state forestry service. With a view to increasing the value of his timber to the farmer in this section agents of the Hampden county (Mass.) Improvement League are preparing to increase their activities this year in dealing with the problem of the farm wood lot. To bring home to the Hampden county farmers the possibilities of his wood lot the following bulletin has been prepared for woodlot owners:

"Do you realize that the woodlot is generally the most abused portion of a farm? Do you consider your timber as a farm crop and treat it as such? Are you improving the condition of your woodlot by cutting firewood from dead or dying trees, diseased trees, the less valuable kinds and trees interfering with the growth of better ones? These are the 'weed' trees to be removed for the same reason that weeds are taken out of other farm crops.

"Are you careful not to injure young trees when cutting timber? Do you believe that young trees which are usually considered as brush have a value? These trees form the basis for more timber. Do you know that trees improve and build up the soil by the decomposition of the leaves and twigs which fall to the ground?

"Are you using your woodlot as pasture? Little or no grass grows on well stocked woodland and the food value is small in whatever grass is found. Then too, the damage to the trees, young or old, and to the soil itself far exceeds the benefits derived from the use of the woodlot as pasture.

"Are you utilizing every foot of your farm by growing trees on positions not suitable for cultivation and which may be unproductive now? Trees can be planted in such places during spare time at little cost which will increase the value of the farm.

Are you taking precautions to protect your woodlot from fire and are you urging your neighbor to do likewise? A tree will make a million matches—a match may destroy a million trees. The woodlot furnishes employment for yourself and teams during the 'off season' on the farm, with out which this time might prove a serious loss.

'The right handling of forest trees on the farm will make it more prosperous, add to its comfort as a home, and enhance its value as an investment."

SQUARE DEALING FOR SWEET CORN

In laying out the plan for the vegetable garden, one item of importance should be borne in mind. That that sweet corn should be planted in squares, or at least in rectangles instead of long single rows or even double rows.

Nine hills of corn planted in a square will produce more ears to the hill than the same nine hills planted in a straight line. The reason for this is that the square planting gives a better distribution of the pollen or powder from the tassels upon the silks. Each silk represents a grain of corn on the cob. It must receive pollen to fill out the kernel of corn. In the single row planting much of the pollen is wasted. The wind is the main agent of pollenization of corn. Bees occupy a part in the matter, but not a very prominent one. In the case of other plants, like the squash and the cob and silk are the flowers, the corn, the fruit, although separate on the stalk forms the complete organism for producing the seed.

In square planting, from whichever direction the wind may come, the pollen is bound to be blown through the planting, and fertilization accomplished. In the single row the greater portion of it is blown away, a gentle breeze, which merely shakes it down, being the best for fertilizing.

If you want plump, well filled ears plant the corn in squares, or at least rectangles.

It will be necessary to put up this portion of the garden in making your plans and adjust to it. Of course a fair yield can be secured on straight, single rows, as every gardener knows, but a much heavier-grained ear is bound to result from squares. Often ears only half filled out are found in the long rows or rows on which the seed has not developed. This is due to incomplete pollenizing, because the pollen has blown away instead of performing its proper function.

WHITE CLOVER IS GOOD HONEY MAKER

There is one plant at least that the beekeeper can afford to sow and encourage the cultivation of, namely sweet clover. Long ago people noticed and remarked on the fact that bees were unusually attracted to the small white flowers of this bush-like plant and long ago this plant made a reputation as an abundant source of fine white honey.

Melilotus alba, white sweet clover, is a hardy biennial plant growing to a height of about 15 inches the first year, dying down during the winter and attaining a height of anywhere from 5 to 6 feet the second season, with a spread of from 2 to 4 feet. When once started off it spreads and reseeds itself and tends to spread.

White sweet clover does best on [illegible] soils containing [illegible] which have received an application of lime to sweeten them. It will grow on poor sandy soils, also on sandy railroad embankments or on the side of a hard clay road bed provided the soil is not too acid. Melilotus alba is a great soil improver, for it is a legume and has all the ability of the best plants of the [illegible] gathering large amounts of nitrogen from the air and storing it in the form of proteins in its stems, leaves and branches.

DRIVE LICE AWAY AND INCREASE MILK FLOW

Probably no one cause is so universal for the decrease in milk flow as lice on the dairy cows, according to one county agent, who says that at least 50 per cent of the herds are affected by lice. Where animals are badly infested, it will make a difference of two quarts of milk a day in the animal. It takes systematic treatment to entirely get rid of such insects.

One dairyman, who has charge of a large herd of cattle in that town said he had tried all kinds of recommendations, but for long there was only one that seemed to help practical. This was the use of [illegible] known as "Black Flag Dust." He said that this can be obtained at any drug store.

He places it in an old salt shaker. This is dusted on the animals from the head back to the tail. If this is put on once every three weeks for about three times, there will be no lice left. But he also added that it would be wise when the animals are turned out of their stanchions to take kerosene oil and spray or brush it over the stanchions and sides of the walls of the dairy stable. This is done as a precaution to kill any lice in these places.

"Black Flag Dust" will do the work because of its guaranteed content of volatine nicotin. It is believed that this material will be more effective for killing insects when used under fairly warm temperature conditions. The county agricultural agent has not used this himself, but has had fairly good results from the use of kerosene emul-

[illegible] honored [illegible] extent by [illegible] hell is revived. So far [illegible] egg [illegible] not a real basis for [illegible] are concerned there is [illegible] a cash value to support [illegible] plea.

Almost every poultryman knows, for [illegible] that New York city will pay [illegible] price for white shelled eggs, while the Boston market will pay a higher price for brown shelled eggs, and [illegible] frequently there is a difference [illegible] eggs in favor of [illegible] color preferred in the various markets. In other markets the matter of color of the shell is usually of small importance, and in the markets of smaller cities, towns and villages the people sensibly seem to place more value on the freshness and cleanliness than they do on the color of the shell.

Crate Eggs by Color.

One important rule in packing eggs for market, however, is to keep the colors of the eggs shells in the package uniform so that the eggs will not look mixed or motley. White eggs will usually sell better if placed in a crate by themselves, and likewise brown eggs by themselves the same. Some poultrymen, especially those supplying a fancy trade, count it advisable to crate eggs of varying shades of brown so that all eggs in the package will look very much alike.

Eggs of European origin lay white shelled eggs and those of Asiatic origin, as a rule, lay darker shelled eggs. Eggs of different varieties of the same breed may vary shellfish in color. For example, the eggs of dark plumaged fowls usually have darker colored shells. A cross between two breeds, one of which lays brown shelled eggs and the other white shelled eggs, usually results in fowls that lay eggs of a color intermediate of the brown and white.

There is also a noticeable variation in the color of eggs from different hens of the same variety. The color of the shell is more pronounced in eggs laid [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Senator Trumbull said there was no objection in the committee to the reappointment of Mr. Bailey on the motion of the senator the resolution was transmitted to the house.

The senate adjourned [illegible].

NOTES.

Governor Templeton today sent to the senate a communication appointing the appointment of Walter H. Clark of Hartford and Elliott Watrous of New Haven to be members of the state board of public welfare. Both are reappointments.

Representative O'Leary, of Norwich, was present today, being the second time in the nearly seven weeks of the session.

Too much tax exemption is going on in the state now, said House Chairman Christ, of the finance committee in making an unfavorable report on the bill exempting from taxation the property of the N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad in Westport. He showed there was [illegible] taxable property [illegible] Longer [illegible] favorable report [illegible] present [illegible] and there was [illegible] would be exempted.

MAKES RECOMMENDATION TO FACILITATE MOVING FREIGHT

Several important recommendations [illegible] the attention of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce which was made public Wednesday. The committee [illegible] that motor express companies be declared common carriers and be required to file and adhere to their schedule of rates and operation; improvement in terminal facilities in this state which will decrease cost and increase the speed of handling freight, and taxation of trucks carrying a load in excess of three tons and traveling at a speed exceeding fifteen miles per hour on a scale graduated in proportion to the destructive effect of weight and [illegible] the installation of a "pick-up and store-door" delivery service for electric railways.

The report of the committee in [illegible] program for developing the [illegible] it is hardly fair to expect motor transportation to bear the entire [illegible] the other hand, motor cars have access to city streets, town and country roads which are not supported by the state. It has never, however, been the theory of taxation that utilities [illegible] to rate of taxation high enough to bear the entire cost of the state highway system could be imposed upon the motor vehicles of the state without inflicting grave and serious injury on a large class of users who confine their activities almost entirely to city streets or country roads. In view, however, of the fact that the motor truck carries a load in excess of any three to [illegible] and travels [illegible] way it would [illegible] that the registration [illegible] trucks of this [illegible] on a scale [illegible] to the [illegible] and speed.

Motor truck express [illegible] operate only at their convenience and at rates of their own making. Motor express companies who are doing a legitimate common carrier business should also be protected against unfair competition from irresponsible competitors. There would seem to be no good reason why such express companies should not be declared common carriers and required to file and adhere to their schedule of rates and operation.

Electric Railways.

The electric railways of our state reach many points not readily accessible by steam railway and are already handling a considerable volume of local freight. Cars are operated on a regular schedule and at a tariff approved by the public utilities commission. It would seem to be better for the community that this service should be further developed, both as a means of transportation between local centers and as a pick-up service for through freight.

Motor Trucks.

During the last few years the motor truck has appeared as a serious competitor in the transportation field. To a certain extent the use of the motor truck is due to the [illegible] service which may be classed as convenience and speed rather than [illegible] and actual economy in operation. The manufacturer, to whom prompt delivery is a matter of prime importance or whose product is of such a nature that quick transportation assures a large saving in packing, as well as one more [illegible] who wishes to make [illegible] of [illegible] of that charged by the railroad. It seems probable, however, that the [illegible] largely from a desire to be free from the [illegible] or less necessary annoyance and inconveniences attending [illegible] and [illegible] cases because of an indirect benefit which might be described as the advantage of the [illegible] over the railroad. These two added classes of users are probably diminishing in number and importance.

OUR NEW ENGLAND SOIL HASN'T WORN OUT

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

When a man is writing history or fiction or essays or sermons or anything of that general sort, he is very apt to get into the habit of what the boys of my time used to call "slinging ink." That is, he uses a good many big words to say what a few very short ones would tell better.

But when a business man is writing an advertisement which he has got to pay for, in proportion to its length and wordiness, he is more apt to weigh his words and try to make each one count double. Furthermore, he isn't looking for praise from the critics but for dollars from his customers. An essay or a sermon may be beautifully written and flow as limpidly as a Connecticut trout-brook, and yet never seem to get anywhere. But an advertisement is a business "go-getter," and is successful only when it brings in the business it starts after. Therefore, I rather like to read advertisements, just to find "pointers" showing how to say a thing tersely, and at the same time attractively and effectively.

That's how I came to read over a recent advertising pamphlet of a poultry supplies firm of national reputation. Particularly the introductory pages on "How to Make he Most of Farming Operations." I am not interested in any way in poultry supplies and very little in poultry. But I am deeply interested, as every farmer whether ex- or active should be, in how to make the most of and from our farms. Therefore I wanted to see how a hard-headed, business-seeking dealer in one form of farm accessories would look on that question. I wonder if you wouldn't be interested, too?

The advertiser is Philip R. Park of the Park & Pollard Company, and my attention was first struck by this flat-footed assertion:

"Do not say that agriculture in New England is dead; rather say that many of the methods in use in New England are dead. Bring your farm up to 100 per cent. efficiency before you say that the trouble with New England agriculture is the land. New England land is the biggest bargain in the country today."

That's talking some, eh? What do you think of it, esteemed fellow hayseed? If I had said it, you might have retorted that I was talking through my hat. If some candidate for congress had said it you might have discounted it as soft soap extended for rural lathering. But when a hard-headed business man, himself born and brought up on a Massachusetts farm, pays good money for it to say it and having it printed that's different.

Mr. Park begins his plea by saying what it seems as if every practical farmer must agree with, viz: that "To make the most out of your farm the aim should be to sell more and buy less." That's about as simple a statement of a primary truth as you could ask for. But how are you going to put it into working effect? His answer: a "corn." He devotes quite a bit of space to arguing that. You and I have talked more or less about it in the past, without seeming to get anywhere. Whether Mr. Park will do any better remains to be seen. But I can't help feeling a little encouraged to find such a man reaffirming many of the points I've attempted to make.

He declares without any hesitation that "corn is a 100 per cent. crop for the east. It adapts itself to eastern conditions and to almost any soil." "No crop takes its place." It produces heavy grain and forage yields, it supplies not only the usual sources of nutrition but also the essential vitamines whose presence spells health and whose absence death.

How to raise it successfully? How to make raising corn pay here in New England? He answers that this depends on how much we raise to the acre and how we raise it. "Obviously we cannot buy fertilizer and plant a crop of corn that yields 40 bushels to the acre, and expect to compete with the west." His formula is "lime and clover." Buy lime and get the soil sweet; plant clover to take the nitrogen out of the air; feed live stock on the clover; dress the clover sod with barnyard manure; plant corn and "grow a crop that will excel the western average." Then turn the corn, right on the farm, into poultry or pork or beef or mutton, and sell them for more than the grain would fetch.

He insists that this can be done right in New England better than anywhere else in the country. "An eastern farm really lends itself to a self-contained basis of farming better than farms in any other section." he contends. In the south dry weather shuts the pastures and hot weather prevents raising corn. Same in the southwest. The northwest has fine pastures but is too high and frosty for corn. Iowa and similar states can raise mighty corn but the land is too high in price for pasture. New England, on the contrary, has the pastures and the climate and the soil for corn.

He might have added that it has also the tremendous advantage of omnivorous markets right at its doors, obviating the necessity of wasting half the value of the crop in the cost of transportation.

He might have added, also, that Prof. Esten's epochal demonstrations at Storrs have proven the possibility of raising simply immense crops of corn on a seemingly hopeless hill-top barren, by the use of lime and raw phosphates, supplemented by the aid of such bacteria gatherers as clover or soy beans.

In this line, I have a bit of personal experience to relate. The present John Farmer farm has been cultivated, mostly by my forbears, for something like a hundred and fifty years. It is about like other New England farms. Some of it is marshy; some is ledge-y; some is gravelly; some is underlaid with boulder clay; practically all is hilly and rough. It has about as much poor land and about as many drawbacks as the usual New England farm.

One by one, our neighbors have, during the last fifty years or so, given up raising corn. Competition of western corn cut down the price of the grain, and most of the neighbors also complained that their crops had deteriorated in point of yield. "It doesn't pay to try to raise corn any more," was the general cry.

Yet for all that hundred and fifty years, we of the John Farmer ranch have kept on raising corn. No great quantity, of course, for the little farm hasn't the acreage. But a fair amount in proportion to the land and the other crops. I don't remember that we have any of us ever sold any, except for seed. The crop has been fed out on the farm, grain and fodder. It has been used to make butter and cheese—in the old days—and eggs and pork, and beef. We have usually got fairly good prices for it, sold in these forms. Nor have we found any deterioration in the productiveness of the soil. I can raise just as good corn on it today as my great-grandfather could raise on it in 1778. In fact, I can raise better corn than any preserved records show he ever did.

The explanation is simply that we've always fed the land before asking it to feed the crops. We've treated it as we wanted it to treat us—generously and as wisely as our knowledge enabled us to. Not until recently did any of us understand the value of legumes as bacteria-breeders, but we've always stuck to clover, and used it freely, both as forage and fertilizer. My father was one of the first in the neighborhood to call in the aid of phosphates. He also for a long time used freely that form of lime found in land plaster.

I have actually raised good, profitable corn seventeen years running on the same piece of ground, and could have kept it up seventeen years more, just as successfully, had health and strength permitted.

No, brethren, our New England soil hasn't worn out—unless we have ourselves wasted it. If we have done that through ignorance or recklessness, we can reinvigorate and recreate it.

When such a thin-soiled country as Denmark, which has been cropped and cropped for two thousand years, can today out-yield our best land, it is proof either of laziness or incapacity for us to whimper about "worn-out" soils, after hardly two centuries of farming.

Nobody can expect New England farmers with their small holdings to compete in any gross output of corn with the men on the western plains. Those westerners can farm square miles where we can farm only acres. They can raise carloads where we can find room to raise only bushels. But they can't raise as good a quality as we can, nor can they raise as many bushels to the acre. At least, they don't. The New England farmer who fails to raise at least all the corn his own stock requires is wasting one of his greatest opportunities for economical independence.

The same must be said of many other farm and garden products. It is just as true of New England farming, as of all other that its success depends on the farmer's selling much and buying less. He simply must buy less than he sells or he is headed for debt and bankruptcy. We have got to return, in some measure, to the old-time system which made every farm a practically independent and self-supporting institution.

If our small fields prevent us from competing, as grain-sellers, with the broad prairies of the west, they nevertheless are ample to supply our own home needs. If we can't raise corn and potatoes and oats and onions to compete in the export markets with Iowa and Long Island and Michigan and Norfolk, we can at least raise enough for our own use, so that we needn't buy them from Iowa or Long Island or Michigan or Norfolk.

One trouble with New England farming is that too many of us have given up the fight before we were licked. What was that famous dispatch of Marshal Foch's at the first battle of the Marne? "My right has been crushed; my left is in retreat; I am attacking with my center." Something like that, wasn't it? And the attack he made with his center not only checked the enemy, but defeated him.

When the great farmers of the western corn-belt began pouring their corn by train-loads into eastern markets and underselling New England growers, too many gave up the fight as lost, right then and there. Which was a big mistake. That was when the fight really began. Admitting that one wing of our farming was broken, there still remained another wing. Even if that was driven back, there was still a center reserve. Not till all three were beaten was hope gone. Or the chance of a real victory.

The center of New England farming, it's really wonderful soil, has never been endangered by western competition. It can't be. Our business is to take advantage of it; take all the advantage long experience and candid acceptance of new discoveries can give us; and hold the fort.

"New England land is the biggest bargain in the country today," says Mr. Park.

By jingo, he's about right, too!

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

By DAVID CORY

AT SHADY FOREST

Well, as soon as the two little rabbits and Squirrel Nutcracker reached Candy Date Town, they stopped in front of a candy shop and in less time than I can take to tell it, dear, kind Uncle Lucky had bought three pounds of candied dates. Wasn't that generous of him? Well, I guess yes, and I wish that all the little girls and boys who read these stories could go sledmobiling with Uncle Lucky. My, wouldn't they have a fine time?

Well sir, it wasn't long before the dates were all gone except the nuts inside, which the wise old squirrel put in his pocket to take home with him, and after that, they all started off again and this time they took the road that led straight for Pine Woods. For Squirel Nutcracker wanted to get home in time for supper, because if he didn't Mrs. Nutcracker wouldn't give him anything about just how him a scolding, you know

Hush hoo, how fast we go,
Jingle bells over the snow.

And by and by, but so very long they came to the Shade Forest where Mr. Squirrel Nutcracker lived in a tree with Mrs. Nutcracker and children, three.

"Why, you came in," said Mrs. Nutcracker when the sledmobile stopped in front of the door, but Uncle Lucky said he must [illegible] so he took off his wedding crepe hat and bowed and Little Jack Rabbit took off his [illegible] cap, and after that, they were introduced to Uncle Lucky. Then Mr. Nutcracker [illegible] Street, Rabbitville, U. S. "Hello there, Mr. Woodpecker," said Uncle Lucky, "it's a cold day."

"I don't mind," said the busy woodpecker. "I find plenty of ant eggs and grubs under the bark and in the old stumps," and then he pushed his red cap down on his head, for I guess it almost jiggled off when he pecked so hard on the wood, and after that he flew away to another tree.

"Mr. Mrs. Woodpecker," said Little Jack Rabbit as he and the old [illegible] hopped up to the kitchen door.

"My, it's nice and warm in here.

The kitchen stove is full of cheer,
The kettle sings a merry song.
The old clock ticks the whole day long.

Don't at the pot because it's black.
But when he's full of carrot stew,
They smile and say, "How do you do."

NOANK

Workmen both here and in neighboring towns will be very much pleased to learn of the increase of work in the Noank Shipyard Inc. The fishing boat being built for the Wilcox Fertilizer Company is in the frame and the steamer Abealom Baird will be ready for delivery the early part of March. In addition to this work the firm has a 250-foot steamer to be thoroughly overhauled and considerable engine work to be done. There are also three schooners to be repaired. The yard is fast taking on the appearance which it enjoyed for a number of years. This yard was at one time considered one of the busiest on the coasts and all sorts of wooden vessels were brought here for repairs.

Rev. W. D. Woodward, Gales Ferry, Conn.:

Dear Mr. Woodward: My heartiest thanks for your welcome message of congratulation, which would have been answered long ago but for the tremendous rush of mail. I am delighted to know that you have followed from Connecticut the progress of things in Pennsylvania and that you approve so heartily of the program expressed in my inaugural address. There is a real opportunity to do a thoroughly worth while job, and I hope to live up to it.

Sincerely yours,
GIFFORD PINCHOT.

THE IGNORANTIST

These things I cannot understand:

Why men in mobs will play the fool,
Why masks and gowns appeal to some,
Why bigots treat and ofttimes rule,
Why Christian folk sit still and dumb
When murder thrives;
Why women dress to shame their souls
Why men are slaves to passion's wiles,
Why children seek unworthy goals,
Why weaklings drain that which defiles
And wrecks their lives.
Why wealth and idleness are joined,
Why banded labor needs restraint,
Why spurious brass with gold is coined,
Why courage fails and hearts grow faint
When Death appears;
Why nations gird themselves with steel,
Why famines kill when waste is rife,
Why ills attack when God can heal,
Why laughter hides its gains when Life
Is naught but tears;

These things I cannot understand.

Charles L. H. Wagner, in Boston Transcript.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

New York, Feb. 8.—Speculators for the advance continued to bid up stocks in today's market, selecting new leaders, particularly in the food, sugar and tobacco groups, to replace those whose advance had been halted by realizing sales and short selling. In most cases, however, the reactionary tendency was held within fractional limits, indicating good buying support below current price levels.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's optimistic forecast of business and trade conditions and further favorable trade news including higher prices for refined sugar, crude rubber and Pennsylvania crude oil more than counteracted the effect of the disquieting news dispatches from the near east, which, however, had a depressing effect on the foreign exchange.

United States Steel common, Baldwin, Studebaker and most of the other active and popular shares fill showed small net changes at the close. Rail shares also moved within narrow limits, the only outstanding exceptions being Louisville & Nashville which closed 2 1-2 points higher at 142 1-2 and Jersey Central and "Soo" common, each up 2.

Sugar moved into higher ground under the leadership of Cuba Cane preferred, up 1 7-8, and Cuban American, up 3-4, buying of that group being based on recent advances in the prices of Cuban raw sugar and the refined product.

Pacific Oil was in rather free supply during the day, dropping 1 1-2 points, other changes in that group being irregular. Pan American A, selling ex-20 per cent. stock dividend, touched 81 and closed at 79 5 8 as against yesterday's close of 82 1-2.

Kelly Springfield Tire was pushed up 2 3-4 to 55 3-4, a new high record for the year, but the other tire and rubber stocks failed to show any material response to the higher crude prices. American Tobacco advanced 3 points to 159. Some of the other individual strong spots were Lima Locomotive, Woolworth, Remington Typewriter, Pressed Steel Car, North American, Brooklyn Edison, American Ice, Air Reduction, California Packing, Continental Can, United Railway investment preferred, American Snuff and National Acme, all up 2 to 5 points.

Just before the close a block of 15,000 shares of Oklahoma Producing & Refining changed hands at $3 a share, or 1-4 above last night's close. Mexican Petroleum, which was one of the spectacular features of the market last year, made its appearance on the tape for the first time in weeks, 100 shares selling at 279, or $20 below the previous sale.

Call money opened at 4 per cent. but then advanced to 4 1-2 where it closed. Brokers bid 4 3-4 per cent. for time money but bankers demanded 5. Some renewals but little new business being arranged below the higher figure. Out of town bankers were the principal takers of commercial paper, the bulk of the prime names commanding 4 1-2 per cent.

Business in the foreign exchange market continued dull with most of the principal European rates closing at small recessions. Demand sterling dropped about 1-2 a cent to just over $4.67 and French francs sold around 6.20 cents as compared with 6.25 yesterday. German exchange was firmer, marks being quoted at .0030 1-4 cents as against .0028 yesterday.

The club will have about $75 [illegible] treasury as the pro- [illegible] ance.

EASTVILLE

The minstrel troupe of the Ponemah [illegible] presented [illegible] Thursday night [illegible] and Friday night. [illegible] Thursday night [illegible] the show went along [illegible] smoothly that Wednesday night. [illegible] chorus appeared to have more confidence in themselves, and the solo- [illegible] showed considerable improvement. The crowd did come prepared to see a good show, as reports of last night's success had been circulated freely about the town, and they were not disappointed. The lighting effects contributed largely to the success of the affair, a large searchlight being [illegible] from the motion picture room in the back of the hall. The end men surpassed their performance of Wednesday night and kept the audience in a continuous uproar. [illegible] the going was the comedy [illegible] Dugas, as the human pool table, [illegible] most original costume made of [illegible] felt, with pool table pockets [illegible] with cue balls. While it would [illegible] ill for a critic to pick flaws or [illegible] to [illegible] specialties, Manuel Fay has the honors [illegible] go to John Thoma, who sang [illegible] Love Her and She Loves Me," which required quite a piece of clever [illegible]. "Jake" Benoit, as interlocutor, bore the weight of the show on [illegible] shoulders and with the four end [illegible] men [illegible] machinery was kept [illegible] smoothly. Thumm's orches- [illegible] pieces accompanied the songs and choruses throughout the evening and when the minstrel was over the floor was cleared for old fashioned dancing [illegible] which the famous Scott [illegible] band of [illegible] played under the [illegible] direction of Miss Edel Marsh and Professor Tinkham of Hanover promptod. The same committees were in charge as those which served Wednesday evening. A comfortable sum will be realized, which will be used to replenish the club treasury.

On Wednesday a sack was discovered on the middle pier of the Lisbon bridge by a number of boys who opened it and found the legs and head of a deer. It is believed that some one tried to throw the sack into the river during the night, but that it struck the middle pier and lodged there. There have been so many deer in the vicinity that the venison is probably beginning to be a temptation, in spite of the fact that deer-slaying is unlawful. On Wednesday a herd of eight small deer were sighted not far from the town.

Court Wequonnoc, Foresters of America, met Thursday evening in their rooms in the St. Louis hall. Chief Ranger William Smith presided and general routine business was transacted.

Mrs. Everett M. Pingree entertained Thursday evening at her home, 13 North B street.

The Camp Fire Girls met Thursday evening with Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis at her home on North Third avenue.

Miss Agnes Malone of South B street is attending the silk exposition in New York.

Repairs are underway at the plant of the J. B. Martin Company, Ltd., on Bissville road, the finishing room being changed into a quilling department.

O. L. Jentzel of Providence was a business caller in the village on Thursday.

Arthur Germain is ill at his home on Merchants avenue.

BARDO DISCUSSES LABOR BOARD

LIVING WAGE, SHOP CRAFTS STRIKE

In connection with his address here this week before the Chamber of Commerce, General Manager C. L. Bardo of the New Haven road gave his views upon other aspects of the railroad situation, besides what he gave in the meeting.

He gave his views upon the present attitude of the public towards the railroads, made some interesting comment upon the transportation act and the services of the railroad labor board, and outlined some of the aspects of a living wage and the strike of the shop crafts.

In part his views are as follows:

What of the Future?

What is to be the future of the public attitude towards our railroad lines? Is the tendency toward an increase or decrease of restrictive and regulatory legislation? At the present time there seem to be two tendencies opposing each other. Certain interests are demanding the elimination of the features which have been of benefit to the railways, and the addition of further restrictions, but there is another large body of public sentiment which feels that the railways should be given greater opportunity to work out their problems. I believe it is true that everyone is tired of having this railway problem continually before them. Certainly it would be of benefit to all concerned if it could be allowed to lie dormant for a few years, with the hope and expectation that at the end of that time the problem would be no longer a serious one.

It is certain that the transportation act has not been given a thorough trial. There has not been what could be termed a normal period since it was enacted. The year 1920 was one of feverish activity, filled with labor difficulties and outlaw strikes, resulting in a slowing up of traffic and congestion. The years 1921, and 1922 have been periods of low industrial activity, decreasing wages, with the resulting dissatisfaction on the part of the employes, and with the thin traffic which did not enable the railways to earn sufficient sums to permit the extensive program of improvements which they have had under contemplation. The new features in the act, namely, the provision directing the interstate commerce commission to fix rates to enable the railways to earn a reasonable return, has not resulted in this return being earned, largely, no doubt, on account of the fact that traffic was light and expenses heavy. The other very important feature of the act, namely, the labor legislation, has not been given a fair trial because the two and a half years since the act was passed have been filled with great labor controversies.

The Labor Features.

At this point it may be well to make some comment upon the labor feature of the act because it seems to me that there has been a great deal of misunderstanding and incorrect information upon this subject. The transportation act directs the officers and employes to make every effort to arrive at an amicable understanding on matters of wages and working conditions. It places squarely upon the railway executives and representatives of the employes the responsibility of settling their own difficulties. In order that the public may be protected from the disaster of great strikes by railway employes, it sets up machinery to provide for the fair settlement of disputes when these cannot be settled by managers and men. The most important part of this machinery is the United States railroad labor board, which is to constitute the final court of appeal on cases of this category.

Provides No Penalties.

The law provides that the decisions of the labor board shall be final, but it does not provide penalties when the decisions of the board are ignored, depending upon the force of public opinion to bring this about. The labor board, an almost untried experiment in public handling of industrial problems, found itself at its birth confronted with tremendous problems involving all the railways of the country. Its history during the last two years has been an almost continuous series of momentous questions, decisions of which involve the prosperity of both the railways and their employes.

Board Has Functioned Well.

The labor board has also been overwhelmed with a great mass of small, but highly technical, questions regarding wages and working conditions, many of which could not receive the study and attention they deserve. It is my opinion that in view of all these difficulties the labor board has, on the whole, functioned remarkably well. While it is easy for me as a representative of the railroads or for various members of the employes' organizations to criticize the board for some of its decisions, the board has, to a large extent, fulfilled its chief function in protecting the public. It warded off one serious strike. That it failed to ward off the strike of the shop crafts was not due to failure to make every effort to ward off the catastrophe.

What Made the Strike.

The strike was due to a feeling on the part of certain classes of employes, and especially their leaders, that they could succeed in carrying out their wishes through their direct methods in spite of the force of public sentiment and decisions of the labor board. If the labor board failed in preventing the strike, the strike itself has probably further demonstrated the futility of such action. The primary purpose of the strike was to nullify the decision of the labor board. This effort has not succeeded in the slightest particular. It became obvious to all concerned within two weeks after the beginning of the strike that this effort would not be successful, and the whole history of the strike from that day to this has simply been an effort on the part of these employes to regain their old positions. To a very large extent this effort has also proven unsuccessful.

The strike has simply resulted, therefore, in the loss of millions of dollars in wages on the part of the employes, and, in the majority of cases, the loss of their seniority rights and the assured position which this gave them. It has resulted in the loss of millions of dollars to the public through delay to traffic, congestion and embargo and the general slowing up of business which results therefrom. It seems to me that the strike has been a distinct lesson to all concerned and that the labor board should issue from it stronger than ever before.

Gives Three-fold Protection.

Under the labor provisions of the act, both employes, managements and the public are fully protected. The public is protected from the stoppage of transportation. This may seem an anomalous statement in view of the fact that we have just had a strike. I believe, however, that the chances for another great strike of this character in the future are few and this has demonstrated to the employes the futility of such action on their part. The provisions of the act protect the railways and protect their employes. It protects the employes in that the act directs that they should have a fair and reasonable wage, and states that in fixing a fair and reasonable wage the labor board shall take into account certain fundamental features. Of these, the most important are the rates paid by outside industries for similar character of work, and the changes in the cost of living. This permits the railway employes to obtain at least as high a rate of pay as given for similar work in unregulated industries. It also provides a wage which shall change with great changes in the cost of living.

The Living Wage Question.

We have heard much recently of the living wage, and it seemed that many advocate the inclusion in the law of a guarantee to the employes of a living wage. The labor board itself has recently issued a decision on the subject which aroused considerable public comment. What makes this problem extremely difficult is that theories and practice have been thoroughly mixed up.

The labor board in its decision stated that the wages which they prescribed constituted a living wage. The advocates of the employes, however, are not satisfied with this living wage but demand another which they call the living wage. The living wage, as they define it, is a definite and [illegible] ible thing only to the person who is defining his idea of the living wage. The various proceedings of the labor board have been filled with testimony as to the living wage and these estimates vary from $1,500 to $2,700 per year.

Employes Should Be Well Paid.

The railroad employes should be well paid, and if this living, specific wage is to be given to railroad employes, it certainly should be given to employes in all other industries. It has been estimated that the total income of the United States amounts to approximately $65,000,000,000 per year. According to the last census, there were approximately 41,600,000 persons gainfully employed. If this income, therefore, is divided by the number of persons gainfully employed, the average income for each person gainfully employed in the United States would be slightly less than $1,600 per year. From this it will be seen that there is not sufficient produced in this country to provide even the so-called minimum wages for every person gainfully employed, not to speak of the differential amounts over and above the so-called living wage to compensate men for greater ability or skill. The labor board has clearly stated the question when it says that the wages which they have prescribed constitute living wages, and they have performed their useful service in pointing out that what the representatives of the employes call the living wage represents their ambition or their desire rather than that which is actually the living wage for health and comfort.

The railroads should pay employes a fair and just wage, but neither the railways nor any industry nor the United States as a whole can pay out more than the sum total of production. This, in practice, is what the representatives of the employes are demanding.

How Railways Are to Live.

This discussion of the labor situation and of the labor board has carried me far afield from the general discussion of the public attitude towards the railroads, but it is one of the two most fundamental of the problems which the railways have to face today, and it deserves serious thought on the part of the entire public.

The other fundamental question is how the railways are to live and how they are to secure sufficient funds to enable them to pay fair wages, to pay a fair return to the investing public, to have a sufficient fund for necessary improvements and especially to do this under a system of rates which will be fair to the shipper or consignees.

AVERAGE DAMAGE TO AUTOMOBILES IS $70.96

For the six months ending December 31, 1922, there were 3803 accidents in the seven larger Connecticut cities according to a report just issued by the department of motor vehicles in the state capitol; 374 of these resulted in major injury, seventy in deaths, and the total damage to the automobiles involved was $569,910.

Of these 3803 accidents, 1057 occurred in Hartford, 807 in New Haven, 752 in Bridgeport, 402 in Waterbury, 366 in New Britain, 259 in New London and 189 in Meriden.

The total damage to the automobiles involved in these accidents amounted to $85,710 in Hartford, $70,660 in New Haven, $51,180 in Bridgeport, $30,970 in Waterbury, $26,480 in New Britain, $18,690 in New London and $12,630 in Meriden.

The figures on fatal accidents are extremely interesting: twenty-four occurring in New Haven, fifteen in Hartford, eighteen in Bridgeport, six in New Britain, four in New London, two in Meriden and only one in Waterbury.

The average damage to an automobile in an accident in a Connecticut city has been figured from this report to be $70.96.

PRIMARY COUNCIL NAMES MISS CONGDON LIBRARIAN

The February meeting of the Norwich Primary Council was held on Tuesday evening at Broadway school. Following the supper several matters of business were attended to, one of which was the appointment of Miss Jennie Congdon as librarian. It is often difficult to secure one of the newer educational publications and as the council stands pre-eminently for service and helpfulness to one another it seemed reasonable to ask those owning such books to share them; so if any teacher has a book that she has found helpful and is willing to loan, it is hoped she will communicate with Miss Congdon as soon as possible.

"What is done in kindergarten that is helpful in leading children to want to read" was the first topic of the evening and the kindergartners showed many games and devices used for that purpose; but, as one said, the great asset of a kindergarten child when he enters first grade is the wealth and the variety of experiences he has gained there—a foundation on which to rear the superstructure of reading.

Two very interesting demonstrations of second and third grade arithmetic were given by Miss Helena Hoar and Miss Grace Driscoll, both using the blackboard for illustration and the latter using the teachers as of class. The rapidity of work required was a surprise to those not in those grades and called forth a very interesting discussion pro and con. These informal discussions are a more important part of the meetings.

BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY FOR MRS. CALVIN BEEBE

Mrs. Calvin B. Beebe of Maple street, quietly observed her birthday anniversary on Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Tyler, with whom she resides.

Mrs. Beebe was pleasantly remembered by her relatives and friends as was demonstrated by the shower of post cards which conveyed congratulations and cordial greetings; also a telegram sent from Kansas City.

Among the gifts received was a large basket of assorted fruit.

Mrs. Tyler served a birthday supper at 6.30 o'clock and included among other tempting eatables was an attractive birthday cake. Special guests were Mrs. Beebe's granddaughter, Mrs. Ralph Behrisch and the latter's son, Paul Turner, who returned to their home in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Sunday evening, having come to Norwich a week ago today (Thursday) for the birthday anniversary, which brought together four generations.

UNITED WORKERS PETITION FOR WORKING CHILDREN

PASTOR JACKSON FAVORS CIVIL RIGHTS BILL

The colored ministers of the state of Connecticut, met at the Emanuel Baptist church, New Haven, on Tuesday last, at a call of the ministers of Hartford, to ratify the act of Senator Johnson who offered the bill entitled the civil rights bill. Several spoke favoring the measure.

From this city the delegate called upon was Rev. E. Elias Jackson, upon whom a reporter called and ascertained his views respecting the bill. Mr. Jackson said that he could only repeat himself, as to what he said at the meeting. That he regrets that such a bill was necessary in the state of Connecticut, since we received more justice in the civil court of the state than in the south, yet said he, it may be necessary from the fact that many worthy men of our race are not rendered accessible to public places such as other races of lighter skin. I see but little necessity if the fifteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States were enforced, and heeded to by the states. There would be no need for such a bill in any state. But it is claimed that this is a state right, to pass such measures for its subjects. I do not favor any special legislaturing for my race, but this bill should include all races. I know that there are places in my city where my people are not admissible, but on the other hand there are more places where they are admissible, than they have money to spend.

I favor the measure for civil liberty to all citizens, but it must go to show that this civil liberty does not mean social liberty, for a man in business or at his home can choose his company. The social question is to be worked out by individuals, and not through legislatures, etc. But to segregate me because of color, when I possess all other necessary characteristics, shows a need for the passage of such a bill."

LUCAS IS DELIGHTED WITH NEW ORLEANS

Herbert W. Lucas and Daniel Fitzgerald of this city, who are on the way to the Pacific coast, left New Orleans on Feb. 5, having made stops in Washington and New Orleans. He declares that New Orleans is one of the finest cities he ever visited.

He sends The Bulletin the following sketch of some of his experiences in Washington and New Orleans:

Our last day in Washington was spent at the Capitol all day in listening to debate on the radio bill and the federal reserve (agricultural) bill. Some great debates were in order. We had a talk with Mr. Whipple, the great artist from Boston, who is now touching up the fine paintings in the Capitol. We saw Charles Dana Gibbons, the great sketcher. We left Washington on the 9.50 train and on board were some soldiers who were recently in Germany and they were all in friendly attitude toward Germany. We arrived at Atlanta at 4.50 the following afternoon. Here we changed our time to central time, pushing the hands back an hour. Atlanta is a fine city. We washed up, had supper and caught the 6.10 train out of Atlanta for New Orleans. We had one swell time of it. As there were two theatrical troups on board they kept the crowd happy with their musical talent which consisted of violin, guitar, rule, singing and stories, etc. It was fine. Well, all along the linewe were well entertained by one thing and another. Between Salisbury and Charlotte North Carolina, we were treated to a little excitement. Two shots were fired at the train, the bullets hitting two windows, smashing the glass and causing quite a commotion. All hands on board were well stirred up for a moment. Some said it was the K. K. K., but I don't think so. You never hear one word about them down here. The trip from Washington to Atlanta was very uninteresting as the scenery was poor and all you could see was yellow mud and very poor cabins occupied by the negroes. The worst looking shacks I ever saw.

The journey from Atlanta to New Orleans was much better scenery especially as you come into Atlanta. We stopped at Mobile caused by engine trouble about one hour which made us one hour late in reaching New Orleans.

We reached New Orleans at 10.30 and such hot weather. We got our room at the St. Charles hotel and then put our overcoats up on the shelf, as the thermometer registered 75. We went over to a park and sat down under a bamboo tree. It was just like a day in July. We had to be transferred across the city from the L. & N. depot to the Southern Pacific railroad. The trees are in leaf and the grass is so green. It is a lively city and I never liked one better. The people here are fine, beautiful looking women and the people here are very kindly and we were treated very nicely, being strangers it was worthy of notice. Well, today is Saturday and it is the hottest ever. I certainly have got thoroughly heated up. The thermometer stands 84 today. People were wearing straw hats and sat out in the parks in their shirt sleeves. This morning we visited all the big industries along the large water fronts. We first visited the Canal St. ferry and docks, Canal street being the second widest street in the United States. Then we saw the Mississippi dock. The old American refinery and the new American refinery. The old one is now used to store coffee and rice. The new one is mammoth. Then we journeyed to the old French market, four blocks in length, built at a cost of $30,000,000. The United States mint was built in 1813 at a cost of $500,000, but is now used by the government as an assaying office for ores coming into this country from South America and Mexico. This mint was built on the site of Fort St. Charles, which was erected 1796 and here in 1814 General Jackson took command of his troops on his way to the battle of New Orleans.

Next we saw the plant of the Dunbar Molasses & Syrup Co. This firm imports a great deal of molasses from Cuba and Porto Rico by tank steamers. We saw them unloading bananas from steamer from Honduras owned by the United Fruit Co..

The overhead conveyers on the wharf will carry the bananas from ship side to refrigerator cars on wharf, eliminating the labor of thousands of men, who formerly packed them on their shoulders. They run on a large belt four or five feet wide. It can be stopped instantly. One man stands by the place where the bananas come off the board and has a clock that registered each bunch of bananas that come out of the boat. The army supply base we saw. It was constructed in 1919 (July) at a cost of $15,000,000. Each building is of reinforced concrete, 600 feet long, 140 feet wide, six stories high, with a two story steel freight shed constructed on a pile wharf, 2,000 feet long and 140 feet wide.

We visited the U. S. immigration station which was erected several years ago. When war was declared on Germany the captain and crew of a German and Austrian vessel in port were taken to this station, but they had already done considerable damage to the steamers and rendered it practically useless for months.

We visted the U. S. wireless station. The two towers are over 300 feet high and this station is one of the most powerful in the United States and is used continually for communication with Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

The public cotton warehouse is wonderful, being the largest in the world. The cotton is handled by electricity, and the tieing up is done by electric cranes. They handle about 1,250,000 bales a year. The public grain elevator is the largest and best equipped in the world, costing $3,500,000, and is owned by the state and controlled by the board of port commerce. The elevator can receive 160 cars of grain a day for rail connections and can receive 6,000 bushels per hour from barges and can load 100,000 bushels per hour to ships. It has a storage capacity of 2,632,000 bushels and has 382 different compartment for storage.

We went out and saw the Texas Oil Co. tanks where oil is brought in from Mexico. Our last place we visited was the docks front. Every one knows about the N. K. Fairbank people, the home of Fairy soap and the Gold Dust Twins. The largest soap manufacturers in United States. It is a large plant. We saw the Co-Cola plant also, where they make the drink. We saw many other places of interest, but time and space won't let us mention them.

I visited the Elks home which [illegible] attendance of 8 or members. I [illegible] very well treated and I can say [illegible] I am leaving a very fine city behind, when we pull out of here Sunday [illegible] 4th for California. Everyone seems so glad we are staying and I will [illegible] it will be a long time ahead when I will strike a city that appealed me more than New Orleans.

GOVERNOR TEMPLETON HAS PROCLAIMED THAT A FUEL EMERGENCY EXISTS IN STATE

Edict Was Issued at 6.16 Last Night—Acted Under Authority of the Fuel Control Bill Adopted Yesterday by the Legislature Under Suspension of the Rules—State Police Are Authorized to Demand Records of Coal Dealers and to Search Their Premises for Concealed Fuel—May Enlist the Aid of Local Fire Marshals—Inference is Conveyed That Local Fuel Administrators Will Not be Asked to Participate in the New Scheme of Fuel Control.

Hartford, Feb. 9.—The existence of a fuel emergency in Connecticut requiring the utmost economy to avoid suffering was officially proclaimed at 6.16 o'clock tonight by Governor Templeton. At 5.20 o'clock he had signed a fuel control bill adopted by the legislature today under a suspension of the rules which provided that a state of emergency should be considered to exist from the time of an executive proclamation to that effect.

The prompt action of the governor in putting the law into effect gives Superintendent Hurley of the state police power forthwith to prosecute hoarding, profiteering or obstruction of coal. In this work he is authorized to requisition the services of all local fire marshals, as well as any state policemen under his jurisdiction, to demand records of coal dealers and to search their premises for hoarded or concealed fuel, if he has reason to believe that action of such coal dealers is interfering with equitable distribution of fuel.

The statement was construed to mean that local fuel administrators will not be asked to participate in the new scheme of fuel control which was evolved largely by the state police commission based upon its experience in dealing with the situation since the governor requested Superintendent Hurley to check up rail movements of coal.

The memorandum to which the governor referred in his statement of this evening revealed that the executive's original idea on the subject was along lines somewhat different from the bill adopted yesterday on recommendation of the judiciary committee. One of the forms of procedure advanced by the governor as a means toward avoiding suffering was to require the use of soft coal where such could be used in order to release hard coal for the use of people whose facilities made it impossible for them to use the bituminous.

The following is the governor's proclamation:

"An act entitled:

"An act concerning fuel emergency has this day been passed and approved and is now effective. This law becomes operative upon the issuance by the governor of his proclamation that an emergency exists with respect to fuel. I therefore declare and make proclamation that such an emergency exists.

"For many weeks yet the utmost economy must be observed by all, if many of our citizens, and particularly the poor, are not to suffer. Accordingly, I urge upon all citizens that they go even beyond the requirements of the law and, in a spirit of generosity and fairness to those who are less fortunate, give all possible assistance to the authorities who stand charged with the carrying out of the provisions of this law.

"Dated at Hartford, this 9th day of February, 1923.

"CHARLES A. TEMPLETON,
"Governor."

Victory For Italian Labor.

32 BODIES RECOVERED FROM MINE AT DAWSON

Dawson, N. M., Feb. 9 (By the A. P.).—While Dawson waits and watches in repressive silence, bowed down with grief at the explosion which wrecked Mine No. 1 of the Phelps-Dodge corporation yesterday, entombing 120 men, rescue crews and volunteer workers continued tonight to comb the labryinth of dark passages for the dead and the living.

When the shifts of rescue workers were changed tonight, thirty-two bodies had been removed from the subterranean tomb. Somewhere in the dark galleries of the passageways not yet cleared are ninety-eight men. Dawson has not abandoned hope that they will be brought forth alive.

Justice of the Peace T. L. Kinney late this afternoon impanelled a coroner's jury which has begun the work of identifying the bodies of the dead, and preparations for the burial of Dawson's dead tomorrow are being made.

The cause of the explosion still remained unexplained.

From the condition of four bodies taken from a point near the center of the mine late this afternoon, indications are that the explosion centered near the heart of the workings. The four bodies were dreadfully burned, almost beyond recognition. Other bodies taken out of the mine earlier today did not show such burns. Officials are inclined to the belief that the four were caught by the full force of the detonation.

Rescue workers and repairing crews, penetrating slowly into the main entry, declare the openings into the cross cuts have been crumbled by the blast, making it necessary to rebuild such portions of the tunnels and cross-cuts before proceeding further.

Only a handful of spectators remained about the mine tonight. Among them were wives, sisters and sweethearts of the miners whose fate is still unknown.

34 LIVES LOST IN CANADIAN COLLIERIES EXPLOSION

Cumberland, B. C., Feb. 9.—The death toll of last night's explosion in No. 4 mine at the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir), Ltd., now stands at 34. Fire, which followed the explosion, has been definitely checked, it was announced by mine officials here this afternoon. Twenty-six bodies had been brought to the surface.

Seven men brought to the mouth by rescue parties after heroic endeavors, were taken to a hospital where they lay still unconscious, with a chance for life. There were 300 men on the night shift which was on duty when the explosion occurred.

Cumberland this afternoon was a place of mourning.

The work of rescue went on slowly. The men could work only four abreast. Each of the rescuers worked until he was exhausted. Then he was relieved by another. This afternoon the work was still in progress.

Men familiar with the mine said the explosion was undoubtedly due to the presence of both gas and dust. Work of penetrating the mine was at first extremely dangerous, with volumes of gas pouring through the tunnels.

The explosion was the second in the Cumberland workings within six months. On Aug. 30, 1922, thirteen men were killed by an explosion of gas.

SUIT AGAINST GOODYEAR TIRE AND RUBBER CO.

Akron, O., Feb. 9.—Suit for an injunction restraining the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company from disposing of 750,000 shares of common stock of the Akron, Canton and Youngstown railroad at public auction tomorrow morning will be filed, it is necessary, E. A. Selberling, founder and former president of the Goodyear company, announced tonight.

The stock was assigned by Selberling as security for payment of $3,744,720 which he owed the Goodyear company at the time he was deposed as president under the refinancing and reorganization in May, 1921. It has a total par value of $7,500,000 and represents one-half of the common stock of the railroad, he said.

The New York Central railroad holds an option on this stock for $4,000,000 which does not expire until March 1, Mr. Selberling said, and he will take legal action to prevent any attempt to sell the stock at public auction until after this option expires.

HUGHES WRITES LODGE ON REPARATIONS QUESTION

Washington, Feb. 9.—Secretary Hughes declared in a letter today to Chairman Lodge of the senate foreign relations committee that written statements and documents he had recently submitted to the committee constituted all the information the state department possessed and which it was compatible with the public interest to divulge on the reparations question and therefore any "oral explanations" before the committee by the secretary would be unnecessary.

The appearance of Mr. Hughes before the committee had been requested by Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, in connection with the latter's resolution for the appointment of official American representatives with the reparations commission. Mr. Hughes' letter was interpreted as a virtual refusal to appear before the committee on this subject, although he indicated that he might if an additional request on some specified question should be forthcoming.

Convict Prominent Men of Bootlegging

New York, Feb. 9.—Jail sentences for bootlegging were imposed today on the four Lee Montagne brothers, distillers, all of them socially prominent and one internationally known as a polo player. Bail of $15,000 each was continued until Thursday that they might wind up their business affairs before entering the Essex county, New Jersey, penitentiary.

The quartet recently were indicted by a federal grand jury which investigated a dinner at the fashionable Racquet and Tennis club on Park avenue at which liquor was alleged to have flowed. The charges against the brothers were conspiring to violate the Volstead act and defrauding the government of taxes through removal of liquor from bond on forged permits. At the time the indictments were returned, they were hailed by government officials as proof that none was so high in society as to be beyond the reach of the dry laws.

Charged with having released 30,000 gallons of liquor, the brothers at first entered pleas of not guilty to both charges against them. Today, however, they appeared in federal court and changed their pleas to guilty.

You Lose When You Neglect It

Today life is so rich in comforts that we seldom wonder how folks got along in the ancient world. And we sometimes forget what an important role advertising has played in making life pleasant and altogether livable.

Advertising has one of the leading parts in the eternal drama of dollars. To it is directly due much of the multiplication of products and services which has come about during the last half century.

It has smoothed the mechanics of existence—made life easier and more pleasant by bringing countless necessities — once considered luxuries—within our easy reach and into constant use.

Think of this when you read the advertising columns of The Bulletin. You owe much to advertising. And you miss much when you fail to read it.

In the past week the following matter has appeared in the news columns of The Bulletin for two cents a day:

No Change in the Situation at Smyrna

Several Warships Remain in the Harbor—A Few British Warships Outside.

Constantinople, Feb. 9 (By the A. P.)—So far as is known here the Angora government has not replied to the allied protest concerning the Turkish decree for the departure of allied warships from Smyrna harbor.

The situation at Smyrna has not changed. Several foreign warships remain in the harbor while a few British vessels are outside. Signals of the mail ship Pierre Loti for a pilot today were unanswered; she continued her voyage without entering the harbor here.

There have been rumors of the sinking of one or more merchantmen by mines, but these are without any confirmation although the foreign commissions are in constant wireless touch with Smyrna.

It is announced that Mustapha Kemal Pasha will go to Ismid, there to meet Ismet Pasha, returning from the Lausanne conference, and accompany him to Angora.

COUE OVERWHELMED BY PATIENTS IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 9.—A [illegible] that ebbed and flowed from side to side of the Lexington theatre stage, men, women and children beseeching Emile Coue for aid or help farewell American lecturer today. They knew it was their last chance to feel the helping hand of the little French apothecary, apostle of conscious auto-suggestion, who sails for the Olympic tonight.

At the conclusion of afternoon and evening lectures, M. Coue asked "all" of the physically and mentally afflicted to come to the stage for his [illegible] Each time the auditorium became a mass of the lame, the halt and the broken, struggling painfully to reach the Frenchman's hand.

So excited did the matinee audience become when it realized that M. Coue could not personally treat all on the stage, that it shouted its preferences to him, creating a general din.

"The man in the chair!" shouted one, and a hundred took it up. When the Frenchman failed to heed, others shouted in his native tongue. "L'homme dans la chaise," he stopped the experiments and read more of his lecture.

M. Coue finally escaped by helping an aged woman with crutches to walk to the wings. There he turned her over to other hands and fled.

TALKED ON PROBLEMS OF NEW ENGLAND RAILROADS

Hartford, Feb. 9.—The storage and handling of freight in terminals is one of the biggest items of loss the New England railroads face, said W. H. Lyford, vice president of the Chicago and Eastern railroad, in an address before the joint New England railroad committee at the state library today. The remedy for this, Mr. Lyford said, is the organized collection and delivery by a single company of the freight carried by all the railroads entering a city.

He declared however, that he did not think the New England terminal could be solved until the railroad problems of the country as a whole are settled.

KU KLUX KLAN MAKES SWEEPING DENIALS

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 9.—The Ku Klux Klan makes sweeping denials of all of the statements and charges contained in the petition recently filed by the state to oust the organization from Kansas, in an answer filed with the supreme court here today.

According to the answer, the klan is "purely a social, secret, benevolent and eleemosynary" organization; it opposes mob activities or violence, intimidation or threats; believes in enforcement of law by constituted authorities, and in the highest allegiance to the government of the United States, and, furthermore, that it has no member, agents or employes in Kansas. The answer denies that the seven defendants named in the state's petition—W. J. Robinson, H. Ballard, Thomas E. Daly, Bruce Ninkle, Richard Martin, W. D. McCrob and Noebel C. McCall—are or ever were members of the klan.

HOUSE APPROVES 291 TO 44 BRITISH DEBT AGREEMENT

McCormick of Montana Was the Only Republican Who Voted Negative—63 Democrats Favored the Settlement, 43 Opposed the Agreement—Amendment Was Made For Settlement of Debts With Other Nations on "Similar, But Not More Favorable Terms"—The Amendment Will be Formally Transmitted to the Senate Today.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Approval of the British debt settlement agreement was voted late today by the house 291 to 44.

One republican, McCormick, of Montana, and 43 democrats opposed the settlement, while 227 republicans, 63 democrats and the one socialist member, Meyer London, of New York, voted for it.

The house vote was on an amendment to the existing funding statute, which not only would specifically approve the agreement reached with the British government, but also would authorize the American debt commission to make settlements "similar, but not more favorable, in terms" with the other debtor nations. The amendment was [illegible] transmitted to the senate tomorrow and immediate consideration by the finance committee planned. The time of [illegible] was [illegible] to [illegible] Democrats.

Amid scenes [illegible] the house voted [illegible] representatives of the house [illegible] its conclusions by [illegible] to reconsider the [illegible] with instructions to the ways and means committee to add a provision that the measure could not become effective until the Hay-Pauncefote treaty dealing with the Panama canal had been abrogated.

Chairman Fordner, of the committee, who had charge of the bill for the majority, then called for the final vote, asking for a roll call to show the world as he expressed it, "that the American congress is practically a unit behind the debt commission in this settlement."

Four hours of general debate preceded passage of the amendment and towards the last many of the members of the house became impatient. As attempts were made to amend and recommit, there was a general hubbub in the chamber with repeated cries of "Vote, Vote," when representatives sought to explain amendments proposed.

Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, a member of the American commission, and Garrett, of Tennessee, the democratic leader, took the lead in supporting the British settlement, while Representatives Collier of Mississippi, and Oldfield Arkansas, democrats on the ways and means committee, led the fight for the opponents.

On passage of the settlement, the opponents declared the house was without sufficient information regarding the negotiations to determine whether the terms agreed upon were the best that might have been obtained. They also charged President Harding to [illegible] what they said was partisan commission to deal with what they termed a purely economic question.

Many proponents of congressional approval argued that the terms not quite were the best that could be obtained, but were even more liberal than congress and the American people had expected would be agreed upon.

The "high spot" in the arguments of proponents, however, was that the settlement would prove a long step toward the stabilization of the world and the establishment of general peace.

TWO N. H. SHOPMEN FINED FOR CONSPIRACY TO ASSAULT

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 9.—A severe verbal assault on the attitude of the New Haven police, officers and members of the railroad shop craft unions and some of the newspapers of this city featured a hearing in superior court today at which Joseph Gaglardi and James Kenefick were fined $250 and $700, respectively, for conspiracy to assault an employe of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. The verbal attack was made by State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling of New Haven county, who declared that the attitude of officials and their subordinates had been largely responsible for conspiracy and sabotage against the railroad company.

"The 'red' stuff has been brought into the labor unions," declared the state's attorney. "The honest and conservative workers are disgusted."

He said that John C. Ready, chairman of the system federation of the striking shopmen, had failed to carry out his promise to co-operate with the authorities to preserve law and order. He said Ready could furnish names of others besides six men arrested for assaults on railroad workers, but had not done so.

Judge Isaac Wolfe, before imposing the fines, said he was "astonished at the attitude of the police department and the press on this question."

It also provides that no nations should have a minimum quota of 400 persons eligible to enter the United States [illegible] Congress [illegible] on quota [illegible] The present [illegible] of quota not chosen under the law, the bill would provide for the issuance [illegible] abroad.

FEAR DEPLETION OF THE WORLD STOCKS OF COTTON

Washington, Feb. 9.—World stocks of cotton including that produced in America, will have been depleted to an "abnormally low total" by next August, if the present rate of consumption continues, according to a summary of world production and consumption made public today by the commerce department.

The indicated carry-over August 1, 1923, will amount to 2,775,000 bales of American and 6,621,000 bales of all kinds of cotton, including American, the report says, whereas the carry-over last August was 5,153,000 bales of American, and 8,536,000 bales of all kinds.

The season's production of 7,754,000 bales of American and 15,664,000 bales of all kinds of cotton, with the carry-over of last August, the report added gave a total supply for 1922-23 of 10,407,000 bales of American and 37,200,000 bales of all kinds.

Consumption for 1922-23 was estimated at 12,312,000 bales of American, and 20,578,000 bales of all kinds of cotton, reducing the stocks of American cotton more than 6,560,000 bales, and of all kinds more than eight million bales within two years.

ARRESTS OF COMMUNISTS IN ITALY CONTINUE

Rome, Feb. 9 (By the A. P.)—The police in different parts of Italy today continued to take into custody communist organizers. Among those arrested was Mario Moriani, one of Italy's most noted novelists. They also detained Deputy Guido Verin while his residence and also the home of his father was searched.

Fifteen persons were arrested at Spoleto, Province of Perugia, where numerous documents were found containing instructions for the formation of a communist organization.

The chiefs of the Perugia fascisti have received a letter, signed by the secret revolutionary executive committee, saying:

"If our comrades under arrest are not immediately released, you will be held personally responsible. You are warned, so beware. The hour for revenge has struck. From every quarter of Italy the word 'Revolution' echoes. We fear neither prison nor death. Our unshakable faith is our guide. Communism will gain its greatest victory."

WANAMAKER LEFT $2,000,000 TO FOUND TRADE SCHOOL

Philadelphia, Feb. 9 The will of John Wanamaker, recently filed, was probated today, and its reading gave rise to reports that the famous merchant had left $2,000,000 for the foundation of a trade school. A codicil to the will provided for such a school, but there was nothing to show that Mr. Wanamaker during his lifetime had given to his son, Rodman, the stock which was to provide the income for the bequest, thus making the provision ineective. This was later explained by attorneys for the estate, who said that Mr. Wanamaker had concluded if he created a trade school it would come in competition with the Williamson free school for trades in Delaware county, Pa., of which he was president of the board of trustees. Instead Mr. Wanamaker left in the hands of his executors the suggestion of creating a home for boys charged with being misdemeanants, for which no specific sum was named.

FRENCH MAKING SLOW PROGRESS IN THE RUHR

Duesseldorf, Feb. 9 (by the A. P.)—The French occupational authorities are devoting much of their time and energy to efforts to organize shipments of coal by rail and river from the Ruhr area to France. They are making slow progress, however, the shipments averaging under five thousand tons of coal and coke daily.

Seven hundred carloads of coal and coke have been concentrated in the Wedau railroad yards near Duisburg. From this point three trains are leaving daily for Aix La Chapelle, where the coke is diverted to Belgium and the coal to France. From three to six barges, each containing 1,000 tons, are leaving Ruhrort daily.

The food situation is growing worse despite the reports of Dr. Luther, the German food administrator that there are flour and cereals enough to last until March 15. The Germans are preparing a schedule of restrictions which are to be enforced beginning Monday. These will include a prohibition against the serving of eggs for breakfast, and meat will be permitted at only one meal each day.

The railroad strike is still completely effective throughout the entire French zone, but the locks on the Rhine canal have been repaired and navigation reopened.

Acts of sabotage continue. Six telephone lines were cut today in the vicinity of Duesseldorf and seventeen in the region of Ratingen, where the director of telephones was [illegible] rested and expelled.

According to the alleged confession Pierce was killed with a piece of lead pipe for his money, which proved to be 55 cents. The body was then placed on the railroad tracks to give the appearance of death by accident.

Labou, arrested on the strength of Warren's statement as reported by police, entered a plea of not guilty.

PEACE EFFORTS DISCUSSED BY THE DAIL EIREANN

Dublin, Feb. 9.—(By the A. P.)—The efforts toward peace now being made in Ireland were the subject of discussion at today's session of the Dail Eireann, and Richard Mulcahy, minister of defense, was asked for information supplemental to what already has become known.

Reviewing the circumstances, the minister declared that Liam Deasy, when he broached the question of appealing to the irregulars in behalf of peace, was treated generously and allowed to communicate with Eamon De Valera and others through messengers. He also was allowed to send each leader a private letter.

When sufficient time had elapsed for receipt of replies Mr. Mulcahy added, the government decided to publish the facts so as to prevent the leaders acting as a "kink in the hose" by concealing the situation from the rank and file, "who have been forced or led into the present position." He said there would be enthusiasm among the people for the men who were big enough to recognize their mistake.

It was commented by those who attended the Dail session that nothing was said in the course of the discussion about the republican leaders rejecting Deasy's suggestions and the good effect anticipated from the proferred amnesty.

FEDERAL REGULATION OF RADIO IS FAVORED

New York, Feb. 9. Federal regulation of radio and limiting of broadcasting stations are favored by the majority of persons interested in radio, from listener to manufacturer, the national radio chamber of commerce announced today.

The views of the radio users were expressed in answers to questionnaires sent out by the national chamber in an endeavor to wipe out the evils already existing." Ralph A. Watrous of a special committee studying the situation, analyzed the answers.

It was clearly brought out," he said, "that federal legislation and regulation under the department of commerce was considered essential. Fewer stations also were urged, with better programs. Separation of public broadcasting stations from those operated by amateurs also is wanted."

GIN AT "PETTING PARTIES" IN GREENWICH VILLAGE

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1023

Guilford Smith, aged 83, died at his home in South Windham Friday morning at 11:15 o'clock. Mr. Smith had been in failing health for over a year and his condition had been serious for several days past.

Guilford Smith was one of Windham's best know residents and his stately figure on the streets of the city always commanded attention.

He was a descendant of old New England stock, his paternal great grandfather, Jacob Smith, being a native of Colchester. His ancestry on the maternal side dates way back to the Mayflower in the name of William Bradford the first governar of Massachusetts, through his mother Mary Abbe.

Mr. Smith was connected with the Smith-Winchester company plant in South Windham for sixty-four years and was president of the concern. He was also elected president of the Windham National bank on January 12, 1887, and held the position continuously for thirty-six years. Although identified with other industries he was most prominently connected with the above named two concerns, and although retired from active duties for some years past he still retained his position as their head. Mr. Smith was a stockholder in the old New London Northern railroad, now part of the Central Vermont railway system. He was one of the original incorporators and directors of St. Joseph's hospital and one of the first presidents of the institutions in which he took a great deal of pride.

The hospital ambulance now in use was a gift from Mr. Smith. He was also a member of the Willimantic chamber of commerce but did not belong to any fraternal organizations.

Mr. Smith was always deeply interested in the welfare of the Windhams and gave liberally towards the erection of the Congregational churches in both Windham Center and South Windham and assisted in the maintenance of both. The hall in South Windham which bears his name was built by him and he purchased a steam fire engine from the New York city fire department for the use of the South Windham fire department, when it was organized several years ago. He was always ready with both money and good will to further any good cause in town.

Guilford Smith's ancestors, on both paternal and maternal sides, have been connected with America's history since the early colonial days and Mr. Smith was also a notable character in the advancement of social, political and moral progress in Connecticut having been in control of the most important business interests and been a representative of his town in the legislature.

Guilford Smith was born in South Windham May 12, 1839, the son of Charles and Mary (Abbe) Smith. He received his grammar school education in the district school of South Windham, attended the Hall Select school at Ellington. At the age of sixteen he entered upon his business career in a clerical position in the office of the Smith-Winchester company, which organization formed by his father and Horace Winchester. Guilford Smith gradually worked his way upward and at the death of his father he took possession of his interests and position in the business. He conducted the interests of the Smith, Winchester & Co. with a progressive spirit and as now known as the Smith & Winchester Manufacturing Co. Modern machinery and processes were installed in the business whose products soon reached every section of the country. Mr. Smith was also owner of large real estate interests, mostly consisting of farm lands in the town.

Mr. Smith was married twice. He was married to Miss Mary Ramsdell of Windham on December 7, 1863. She was the daughter of Thomas and Mary (Bullard) Ramsdell. Mrs. Smith died March 22, 1871. Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith were members of the Society of Mayflower Descendants. Mrs. Smith held membership with the Daughters of the Colonial Governors and Daughters of the American Revolution. Mr. Smith's second wife, who survives him was Anna Patton of Windham whom he married Thanksgiving Day, 1901. Mr. Smith was a widely known politician and was a stalwart champion of the republican party. In 1883-4 and 1900-02 he represented Windham in the Connecticut general assembly. He was also prominent in religious work of the South Windham Congregational church.

Since his retirement from active business he has been especially active in procuring material having to do with the original settlement of Windham. He stood for development, progress and improvement which was actuated by a public spirited devotion for general good which placed his name among the distinguished names that appear on the pages of Connecticut history.

Harold Kinstler, proprietor of the Hartford Cleaning and Dye Works at No. 28 Church street, is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, as the result of being overcome by gas while working at the clothes pressing machine in the shop. Kinstler was found unconscious on the floor by E. Hain, the local Hebrew school teacher who came to visit Mr. Kinstler. Dr. Owen O'Neill was called and after giving preliminary treatment ordered Mr. Kinstler to be taken to the hospital. Later in the day the young man's condition was very much improved and it is expected that that he will be discharged from the institution Saturday.

She leaves seven sisters—Mrs. Julia Sullivan and the Misses Anna, Catherine, Norine, Mary, Abbie and Bridie Dennehy, and two brothers, James and Patrick Dennehy.

Mrs. Mary Rose DeMarchi Webb, 21, died in St. Joseph's hospital early Friday morning after a brief illness. The deceased was born in Hoboken, N. J., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David DeMarchi. She is survived by her parents, her husband, Edward H. Webb, and four brothers, Anthony, Paul, Louis and John DeMarchi. The remains have been removed to her late home, No. 91 Mansfield avenue.

It was voted to stage a membership drive the last of this month and a committee with Bridget Moriarty as chairman was appointed to have charge. Elizabeth Cain, the secretary of the state president of the girl's club, will probably be in this city to assist.

Local 671 of the United Textile Workers of America held a successful entertainment in Central Labor Union hall recently. "Nero" Opens at the Breed Sunday Night.

Roman history in its most spectacular days lives again in the William Fox wonder picture, "Nero," which will commence an engagement of five days at the Breed theatre on Sunday night.

Nero, the villain of the super-spectacle, was the original Roman high-roller. He not only "burned the candle at both ends," but set fire to the city as well. Invested with the imperial purple at the age of sixteen, inside of fifteen years he had exhausted all the pleasures of Rome—then mistress of the civilized world—and had become so unpopular that he killed himself to escape his own troops.

The strangest part of it is that Nero had been brought up in the strict old Roman school, which scorned all luxury and idealized a soldier's life. However, Nero possessed the "artistic temperament." He studied music, painting, sculpture and poetry, and fancied himself as a singer. In vain his mother, Aggripina, tried to keep rim to the old Roman traditions and early married him to an aristocratic lady. Nero fell in love with a beautiful Asiatic freedwoman, and when his mother refused to permit hi mto divorce his wife in order to marry his sweetheart, he rebelled and sent both his wife and mother into exile.

Soon Nero forgot Acte for Poppaea Sabina, who belonged to one of the great Roman families, but was even wickeder and more unscrupulous than the emperor. Ignoring the fact that schemed boldly to ensgyushrdluuuu! she already had a husband, Poppaea schemed boldly to ensure Nero.

In one of the sensational scenes of [illegible] emperor, who thereupon sent her husband a jewelled dagger, with the suggestion that he kill himself with it. But Otho went into exile and bided his time until he could return the dagger to Nero. He was one of the conspira- [illegible]

It was fear of this dagger— among many others which he had whetted for himself—which prompted Nero to take his own life.

One show Sunday night at 7.30 and two shows daily at 2.30 and 7.45 p. m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

When a man gets what he wants too easily, he should beware. But there's a certain type of man who, though clever as can be in winning a woman's love, doesn't know when to distrust a woman he has wronged.

That theme is dramatically exploited in "Paid Back," the Universal all star attraction at the Broadway theatre Sunday night. With a cast of remarkably talented players including Gladys Brockwell, Stuart Holmes, Mahlon Hamilton, Edna Murphy, Kate Price, Arthur Stewart Hull, Wilfred Lucas Lillian West and others, Irving Cummings made a striking film play from a story by Louis Duruea Leighton, scenarised by Hope Loring.

Miss Brockwell, long a star herself, Stuart Holmes, villain de luxe of the screen, and Edna Murphy and Mahlon Hamilton handle these four central roles commendably. Kate Price presents another motherly characterization to add to her long list, but not a mother, just as a companion to the girl.

Peter B. Kyne's Famous Story Coming to the Strand Monday.

Admirers of Peter B. Kyne's stirring novels, several of which already have been filmed the screen, will have an opportunity to see the picturization of his latest novel, "The Pride of Palomar," which now ranks among the best sellers of the current book season. The story was printed serially in Cosmopolitan magazine and it scored tremendously. Now that the book has appeared, its popularity shows no sign of waning.

Admirably suited to adaptation to the screen, Cosmopolitan Productions picturized the novel for Paramount release in California, on the precise spots where the action of the story takes place. Many of the scenes were photographed at the old mission where "Ramona" was born. Interesting scenes in the garden of San Luis Rey Mission in Southern California are a feature of the picture.

"We gave an order to a Japanese nurseryman for a lot of potted plants," said Mr. Borzage, "but after working on the job for five days he found out that they were for 'The Pride of Palomar' and struck work. In the same way you couldn't get a 'prop' in a Jap shop if you mentioned 'The Pride of Palomar.' However, we got along very well."

The story of "The Pride of Palomar," which will be on view at the Strand theatre next Monday for three days, receives about a young Californian who returns home from service abroad to find his father dead and his big ranch in the hands of hostile interests. He loves the daughter of the man who is fighting him for the possession of the ranch and when he discovers that she has secretly aided him, he resolves to go in alone even though he must sacrifice his love. How he wins his battle is splendidly told.

Marjorie Daw and Forest Stanley are the featured players of an all-star cast which includes Joseph Dowling, James Barrow, Warner Oland and other notable players.

ROCKY KANSAS GIVES WHITE BAD BEATING IN A ONE-SIDED BATTLE

New York, Feb. 9.—Rocky Kansas, of Buffalo, delivered a severe beating to Charley White, of Chicago, in a fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight, to pave the way for the winner meeting Champion Benny Leonard in a title match this year. Kansas received the judge's decision.

The bout was one-sided, and the result was a surprise to close followers of the game who predicted a knockout for the Chicago man. Kansas got the jump and held it all the way, winning a large ovation from the crowd of 13,000 when he left the ring. Though always slow in starting, White was unusually hesitant tonight and before he knew it Rocky had planted enough blows to nullify any counter-attack.

The Buffalo mite of a fighting man was very crafty and kept on the move, making it difficult for White to shoot across his left. Charley made a flash as the 12th ended and appeared confident until the 13th when he called upon the resource that rarely has failed him—his deadly left hook to the jaw—but when he planted it four times to Rocky's jaw and he stood up, White's heart was gone.

In the latter rounds Rocky bounced White against the ropes and in the 15th when White tried desparately for a knockout, Rocky was still so vigorous that he had his man on the verge of a knock down.

Far from his usual aggressive form, White appeared weak from the beginning, possibly due to the time he spent in Turkish baths this afternoon trying to reduce his 12 ounces overweight to save a forfeit of $2,500. Whether he must pay it will be decided tomorrow.

The Fight in Detail.

Kansas was the aggressor throughout the first three rounds. White not exchanging until the second. In that session Kansas rocked the Chicagoan with a peppering of both hands and a left to the jaw, and in the third round Kansas again staggered him with a stiff left jolt.

Rocky's margin in the fourth was not so wide but in the fifth he was all over Charley pummelling and pounding him with both hands. White slowed up Kansas with left hooks as the fourth closed but Rocky shook him again with both hands in the sixth.

The Buffalo mite continued to crash both gloves to White's head in the seventh and had Charley dazed in the eighth. Cautiously, White sent his noted deadly left hook to Rocky's jaw in the ninth, but Rocky kept his feet.

So superior was Kansas in the tenth that White appeared dead on his feet, and in the next round the Chicagoan punched tired and groggy held on. Kansas slowed a bit in the 12th and then knocked White to the ropes.

There was a furious mixing in the 13th, both got the other's eye and White had Kansas reeling but spent his efforts and was easy prey in the 14th.

Kansas lambasted White in the 15th.

Reports that many game birds are being found in a starved condition in the wooded sections may apply to upstate conditions, according to County Game Warden Robert B. Chappell, but are not indicative of the real situation in this end of the state. In fact but one covey of game birds in the eastern end of the state have been reported to the game warden as in bad shape and in that instance the birds were in the vicinity of the Devil's Hop Yard. They were fed and the following day were apparently as chipper as ever.

That greater losses among the birds from starvation in this vicinity have not been noted is undoubtedly due to the co-operation of sportsmen, Boy Scouts, rural mail carriers and others who have aided the deputies by distributing grain for the birds to feed upon. In consequence the dearth of game birds which is expected to have some effect upon hunting conditions during the next few years should not necessarily develop in this end of the state.

Warden Chappell, however, stated that a number of instances have been reported to him where quail, partridge and pheasants had come into the poultry yards of farmers to feed upon whatever they could get and that the farmers had aided in large measure in saving many of them from starvation. For the most part, flocks in New London county are in fine condition despite the severe winter weather conditions with which they have had to contend.

The same is not reported as true in other sections of the state, however, and over Waterbury way reports have been numerous concerning the ravages of the winter on flocks in that section. In the wooded areas the snow is said to be so deep and so heavily coated with ice, that the game and song birds have been entirely cut off from their feeding grounds.

HOYT GLAD COLLINS DEAL HANGS FIRE

New York, Feb 9.—Waite Hoyt, star pitcher of the Yankees, is one of those who are happy because the proposed deal whereby Eddie Collins, second baseman of the White Sox, would come to New York, has not been completed.

Hoyt arrived in New York yesterday from San Francisco, the first of the team which toured the orient this winter, to return to the metropolis. The team, made up of stars of both leagues, played exhibition games against local nines in Japan, China and the Philippines.

"Have I been traded to Chicago?" was the greeting he shouted when he rushed into the Yankee offices. "No, not yet." He sighed with relief when a negative answer came. "Well," he added, "that is about the best news I have heard since coming to this country."

The pending deal would send Hoyt, Aaron Ward and Pop Meusel to the Chicago team in exchange for Collins, Bib Falk and Charley Robertson.

The American tourist team won 25 of the 26 games it played, he said.

The big game will start at 8.15 p. m. sharp, and the preliminary at 7.45 p. m.

O'ROURKE HAS NO CONTRACT WITH DEMPSEY

New York, Feb. 9.—The articles that London dispatches today said has been signed by Joe Beckett, English heavyweight, for a match Champion Jack Dempsey were those forwarded to him by Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker of the Republic A. C., which plans to conduct bouts at the polo grounds.

It does not appear here, however, that Beckett will meet Dempsey in a bout for the world heavyweight championship this year, as O'Rourke hasn't a contract with Dempsey. Nevertheless, the promoter said tonight he is confident that the match will be held.

It was not a condition of the articles that Beckett should defeat Dick Smith, but that he must beat Georges Carpentier, whom Dempsey defeated a year and a half ago, O'Rourke said.

Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, said the London dispatch amused, as O'Rourke has no contract with Dempsey and more able contenders than Beckett are forbidden to meet Dempsey by the New York state boxing commission.

BECKETT SAYS HE WILL MEET DEMPSEY IN BOUT

Southampton, Feb. 9.—(By The A. P.)—Joe Beckett, the English heavyweight champion, has signed articles to meet the world champion, Jack Dempsey, in New York next July or August, he announced today. He understands that Dempsey's signature also has been secured.

"I am to get a good sum for my end of the purse," Beckett added, "but it won't be anything like so large as Dempsey's; I can't expect it to be, because he is the champion of the world.

"The only condition made, as far as I am concerned, is that I must beat Dick Smith on February 19, and if I fight Carpentier I must beat him too, but it doesn't matter whether I meet Carpentier or not."

JEWTRAW AND MOORE EACH LOWER WORLD'S RECORD HELD BY THE OTHER

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Two world records fell in the Adirondack gold cup ice skating championship races on Mirror Lake rink here today when Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, clipped one and two-fifths seconds from the half-mile record set by Joe Moore, New York, and Moore, in turn, lowered by three-fifths seconds the record for the three-quarter mile race established by Jewtraw. Jewtraw skated the half-mile in 1:16 1-5, while Moore's record in the three-quarters is 2:02 1-5.

Jewtraw's victory today gains for him a 390 point total in the quest for the Adirondack gold cup and a score of 250 for the Maxwell "300-point" trophy.

Edward Reed, Chicago, set a fast pace in the half-mile event and kept well ahead of the field until the bell lap. Jewtraw then started a sprint in which he never was headed. William Steinmetz, Chicago, skated to second place, some three feet behind the winner, and William Murphy, New York, slid over the line a close third.

Murray Bell, St. John, N. B., led the field for the first five laps of the three-quarter mile race, then relinquished the lead to Valentine Bialis, Lake Placid, who immediately increased the pace. The skaters swung into the stretch well bunched, with Jewtraw, Bialis and Moore leading. Jewtraw lost his stride as they neared the finish line, the pace proved to be too much for Bialis and Moore skated to victory a few inches ahead of Steinmetz, Reed was a close third.

The events tomorrow, the final day, are the 440-yard and three mile races. Harry Kasky, Chicago, who was injured at Endicott where he won the American skating title, is expected to enter competition tomorrow. The weather indications are clear and cold. The snow storm of this morning ceased abruptly and did not inconvenience the events.

The summaries:

Three-quarter mile race: Won by Joe Moore, New York; second, Steinmetz; third, Edward Reed, Chicago. Time: 2:02 1-5.

Point scores for the meet:

Jewtraw, 60; Moore, Steinmetz, Reed, 40 each; Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., Paul Forsman, New York, 20 each; Murphy, Valentine Bialis, Lake Placid, 10 each.

Adirondack gold cup series scores: Jewtraw, 390; Gorman, 200; Kasky, Richard Donovan, Endicott, 150 each; Edward Corcoran, Endicott, and Bialis, 70 each; Steinmetz, 60; Reed, Forsman, 50 each.

Every year, with the exception of 1918, Schalk has caught no fewer than 128 games. He expects to eclipse his record of last season when he led all the major league receivers. YANKEE PLAYERS GET NO SALARY CUT THIS YEAR

New York, Feb. 9.—No salary cuts for the 1923 season have been made by the New York Yankees, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of the club, said tonight in a statement denying reports that several Yankee stars had suffered severe wage amputations in the contracts recently sent out.

"Not one player on the club was asked to accept an actual reduction," he said, "although two or three will be compelled to take their work more seriously than they did last year. Several of the players were given substantial increases as a reward for their good work last season."

Everett Scott, shortstop, is the only regular who has so far sent in his signed 1923 contract. Babe Ruth and Pitcher Carl Mays have holdover contracts.

"HE MAY GET SOME IF HE HANG S ON"

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

OLD MOTHER GRAY GOOSE.

"Old Mother Gray Goose came down from the North
With all her young gooses behind her.
And she thought she would take a rest on the lake
And she never thought harm would betide her."

And now, I suppose you are wondering what did happen to Mother Goose and her little ones, although they weren't so very little after all when you come to think of it, for they could fly just as well as she could.

Well, just be patient for another half minute, and you shall hear what Little Jack Rabbit saw one morning as he hopped along the edge of the Bubbling Brook till he came to the Old Mill Pond.

Close to the edge of the pond sat Old Mother Gray Goose and her three young ones, frozen fast in the ice. You see, the night before she had flown down to rest on the water and maybe she fell asleep for when she woke up, she and her young ones were caught fast in the ice which had formed during the night. Cruel Mr. North Wind had blown over the Old Duck Pond, turning the top of the water into a thin, hard sheet of ice.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear!" cried Little Jack Rabbit when he saw poor, old Mother Gray Goose. "how will she ever get free!" and then, the little rabbit looked that way and this but that didn't do any good.

And just then, all of a sudden, he saw Old Man Weasel sneaking along the edge of the pond. Oh, dear, and oh, dear again! If that wicked weasel caught Old Mother Gray Goose it would be too dreadful, but something happened just then, all of a sudden.

Old Mother Gray Goose began to flap her wings as hard as she could and Mr. Merry Sun shone down as brightly as he could and pretty soon the ice melted just a little bit and then, crack! it went and flap, flap went Old Mother Gray Goose's wings and before Old Man Weasel knew what the matter was, he broke through the ice and the old goose and her three young ones fluttered out of the water and up into the air and away they flew safe as safe could be. "Ha, ha, Old Man Weasel,

You lost a dinner good:
But I won't stop to talk with you,
But hop off to the wood."

"Well, I'm glad Old Mother Gray Goose got away," said Mrs. Grouse. "One day I had a narrow escape. You see, I went to sleep under a big snow drift where Cruel Mr. North Wind couldn't touch me and maybe I slept a long time, for when I woke up I couldn't get through the snow. There was a hard crust all over the top and if Mr. Merry Sun hadn't melted it away, I would be there today.

And in the next story I'll tell you more about what happened to some of Little Jack Rabbit's friends.

SETTING FINE EXAMPLE.

It is a fine example that has been set by the lower house of congress by its early and favorable action upon the legislation dealing with the debt refunding matter. However, that doesn't of necessity mean that the senate will proceed to do likewise and thereby display a determination to dispose of matters that are calling for attention within the brief remaining life of the present session of congress in a sensible manner with national welfare and not political advantage as the goal.

That the matter will be acted upon and acted upon favorably at this session seems certain. There is no good reason for delaying it but it is unfortunate fact that there are those who can be depended upon to take as an opportunity for delay that it will give the effect of causing the hanging in of other matters which they desire to see enacted. Not to watch for and unflinchingly to frown be taken as a favorable sign by such facts as the commission has been able to furnish as to the situation relative to the payment of the foreign debt is a decision of the deal closed.

The time is certainly ripe for the adjustment of the financial understandings. Now not to be expected the situation will be any more favorable two years or a year from now. The uncertainties and the failure to settle such a matter need to be wiped out for a settlement proceed to do so are those that can be depended upon to take action on matters of pressing importance that should not be left over to a future date and it is there a conscientious stand for the right that rests upon the members of congress.

CENTRAL AMERICAN PEACE.

When those who participated in the Washington conference were summoned to take their seats around the table they were told that the object of the meeting was to see what could be reached upon the subject of limitation of armaments. In the past experience in dealing with the matter of limitation of armaments seems certain there

"Fruit-a-tives" the Greatest of All Nerve Remedies

Because Made of Fruit Juices

The increase in the number of persons suffering from Nervousness is world-wide, due, in a measure, to the reaction following the war. Sleeplessness, Headaches, Mental Depression, Rheumatism, Nervous Dyspepsia, Bad Heart Action, are the results of a disturbed condition of the Nervous System.

The Nerves and the Blood are so intimately, so vitally, connected that the condition of one is bound to affect the condition of the other. If the blood is impure, the nerves suffer.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Manager Max Brettschneider of the Killingly High school basketball team announced Friday afternoon that Foxboro, Mass., high school has cancelled both games scheduled to be played with Killingly High. The first of its games was to have been played here on Wednesday of next week, the second at Foxboro on March 16. In view of the cancellations other arrangements will be made to fill these dates. On Friday of next week Killingly High is scheduled for a game with the Vocational school at New London.

One of the last of the pre-Lenten dances to be held in Danielson was that which attracted such a large number to the state armory Friday evening. This dance was given under the auspices of Leo J. L'Homme post, [illegible] and its ladies' auxiliary and was one of the pleasantest of such social functions during the winter season. Music was by Earl Wood and his orchestra.

And just for a little further discussion of the subject a suggestion is at hand that a secret police dog be used in trailing the Brooklyn snarers. Now a secret police dog is something even worse than a one-man police dog. He doesn't even know his master's voice—[illegible] at meal times. But he does some handy police things, being a sure kin of the owl in possession of parrots, the works alone and doesn't need [illegible] and all the next day it he can get his man. He knows his quarry in all languages and under all conditions. He is a great [illegible] and ought to make a hit on the Brooklyn sleuthing dog, providing, of course, he doesn't get [illegible].

I am interested in an unsigned article which appeared in The Bulletin on February 8th regarding the proposed community church in Brooklyn. I am fully persuaded that na one denominational church can function in such a way as to render the highest service to this community. The community church idea is making a strong appeal in this day when the average man is not seriously concerned about denominational doctrines, but does, however, want to worship and an opportunity to serve. There are about 500 community churches in the various towns and cities of our country. Many of these have been organized in over-churched communities like Brooklyn.

This generation has forgotten the controversy referred to between Unitarians and Congregationalists which occurred more than a hundred years ago and today the most cordial and friendly relationship exists between the two organizations.

The proposed community church is not a union of the Baptists, Unitarian and Congregationalist organizations, but an attempt to unite all the Christian forces of the community in an effort to serve all the life of the community.

Your correspondent says, in speaking of the Congregationalists, "Let their pastor resign." It is a good suggestion and one that I made some time ago. However, I have been requested to remain and make a canvass of the interests in the community in the interest of the proposed community church. In order not to leave the community without an active church with a resident pastor, the congregations voted to continue their services until such time as the community church is organized and then accept the resignation of their pastor and cease the activities of their church. The community church will call its own pastor.

I do not know that a community church will be formed, but the canvass thus far has met with gratifying response. I happen to be a Congregationalist, but my effort in behalf of a community church is not in the interests of any denomination, but for the welfare of the town of Brooklyn. I want to endorse what your correspondent said about politics and special creed having no part in a community church. There is no reason why a community church should not succeed here.

Holding that getting away from the Little Red Schoolhouse is progress and not retrogression, as many seem to believe, Charles L. Principal of the Brown school in Hartford, one of the best known educators in Connecticut and a Killingly man whom many here kindly remember, addressed the following communication to the editor of a Hartford paper this week:

Your editorial on the "Little Red Schoolhouse," last week, was good reading, even though you could not give it the glamour and pathos of a medieval story. Conditions then were too prosaic for that. However, we feel that the "little red schoolhouse" met the situation at that time and served its day and generation to the best of its ability. And so did the stage coach and the spinning wheel. All were indispensable in those early colonial days, but the wheels of progress, evolution of system and state, have brought many changes.

But the rural school problem remains. The state board of education, in trying to carry out the provisions of the statute concerning compulsory attendance of children in public or private schools, is confronted, in many rural districts, with some inescapable conditions: (1) In nearly two hundred rural schools, the average attendance in each is less than ten—a condition that does not make for economy and efficiency in school management: (2) suitable boarding places for teachers are almost impossible to find, and, in case one is found, a teacher would be isolated, so to speak, from all social and cultural life, such as concerts and lectures; (3) teachers of good ability and normal school training hesitate, even refuse, to accept positions in those districts at any salary the community or state would be justified in paying.

In view of these conditions, this question naturally arises: What shall be done with the children in this districts? Shall the one-room school, unattractive and unsanitary in many cases, be maintained, or shall the children be transferred to some central school that is under competent management, so that the children may receive better instruction, come in contact with more boys and girls, and be stimulated in ambition, perhaps, by the sharper competition? There can be no espirit de corps in a school of seven or eight, no zest and zeal in the pursuit of an education.

To my mind, the procedure of the state board of education in this one-room school problem is no "attack" on the "little red schoolhouse." On the contrary, it is a practical recognition of the conditions in which that schoolhuose is set, and a nearnest effort to give the children in these rural districts better opportunities for securing an education. But the whole matter rests with each community. The law is optional. The initiative in every case has been from within, not from without. In other words, the community itself has decided the matter of the continuance or the discontinuance of its one-room schools. Up to present time, those towns that have given up their one-room schools have expended nearly $312,000, raised by local taxation, for defraying the cost of the transportation of their children to some central school. During this last year, nearly fifty one-room schools have been voluntarily discontinued by the local communities. Does this look like state centralization? Why so many assertions without a good premise?

At Killingly High school the editorial staff selected for the ensuing semester is as follows: Seniors, Max Brettschneider, Emily Pike, Eloise Babson; juniors, B. Marcello Bacon, Ruth Spalding; sophomores, Frances Tillinghas, Mayette Paine; freshman, Gladys Cook, Henry Stoddard; editor-in-chief, Emily Pike; athletics, Max Brettschneider; social, Miss Bacon, Ruth Spaulding; personals, Alma Forcier, Frances Tillinghast; typewriting, Eloise Babson.

A number of members of the Putnam Country club who are resident in this town were at Putnam Friday evening to attend a distribution of awards made in connection with a campaign of the club to raise a fund to free its property from indebtedness. Following the award making there was a period for dancing until about midnight.

Much difficulty is being experienced in unloading some of the cars of coal recently received here. On the rails en route from the mines, for weeks during which storms have raged and gone and other storms have followed in their turn, coal on some of these cars have been frozen into one solid mass and unloading crews have had to work with picks as well as shovels to get out the precious fuel. The operation in some instances has been similar to re-mining the fuel.

Interviews with property holders would indicate, as far as they have been carried out, that a majority sentiment in the coming financial town meeting will be in favor of paying Killingly's current expenditures out of tax money to be raised on the newly completed grand list and applying many thousands of dollars have have come in recently in back taxes to reducing the debt of the town. By following out this plan Killingly will be able to cuts its interest charges by from $1600 to $2500 a year, depending on the amount of money available for debt reduction.

PUTNAM

Advance estimates during Friday were that the Putnam Country club will count a net profit of $4,000 from its activities of the past few weeks in the interest of retiring such indebtedness as covers its property to the south of the city.

The big drive for the fund that has been obtained came to a close Friday evening in Union hall. Admission was free and all were welcome to be on hand to hear the interesting announcements made. Afterwards there was dancing. The attendance included many from Danielson, which community is represented by a considerable membership in the Country club, and where much good work has been done in boosting the campaign to cancel the club's debt.

There isn't going to be any Quinebaug Valley Basketball league next fall; that is, unless plans change very materially from what they are at present. The no league program for 1923-24 comes about because of Plainfield High school's recent withdrawal from the present schedule after the league had voted, 6 to 2, not to uphold its protest of a game in which Plainfield High was defeated by Woodstock academy in a game at Woodstock the past month. Putnam, Woodstock, Tourtellotte and Killingly will play out what remains of the season's schedule, but Plainfield's withdrawal materially upsets the league schedule and practically throws the matter of the season's championship into the discard, inasmuch as Putnam and Killingly High are tied for the league leadership and unless teams have played their scheduled games against each other. Admittedly, the Tourtellotte and Woodstock teams are not as fast as the Putnam and Killingly teams.

All the New York morning editions of Friday gave space and some prominent display to a story of a dinner given at the Ambassador hotel in that city on the preceding evening by G. Lawrence Perkins of this city and Pomfret in honor of William S. Vanderbilt.

A supper dance in honor of William H. Vanderbilt, son of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, and Mrs. Paul Fitz Simon, who is starting on a trip around the world tomorrow, was given last evening in the Italian garden of the Ambassador by Miss Emily Davies and Lawrence Perkins.

Beginning next Monday, another drive will be made in this city to boost the Red Cross roll call. Not such a degree of success as had been hoped for marked the drive when it was conducted earlier in the winter, so the work is again to be taken up with renewed vigor.

A group of volunteer workers will make a house to house canvass and will visit sections of the city not covered in the earlier drive. These workers will solicit annual memberships, the fee for which is one dollar, and much of this money will go toward paying the expenses of the Red Cross Nursing service here.

Those who are in charge of the canvass and the territory to which they have been assigned are here with listed: Mrs. H. B. Wright, Grove street; Mrs. Raymond Smith, Bridge and Sunnyside streets; Miss Willis and Mrs. Tyler, Mechanics and School streets; Mrs. Juliette Gilbert Morse, Grand View, Wilkinson and Walnut streets; Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, business section, Main street to Providence street; Miss Wilhelmina Frost, Woodstock avenue; Mrs. E. H. Snow, Florence, George, Farrows, Ring and Tatem streets; Miss Ruth Bartlett, Pomfret, Bullock, Lee and Water streets.

Mrs. Grace Addeman Fentress, sister of Mrs. Dexter Elliott of Thompson, was instantly killed Tuesday night at Hubbard's Woods, a suburb of Chicago, when her motor car in which she was driving home after an evening of skating at a country club was trapped between gates of a railroad crossing and she was run down by a train speeding at 50 miles an hour. Her body was hurled nearly 100 yards.

Information received here is to the effect that she proceeded very slowly when approaching the crossing. As the gates ware up she continued on across the tracks only to have a gate let down ahead of her car. Facing this barrier, she hurriedly attempted to back the car off the track, but by that time the crossing attendant had let down the other gate, holding her machine in a fatal trap.

Mrs. Fentress was a lineal descendant through her mother of Roger Williams and was born in Providence in 1873. She was graduated from Wellesley college and on January 7, 1897, was married in Providence to James Fentress, Jr., of Chicago, president of the Chicago Braiding and Tubing company. Mr. Fentress, who survives her, with their four children, is one of the millionaire residents of Chicago.

It has been the custom of the family to make annual visits to Thompson.

The gatetnan at the crossing where Mrs. Fentress was killed has been placed under arrest and will have to face a charge of manslaughter.

An evening school has been established at Mechanicsville by John Kennedy, manager of the French River inn and member of the town school committee of Thompson. There was a good attendance at the opening session of the school on Thursday evening and much is expected of it.

The annual Frances E. Willard Memorial is to be held by the Thompson W. C. T. U. next Thursday at the home of Mrs. Clara L. Mills of Wilsonville.

The worry of many citizens that the new walls of the First National bank building are going to look horrifically rough may be allayed by knowing that these walls are to be stuccoed and will be very handsome indeed when finished. The walls are being laid rough purposely in order that they may hold the stucco coating the better.

W. E. Moss rises to the defense of the New Haven road and echoes the desire of General Manager Lardo that the road be "let alone." Mr. Moss' communication to the press was inspired by another statement by Rev. Simeon E. Cozad, who suggested mass meetings to protest against poor service. As things are, automobiles get much of the passenger business in and out of this territory.

Some progress is being made on the construction of the $100,000 addition to St. Mary's parochial school, but the weather has been decidedly against rapid work of this nature during the present winter season.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 9.—In the absence of Speaker Nickerson, Representative Darbie of Killingly called the house to order at 11.47.

Prayer was offered by House Chaplain Coolidge.

For a Friday session the attendance was fairly good, but if a roll call had been ordered it was probable the absence of a quorum would have been disclosed. The delay in opening was caused by the morning meeting of the judiciary committee to consider the substitute fuel bill.

Matters taken from the calendar and passed were two bills authorizing the borough of Groton to issue bonds. One was for $75,000 in denominations of $1,000 each, bearing interest not exceeding four and one-half per cent., the avails to be used to pay the four per cent water bonds falling due Jan., 21, 1925.

The other is for an issue of $150,000 at some vote to pay for water bonds falling due Oct. 1, 1924.

A house bill, No. 33, materially changes the present statute concerning school attendance.

In concurrence with the senate William P. Bailey of Bethel was elected auditor of public accounts for four years.

Several of the judicial applications for appropriations that had been referred to the committee were returned with unfavorable reports, for the reasons given in similar cases yesterday by Chairman Keith, i. e. that these were taken care of by the state board of finance.

Favorable reports were received on senate bills providing for state aid for schools giving instructions to the blind, deaf and mentally defective children in addition to others.

Senate bill No. 9, amending charter of the Putnam Phalanx of Hartford and senate bill No. 38 amending charter of the Bigelow company. All were tabled. Calendar and printing.

School Attendance.

Senate Bill No. 33 concerning attendance at school was received from the senate. Amended by Schedule B, which struck out the words "state board of education." The bill as amended reads:

Section 847 of the general statutes is amended to read as follows: Whenever the school visitors, town school committee or board of education of any town or district shall by vote decide or whenever the state board of education shall ascertain that a child over fourteen and under sixteen years of age has not schooling sufficient to warrant his leaving school to be employed and shall so notify the parent or guardian of said child in writing, the parent or guardian of said child shall cause him to attend school regularly during the days and hours that the public school in the district in which said parent or guardian resides is in session, and until the parent or guardian of said child has obtained from said board of school visitors, town school committee or board of education, or from the state board of education, if the notice shall have been given by the said state board of education, a leaving certificate stating that the education of said child is satisfactory to said visitors, town school committee or board of education, or to said board of education, as the case may be. Provided, said parent or guardian shall not be required to cause his child to attend school after the child is sixteen years of age, or if its mental or physical condition is such as to render its instruction inexpedient or impracticable, as may be determined by the board of school visitors, town school boards or boards of education. Each week's failure on the part of a person to comply with the provisions of this section shall be a distinct offense, punishable by a fine not exceeding five dollars and the provisions of section 53s shall be applicable to all proceedings under this section.

The motion of Mr. Buckley was tabled for calendar and printing.

Unfavorable Reports.

The absentee voting bill was unfavorably reported by the judiciary committee as in close conflict in conflict with the constitution, and was rejected.

Among the unfavorable reports received on [illegible] was one to establish [illegible] interest not allowing to [illegible] degree tuition concerning [illegible] statements to be filed by candidates for public office. All were rejected as recommended.

The teaching of citizenship bill was received from the senate and was tabled on motion of Mr. Buckley.

House adjourned at 1.40 till Tuesday at 11.15.

SENATE.

In the senate today Chaplain Campbell offered the following prayer which was appropriate to the day, Lincoln's birthday:

Our Father God of all nations we praise Thy name for by the interpretation of Thy love to us through Thy Son, that we know Thee. It will ever be for the example of those who have walked in His footsteps, we shall come to be like Thee, and for these our worthy dead we bow our head in silent love and memory. Today we stand near the date of the birth of our martyred Lincoln, may he ever be our teacher and example; give to us his diligent desire for truth, his love for his fellow man, his tender solicitude for his loved ones, his unwavering devotion to his country and flag, may our progress be according to Thy measured [illegible], may our loyalty today be as unwavering and uncompromising in our love and service for our traditions and constitution; O God make us this day men of Lincoln, measure for the world leadership."

JEWETT CITY

The performance of the Radio Minstrels by the Ashland club was given in the Finn Opera house Thursday evening to a large audience.

The setting of the radio scene was a decided novelty. The management explained that the delays were caused because of unavoidable trouble with the switch system. Some of the switches in the transmission board had been painted at some previous time, and when thrown in to carry the load, the paint persisted in fusing.

The cast: Interlocutor, Wm. Duggan; Jos. Roberts, Eva Raill, Irene Lafave, Almira Perry, Annie Hopkins, Minnie Tyndall, Lulu Larkin, George Jarvis, Flora Ritchotte, Desanna Chretin, Louise Seigal, Beatrice Lapage, Lillian Corby, Agnes Corby; end men, Jos. The second in the interesting series of whist games being conducted by the K. of C. closed showing the following ten high scroes held by women and ten by men:

Leoza Cyr, 89; Mrs. A. Dufresne, 88; Mrs. Emma Cyr, 86; Clarinthe Couture, 82; Mrs. William Purdon, 82; Estelle Jodoin, 78; Ida Bryant, 74; May R. Driscoll, Mrs. Redmond Walsh, 71; Mrs. Edward Jodoin, 72; Herbert Benoit, 83; Joseph Barry, 83; Fortina Cyr, 81;

There is to be one more series after which the grand prizes will be awarded the three having the highest scores.

A man from the south part of the town after the last fall of snow, saw where a deer had crossed the road. Returning over the same route in the late afternoon he saw where some shorter legged animal had picked up the deer trail and followed, clearing from four to six feet at a bound.

At the last payment Jewett City patrons received 55 cents per pound for butter fat.

It has come to light that a little side wager had been paid, by the man who laid one iron man that W. S. Christopher would never reach Florida with his house on wheels. He evidently wasn't very well acquainted with Bill.

CANTERBURY PLAINS

Another of Canterbury's old residents passed on when Mrs. Harriet Rouse Philips died Tuesday, Feb. 6, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Wiggins, after a short illness of pneumonia. She was born in Canterbury Sept. 12, 1835, and had lived in this town all her life except for a short time at Packerville. In 1852 she married Henry Phillips, who served in the Civil war, and who died several years ago.

Eight children were born, only two of whom are now living. They are Simeon Phillips and Mrs. Sarah Wilkins. There are also two grand daughters, Mrs. Mary Silva, Irving New Hampshire, and Mrs. Mario Mellen of Windham, and five great grandchildren.

Mrs. Phillips was a member of the Congregational church and the Ladies' Aid society and for many years while her strength permitted, was a faithful and willing worker.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at her late home and was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Robert Humphrey. Two hymns were sung by Mrs. Bushnell, Mrs. Sager and Hart Goff. The body was placed in the receiving vault at Evergreen cemetery and later will be buried there in the family lot.

Samuel Carpenter is confined to the house by illness.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wiggins had [illegible] ill with grip and were not fully recovered at the time of the funeral.

Mrs. Levi Clark has been suffering [illegible] rheumatism.

The grange held its regular meeting Wednesday evening. A report of the state grange was given by the master, Mrs. Dorothy Bennett. The lecturer announced that the next meeting will be a valentine social and that each lady is expected to bring a lunch for two. As the gentlemen are to select their partners by choosing feet, the rest of the person being concealed, it behooves the ladies to appear in their trimmest footgear.

The entertainment in Grange hall Saturday evening proved a success and was well attended. The proceeds are to be used toward a much needed renovation of the town hall. A dance followed the program, which was as follows:

Overture, Silver Bell; Mr. and Mrs. Hawes; An Evening at the Cabaret, including solos by Miss Heather Hill, Mrs. Milo Appley, Mr. Gunnerson and Mr. Sackett, solo dance by Miss Anna Herr and a reading by Mrs. Hansen; violin solo, Charles Flugel, accompanied by Lewis Safford; monologue, Mrs. Irving Frink of Brooklyn; farce, The Brave Professor; farce, Entertaining Sister's Beau; solo, Miss Eleanor Herr; farce, The Book Agent, by a number of young people from the Plains.

Waterbury.—Alderman-Commissioner James A. Duggan and Commissioner William Wallace of the board of health have been designated as a committee of two to select a new automobile for the health department.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

There was little of interest in domestic Norwich in 1873. Republicans were awaiting returns from New Haven on the state convention, while other residents danced or amused themselves in other ways.

Monday, February 3, 1873—Norwich people are awaiting with interest the coming of the "Smith and Barnabee Grand Concert Troupe," of Boston, who are to give one of their popular entertainments at Breed Hall Friday evening. On this occasion the quartette, Mrs. H. M. Smith, soprano; Miss Clark, contralto; Mr. Fessenden, tenor; and Mr. Barnabee, basso profundo, will be assisted by Arbuckle, the cornet soloist.

Reports have it that the winter thus far has been a healthy one for residents of the city, and that doctors are hoping for a little smallpox in the spring to help matters along.

Speaking of cold weather in Norwich one man who did not contribute to the stories of long ago published last week tells of the winter of 1809 when the cold was so intense that chickens and turkeys roosting in a barn had their mouths frozen and perished miserably from that not uncommon disease known as want of breath.

Sleighing was never better in the city and daily numerous sleighing parties are out enjoying this pleasing winter sport.

Tuesday, February 4, 1873—Foster's rooms were crowded last evening when he and Dion played a game of French caroms, 200 points up, Dion giving the odds of 50 to 350. The game was one-sided throughout, Dion taking the lead and holding it until he ran out his 200. His average was 5 15-17 and Foster's 3 3-4. Foster and Dion agreed to play another game for the same stakes tonight, Tuesday.

The "Holly Tree Branch," the coffee house at Norwich Town for working men, is becoming a favorite spot for afternoon sleighing parties.

At the regular meeting of the court of common council, held last evening, His Honor, Mayor Greene, presided. The William M. Williams Steam Fire Engine company reported the election of James Graham, first assistant, and John Corcoran, second assistant, and the Wauregan Steam Fire Engine company reported the election of Sidney S. Smith, chief engineer, and George S. Town, stoker. The elections were approved by the council.

Arrangements have been made for the establishment of the reading room on the ground floor of the new building on Main street, adjoining the Central Methodist church, about April 1st.

The locomotive of the express freight train on the Norwich & Worcester road, ran off the track yesterday morning near the tunnel, owing to the ice. Traffic was delayed on that road for several hours, until the engine was placed onto the rails.

Wednesday, February 5, 1873.—The largest and most fashionable ball of the winter was given by the Sailing Club, in Breed Hall, Tuesday evening. The hall was handsomely decorated with flags, pictures and signal colors, and was most attractive. The music was continuous and exceptionally good, the band under Mr. Rollinson of Willimantic playing the concert music admirably, and Miller's band that for the dancing, as usual, in excellent time and accent.

Webster Park and John H. Cranston have obtained fresh patents, the former for a mechanical movement, the latter for a slotting and key seat machine.

The cases of the two young men arrested for disturbing the meetings at the Central Baptist church, have been continued by the court. It is expected that these arrests will end the disturbances at that church.

Dion won from Foster again Tuesday evening, the score being 200 to 185. It is expected that the men will play a $00 ball match next week for a purse of $100 a side.

Thursday, February 6, 1873—Norwich republicans were all awaiting reports of the republican convention which was held at New Haven on Tuesday, and were satisfied when it was learned that H. P. Haven had been nominated by their party for governor. On the informal ballot Mr. Haven received 285 of the 464 votes cast. The vote was then made unanimous. A close fight developed in the nomination for secretary of state, John M. Hall of Windham, finally receiving the vote after the name of J. Q. A. Stone of Killingly had been withdrawn. Balloting on other candidates was not so close.

Colonel Joseph Selden of this city was chosen for chairman of the republican state central committee at the meeting of the committee held in New Haven yesterday.

On Monday evening a barn owned by Elijah Green of Canterbury was burned to the ground, with six tons of hay and numerous farm implements. The appearances were that the fire was of incendiary origin, and as this is the second fire within a week of like origin the people are greatly excited.

Friday, February 7, 1873—At the meeting of the New England Historic-genealogical society in Boston on Wednesday, the Rev. Dr. Increase N. Tarbox read the principal essay of the day, which was on the foundation of Dartmouth college, and contained many interesting reminiscences of Lebanon, Conn., the place where the college was nurtured. The soil of this obscure little country village was a training ground of eminent men, both in politics and the church. Over sixty had entered the Christian ministry from this town, while in civil life, not less than six governors were given to the state of Connecticut, from Jonathan Trumbull down to William A. Buckingham. The Indian school carried on by Mr. Moor, in Lebanon, was the birthplace of Dartmouth college, and the first president. Dr. Wheelock, was for 36 years pastor of the church in that town. Dr. Tarbox in his essay traced the history of the removal of the college from Connecticut to New Hampshire, and showed that Connecticut people had never lost in the college that was born within its borders.

One of the first accidents of a serious nature to occur near Norwich during the winter happened Wednesday night when a boy named Randall was run over by a sleigh. The boy is expected to die from injuries received.

Norwich will benefit by the provision passed by the house of congress, extending the letter carrier system to places having a population of 20,000 inhabitants within its delivery.

Saturday, February 8, 1873—At a meeting of members of the Broadway Congregational society held last evening the officers of last year were re-elected: E. N. Gibbs, E. R. Thompson, T. J. Leavens, society committee; George W. Kies, clerk; and A. E. Wyman, treasurer.

The Rev. J. J. Twiss, new pastor of the Universalist church, officiates for the first time tomorrow.

A young woman in Poquetanuck narrowly escaped death yesterday when her dress caught fire when she was lighting a fire in the stove at her home. In her fright she ran for the nearest door, and her mother, a woman of nearly 70 years, losing her presence of mind in the excitement, endeavored to quench the flames by rolling the unfortunate girl in the snow. Her object was not attained until her daughter had sustained severe and painful injuries. The whole front of her down to her waist, her neck and face, and both arms were terribly burned. One arm was burned to a brown crisp and her features were rendered almost unrecognizable. A physician was soon summoned and hopes are entertained for her recovery. Her mother was also badly burned about the hands and arms from the flames, and it was necessary to treat her wounds.

Hamden—The amazing increase in land value along Dixwell avenue from the New Haven city line north to Pine street, is shown by the high figures paid for land on this section of Dixwell avenue and the action of the board of assessors in raising the assessments 100 per cent.

And I shall still be one whom you adjust!

For only he who breaks the faith shall die

While he who keeps the faith shall come again,
And tread the earth among the sons of men;

Shall see old faces in new walks and say,
"I knew him somewhere, in some other day."

Shall see old walls, old marbles, standing yet—
And think "I knew these things, but forgot."

Shall do some penance for a warm-cut sin,
And know that once more clean he can begin;

Shall reap some fine reward for some old deed,
And go with steady foot to sow good seed;

Shall know with every life a clearer light,
And shape his Destiny beyond the night.

It is the law. And all the laws are just.
Oh, I shall walk these streets when you are dust!

—Joseph Andrew Galahad, in The Lyric West.

THE PEACE OF OLD CAPE COD.

Nobody ever tried to put it into words—
The birds, the trees, the sounds, the sudden stretches of the sea,
The fields wind-swept and free,
The hills where quiet feet have trod
The heavenly peace of old Cape Cod.

Nobody ever made a picture of it
Or painted picture doing justice to it.
And yet, the lives that, harassed, torn
And bleeding, became less forlorn,
Grew healed, where live the Lord and God,
The matchless peace of old Cape Cod.

Heartsick of cities' clamorous strife,
And yearning for a wiser life,
Found here their hopes fulfilled.
The goldenrod and aster grew
Above the sorrow once they knew;
Night o'er again, they learned of God
And walked with Him on old Cape Cod —Anonymous.

MARKET WAS STRONG

New York, Feb. 9.—Rising commodity prices furnished the impetus for another advance in prices in today's stock market, the fourth consecutive million share session. The customary week end profit taking together with short selling of industrial shares whose market position had been reakened by the rapidity of the recent advance caused some irregularity in the late dealings, but speculators for the advance found little difficulty in bringing forward new pace makers to replace those which had temporarily fallen by the wayside.

Domestic conditions continued to be the predominant influence in the determination of quoted values, fresh encouragement being found in the weekly federal reserve statement showing a combined ratio of 77 per cent., the highest since October 25th last, which was interpreted as an indication of the strength of the country's banking position, and announcements of higher prices for Cuban raw and refined sugar. While foreign news developments were largely ignored by the stock market the cable reports of an agreement between Turkish authorities in Smyrna and the allied naval commanders under which the status quo would be maintained pending diplomatic negotiations, was reflected in the higher foreign exchange rates.

Sales of Cuban raw sugar for more than 4 cents a pound for the first time since 1921 brought about good buying in those shares, Cuba Cane preferred touching 54 for a net gain of 4 1-2 points, the common selling at 18, up to 2 3-8, and Manati, Punta Alegre, South Porto Rican, Cuban American, American and American Beef showing gains of 3-4 to 2 1-2 points.

Tobacco shares also displayed market strength, American Sumatra closing at 29 3-8 for a net gain of 3 3-8 points; American Tobacco rising 2 3-4 and the "B" selling ex-dividend, closing at 158 1-2, which really represents a net gain of nearly 4 points.

Baldwin was in free supply toward the close and dropped to 135 5-8 for a net loss of 1 1-8. The other usual market leaders, Studebaker and U. S. Steel, showed only minor net changes. Local gas shares turned heavy in the late dealings, Brooklyn Union dropping 2 3-4 and Consolidated 1 1-2. President Harding's renewed appeal for action on the ship subsidy bill caused further buying of the shipping, Marine common and preferred gaining about a point each and Atlantic Gulf & West Indies common and preferred, 2 3-4 and 3 3-4, respectively.

Activities in the rails was confined largely to the low priced issues. Southern Railway climbing 1 1-4 to 22 3-4, a new peak price. St. Louis Southwestern common and preferred each advanced more than 2 points, but Louisville & Nashville dropped 1 1-2 on profit taking. Kresge jumped 9 points on a small turnover and Chandler Motor touched 72 for a net gain of more than 2 points.

Call money opened at 4 1-4 per cent. and advanced in the last hour to 4 1-2, where it closed. Brokers are bidding 4 1-4 for call money but finding only meagre offerings at this rate, bankers demanding 5 per cent. for all maturities. Commercial paper is moving in moderate volume at 4 1-2 per cent. for the best names.

Foreign exchanges were firmer. Demand sterling sold just below $4.68, the year's high, and French francs hovered around 6.35 cents. German marks showed further improvement, advancing from .00030 1-4 to .0032 1-2 cents. Trading was relatively quiet.

BOND MARKET

New York, Feb. 9.—Marked strength of U. S. government bonds and speculative railroad mortgages combined with increasing activities at rising prices of the European government liens, featured today's bond market. All the active U. S. bonds showed gains of 4 to 28 cents on $100, the third 4 1-4's again getting above 98. Buying of these issues reflected the increased demand for tax exempt securities.

In the foreign group gains of a point or more were scored by Prague 7 1-2's, Czecho-Slowekian 8's, Dutch East Indies 6's of 1962, Serbian 8's, French 7 1-2's, Seine 7's, Framerican 7 1-2's, Mexican 4's and 5's and Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6's.

Norfolk & Southern 5's, which jumped 3 points led the advance in the railroad group, good buying being noted in Seaboard refuding 4's, adjustment 5's and 6's. Chicago & Great Western 4's and Atlantic Coast Line consolidated 4's, up to 2 21-2 points. Union Pacific convertible 4's broke 2 1-4 points and Peoria & Eastern income 4's, 1 1-4. Third Avenue adjustment 5's up 2 1-4, featured the local traction list.

Sugar company bonds moved up in sympathy with higher stock and commodity prices, Eastern Cuba Sugar 7 1-2's jumping 3 points; Punta Alegre 7's, 2 1-2 and American Sugar 6's, 1. New England and Pacific telephone issues and Marine 6's closed strong also.

Total sales (par value) were $12,466,000.

The principal offering today was a $13,000,000 issue of the city of Montreal refunding 5's at 97 and interest to yield about 5.20 per cent. The recent offering of New York and Pennsylvania joint stock land bank bonds was reported as over-subscribed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Aside from the effect of rapidly shifting reports about peace and war chances in the Near East, the wheat market today averaged higher in price today owing largely to apparent confidence shown by the holders of May, in which eastern interests were said to have ownership totalling upward of 10,000,000 bushels. The market closed unsettled, with a net gain of 1-8c up 1-4c to 5-8c. In provisions, the outcome varied from 2c decline to 7c advance.

After a wavering start, the wheat market took a general upward swing as a result of active commission house buying that in the main was ascribed to eastern orders based more or less on assumed cheapness of wheat in relation to other commodities. May delivery in particular showed strength, and with offerings readily absorbed the market scored a sharp ascent, reports meanwhile being current that Turkey refused to revoke her ultimatum against allied warships at Smyrna. Later reports that an agreement had been reached averting hostilities were followed by a reaction wiping out much of the gains.

Good buying support for May wheat appeared strongly in evidence, however, during the final dealing, and prevented bearish traders from getting control of the market. Bulls put considerable stress on improvement in flour business and on falling off in the volume of primary domestic receipts. There was also talk of farmers' efforts to withhold supplies in Canada and Argentina. On the other hand, export demand was slack, and snow was looked for over a great part of the winter crop belt.

Corn and oats were firmer with wheat, all deliveries of corn touching a new high price record for the season.

Provisions reflected upturns in the value of grain and hogs.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

REBEKAHS.

The regular meeting of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, was held Wednesday evening at Odd Fellows' hall on Main street. Noble Grand Bertha Collins presided and routine business was transacted. Plans are being made for the working of a big class of candidates on March 1. It is probable that members of the Rebekahs of other cities will be in Norwich on this occasion.

ODD FELLOWS.

Local veteran Odd Fellows have received invitations to attend the banquet of the Veterans Association, I. O. O. F., of Connecticut, which is to be held at Odd Fellows hall, Middletown, at noon on Washington's Birthday.

The brothers of "Central Lodge, No. 12, I. O. O. F., of that city, are to entertain the association, assisted by Priscilla Rebekah Lodge, No. 12, I. O. O. F.

The chairman of committees are the following: House, Alex Finlayson; by laws, Harry M. Clark; entertainment, Raymond C. Britton; wall decorations, Walter E. Turner; music, Clarence E. Barber; band, Aubrey W. Jarvis; patrol, Charles A. Hagberg; candidates, Harry B. Ford; publicity, Richard Lewis.

The finance committee consists of Charles A. Saxton, Nelson J. Ayling and Henry W. Lanz, and the standing committee and visiting remain the same as last year.

A rising vote of thanks to Past Monarch Chappell was passed for his efficient work in organization and as the presiding officer for the first year, to which he made a fitting response.

The committee reported the cast chosen and the rehearsals ready to begin for "The Glorious Girl," in the week of Feb. 19th, and continuing for three weeks.

A social hour closed the evening with entertainment by the Hall troupe and coffee and doughnuts served.

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE.

Lafayette Council, No. 207, gave a successful whist Thursday evening at the Buckingham Memorial. The whist was in charge of Miss Mabel Gladue and 20 tables were played. The prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies' first, Mrs. Anna Codere, silver salt and pepper set; second, Mrs. Octave Caron, half dozen fancy glasses; third, Miss Eva Godin, vase. Men's first, J. B. Caron, silk scarf; second, Ganger H. Gaucher, container; third, J. O. Geblam, set of cards.

Following the whist Prof. A. C. Pruneau sang several selections and dancing was enjoyed.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Wauregan lodge, No. 6, holds its next meeting Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Buckingham Memorial. The newly elected chancellor commander, Dr. Kopland K. Markoff, will preside. Plans for the coming year are to be discussed and District Deputy, Genial Jake Wechler of Jewett City, will be down to apologize for the discourteous treatment given by Undaunted lodge of that city, on local alleys recently. The local bowling team will also give a detailed report on the success of the match. Brother Pieper is due to create some more mystery about the big time ahead. Everything is set for a live meeting and it is expected that every brother will attend the meeting.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA.

Court City of Norwich will hold an old fashioned smoker on its next meeting night, Tuesday, Feb. 13th, and from all indications a large attendance is expected. Music will be furnished by a first class orchestra, and the other amusements will be in charge of the real live "hustling" committee. A quartet will liven things up under the direction of Professor McNerney. Henry Clements, the well known dancer, will perform, and the promise is for a good time for all.

EAGLES.

Norwich aerie, No. 367, held its regular meeting Monday evening with President W. R. Hastedt in the chair, receiving a report that was full of interest from the committee on new building. The committee mentioned several pieces of property that might be purchased and there was much enthusiasm shown to go ahead with some plans of securing a new home that the aerie should own.

Announcement was made of an open meeting to which members are to invite friends on March 19 when Judge Thomas O'Donnell of Kansas City, who is making a tour of the country in the interest of the Eagles will be the speaker.

Half a dozen applications were received and accepted. A social hour closed the meeting.

COMPANIONS OF FOREST.

Nevins-Carver circle, No. 1235, met at Buckingham Memorial Monday evening with a good sized meeting, presided over by C. C., Viola Bolduc. The circle is in hopes of having several new members before the initiation in March. Friday night the dance in Union hall it is hoped will be a success for which all necessary plans were made at the meeting.

B'NAI BRITH.

The Rose of New England and Auxiliary No. 40, I. O. B. B., held a regular meeting in its usual rooms in the Buckingham Memorial, Thursday evening. Preparations are being made for a Colonial dance which is to be given in the Wauregan hotel February 21. A novelty feature of the dance will be an old fashioned minuet to be given by eight girls in Colonial costume.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS.

Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. Josephine Hiscox, the last meeting of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, Daughters of Veterans, was presided over by the senior vice president, Miss Lillie Wolf. There was a small attendance because of the severe storm.

During the business session it was voted to hold a baked bean supper. The council reported the purchase of several additional dishes and it was voted to purchase more flat pieces of silver for the use of the tent. One new candidate for membership was ballotted on. The meeting closed in the usual form with the salute to the flag.

RED MEN.

Mohegan lodge, No. 67, met in regular session Wednesday evening in the Steiner building with Sachem Joseph A. George in the chair.

Regular routine business was transacted, following which the degree team rehearsed for the various degrees to be worked on classes of candidates at some meeting in the near future.

Deputy Great Sachem Benjamin Rose of New London was present and invited the local tribe to trail down to the hunting grounds of the New London tribe on Tuesday of next week to witness the working of the Chief's degree on a class of candidates. The invitation was accepted and a delegation of local Red Men will go to New London on that evening.

After the meeting refreshments were served by the feast committee.

OWLS.

Norwich Nest, No. 1396, met in regular session Tuesday evening at Owls' hall on Main street. President John Walz was in the chair and matters of interest to the nest were discussed. Plans for future activities were also discussed.

YANTIC

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fishbone are making preparations for a gathering in honor of their son, Jacob Fishbone, Sunday, February 11.

Many kinds of birds are coming very near the homes of the people who are feeding them around the village.

There was a meeting of the Yantic Co-operative Exchange at the home of M. J. Shea, Wednesday evening for the annual election of officers. The officers of the past year were re-elected as follows:

E. A. Wyman, president; L. H. Smith, vice president; Nelson Stark, treasurer; E. A. Miller, secretary.

George Kahn was re-elected manager.

During the past year the business of the association has amounted to $15,000. The exchange paid the stockholders 6 per cent. on money invested—with a cash balance in the treasury at the beginning of the year.

During the evening J. E. Simms of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, who is dairy club manager of several dairy clubs in the state spoke on the club work. He had a map with him and illustrated the progress made by five of the different clubs in the state. He showed how milk producers could find out a non-profitable cow and in many ways made plain some points local producers have neglected. He said it was impossible for a milk dealer to produce milk under five cents a quart before handling. His talk was most favorably received.

A Dairy club would greatly benefit the members of the association and it is thought one may be performed.

Miss Ellen O'Hearn has returned to her duties as student nurse at the Bridgeport General hospital after a week's stay in town with her mother, Mrs. Stephen O'Hearn.

LAUREL GLEN

Mrs. Charles Marble returned from Bellingham, Mass., Friday after attending the funeral of her father, William Coombs. Mr. Coombs, who had made his home with his daughter here for some time, died Monday. His son, who had been helping to care for him, accompanied his body to Bellingham on Tuesday. During his stay here Mr. Coombs had become well known and liked by all who came in contact with him. He was of a cheerful disposition and always glad to welcome his friends, even when unable to get around. He died at the age of 93.

FRENCH AND BELGIANS ARE BEARING DOWN ON GERMANS

Have Served Notice on Germany That Exports From the Ruhr and the Rhineland Will Cease Going Into Unoccupied Germany at Midnight—Action is in Retaliation for Efforts of Germans to Create Difficulties for the Occupational Forces—General Degoutte Brands Germany as "a Quitter Before the Entire World"—"Insolent, Arrogant, Pitiless in Victory, but Servile, Self-Pitying in Defeat".

Paris, Feb. 11 (By the A. P.)—Metal and other manufactures from the Ruhr and the Rhineland will not be permitted to go into unoccupied Germany after midnight tonight. The French and Belgian governments today served notice on Germany that in consequence of the efforts of the Germans to create difficulties for the occupational forces this further embargo is to be imposed on exports from the two regions. An identical note handed the German charges d'affaires in Paris and Brussels reads as follows:

"Because of orders given by the German government to its functionaries in the Ruhr basin, as well as disorders of all sorts which the German government is trying to excite there, the French and Belgian governments have decided no longer to allow to be exported into unoccupied Germany, beginning Feb. 12, 1923, metallurgical and other products manufactured in the occupied territories."

FRENCH DETERMINED TO STAY UNTIL GERMANY PAYS

Duesseldorf, Feb. 11 (By The A. P.)—Just one month ago today I gave my orders to my troops to enter the Ruhr, and never, until Germany makes adequate settlement for the frightful wrongs and damages inflicted upon my country, will I order them to withdraw," said General Degoutte, the French commander, to the Associated Press today.

"Right and might are ours," General Degoutte continued, "and we shall win. We occupied the Ruhr without shedding a drop of blood. We have allowed the population full liberty; we are not crushing the country under requisitions; but we want to get paid, and we shall be paid.

"We are getting ahead in organizing the region. The Germans may sneer, but we can stand an idle Ruhr longer than they can. The world must realize what a stupendous undertaking is the organization of the intricate network of railroads, industries and mines. Even you in America, with your tremendous capacity for organization and your great resources of men and money, might have found it difficult to complete such a work in a month. We shall carry on."

General Degoutte said his attention had been called to a statement to the Associated Press made by Chancellor Cuno and published in the United States and cabled to Koln (Cologne) Gazette.

"The Chancellor said General Degoutte declares our aim is the economic destruction of Germany. On the contrary, much simpler. We only desire the exact execution of the peace signature. The economic ruin of Germany would prevent her from paying us. Germany is lamenting misery responsible for the present situation of enforcing the peace treaty.

Referring to Chancellor Cuno's statement that the entrance of the French into the Ruhr was a deliberate violation of the Versailles treaty, General Degoutte said the chancellor might quit Art. 16 of the treaty which empowered the allied governments to take retaliatory action, their judged necessary. The chancellor's reference to German resistance was a result to passive resistance brought forth only to evade from the French commander:

"German resistance is stronger or believed to be stronger than her adversary. The moment she feels an opponent is more powerful she surrenders. She pleaded and begged for an armistice under circumstances which the allies would have considered their aim had begun to exist. We did not quit after Sedan. We fought to the finish, lost and we pay.

"Germany is branded a quitter before the entire world, insolent, arrogant, pitiless in victory, but servile, self-pitying in defeat. How do they look to us in the Ruhr?"

[illegible] the Ruhr [illegible] nationally are repairing [illegible] damage done by the Germans themselves when they were retiring. Statistics coming from men who [illegible] and [illegible] industries at [illegible] report [illegible] We are not even obliged to rule the country with an iron hand. We [illegible] confidence in labor.

"But I solemnly warn Germany if a [illegible] sooner is harmed [illegible] forces another battle on us, [illegible] will be a fight to the [illegible]

BOYCOTT AGAINST FRENCH AND BELGIAN SOLDIERS

[illegible] The [illegible] boycott is in full swing. The Germans assert they will not yield, but the French regard the situation philosophically and bring in their own food supplies by army transport.

ESSEN GERMAN POLICEMEN HAVE REFUSED TO DO DUTY

Essen, Feb. 11.—(By The A. P.)—French tanks have been ordered to Herne, a few miles from Bochum, where the Germans are reported to be organizing a general strike. A boycott against the French who occupied Hernes last week in connection with coal seizures, began Saturday and is spreading throughout the district. Even the German policemen have refused to do duty, and French soldiers are policing the streets wherever the police have failed to appear.

SHIPPING BILL TO BE KEPT BEFORE SENATE

Washington, Feb. 11.—President Harding's counsel on the collision in the senate between the administration's two major measures, the shipping and British debt funding bills, was sought today by senate leaders and as a result the shipping bill will not be laid aside immediately to make way for the debt funding proposal. The probable outcome of the remaining three weeks of congress, however, still remained uncertain.

Another conference will be held tomorrow at which the legislative programme for the closing days of the present session may develop into more definite form. Night sessions of the senate are in prospect to press the shipping, British debt and other important measures caught in the usual pre-adjournment jam. The house has completed most of its important work and will, as compared with the senate, mark time until sine die adjournment.

The conflict between the shipping bill and British debt bills was taken up with the president today by Senator Jones, republican, Washington, commerce committee chairman in charge of the shipping measure and Senator Curtis, of Kansas, assistant republican leader. Tomorrow morning Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, Chairman Mondell of the house committee managing the British debt bill, Senator Simmons, democratic member of the allied debt commission and other party leaders have appointments with the president to further discuss the administration programme.

Although the president has indicated a firm opposition to separating the measures, it was understood that he is disposed to acquiesce if congress should decide that the shipping bill now [illegible] business. He made clear that the [illegible] which congress was called into extra session last November should be passed before the senate and pressed vigorously at least until such a course would imperil enactment of the British debt funding bill.

He was 64 years old. Mr. McCormick was the author of several volumes on the training of boys and was regarded as an authority on the subject.

Sloop Natalie Lost With All Hands Aboard

Edgartown, Mass., Feb. 11.—Wreckage washed ashore on Naushon Island, in Vineyard sound, which was found by a searching party today, proved conclusively that the fishing sloop Natalie, missing for several weeks, was lost with all hands abroad.

Captain Robert Jackson of the schooner Hazel M. Jackson today sailed to Naushon from this port with twenty-eight volunteers to search the island as a result of reports that reached here yesterday that wreckage had been washed ashore there. The search of the several miles of the island's coast line had barely begun when, just east of Tarpaulin cove, near the westward tip of the island, the fishermen came upon wreckage, among it a part of a broken dory bearing the name "Natalie." Other wreckage was identified as part of the missing sloop's equipage.

Fisher folk here tonight were of the opinion that the Natalie was rammed by a larger ship and had sunk almost immediately, carrying down her captain and crew of three. It has been definitely established that she left Newport for Edgartown on Jan. 24, and her route would have taken her past Naushon.

The men believed lost are Skipper Patrick Kelley, Frank and Charles Doyle and Robert Taylor, all of Edgartown. Skipper Kelley was well known in the fisheries and elsewhere as the holder of the bronze medal of the Carnegie hero fund and the silver medal of the Massachusetts Humane Society.

A Number of Irish Rebels Surrender

Deliver Arms and Promise Not to Fight Against the Free State Government.

Dublin, Feb. 11 (By the A. P.).—The first official report of a surrender under the government's new amnesty decree has been received from County Cork, where a number of irregulars, accompanied by their leader, delivered up their arms and ammunition at the Newmarket military barracks and entered into an undertaking not to fight again against the Free State government.

AGREES TO DE VALERA'S TERMS FOR SURRENDER

London, Feb. 11 (By the A. P.).—President Cosgrave of the Dail Eireann, in a statement in the Daily Mail, declared that he was ready to agree that Eamon De Valera should advise his followers to surrender their arms on the condition that the question of a republic or the Free State should be left to the electors.

President Cosgrave's declaration was made unhesitatingly in reply to the interviewer's question. He added: "The new franchise bill will not be ready before June or July, but I would then be more than willing to leave the decision of Ireland's government to the people, the election to be fought on the system of proportional representation.

"There is not a seat in Ireland that De Valera could win under those conditions, not even Clare, where he won his last seat, nor West Cork, where the irregulars are supposed to be strong. De Valera's following is ac-

LINCOLN

Surely, upon his shoulders gaunt and worn
The seamless garment touched, invisibly!
Surely he came upon Gethsemane!
And was there not only single piercing thorn
From that dark wreath of anguish, for his brow?
Within that grail of bitterness we know
Was held one drop that he alone must drain.
While from the crowd the stinging jibe again.—
And lurking thrust that sped him to his fate
Friend of the friendless, meek — compassionate—
Ours be the tragic loss—the haunting thought
"He dwelt amongst us, and we knew him not."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"Nero" Sets Mark For Lavish Production.

"Nero," the William Fox super-special, which opened at the Breed theatre last night, more than lives up to its reputation of being the king-pin among motion pictures. The long line of historic screen stories that preceded it set a high mark for this newest of record-breaking productions.

"Nero" accomplishes with surprising ease the difficult feat of out-distancing the whole list of famous features. Not alone is the production extraordinarily impressive by reason of the magnitude and variety of its marvelously realistic sets, the enormous size and skilled direction of its mobs, and the costliness and magnificence of its thousands or costumes, but also through the strength and deep human appeal of its story.

Written by Charles Sarver and Virginia Tracy, and directed by J. Gordon Edwards, "Nero" discloses a tale of Ancient Rome, set against a background of historic fact that pulsates with the life and color of the time when the greatest tyrant the world has ever known sat upon the throne of the Caesars.

The struggle between Christianity and Paganism is the theme of "Nero," but, like all worth-while screen fiction, it is the pure love of a man for a maid that lights up the sombre scenes of crime and evil passion and awakens a responsive glow in the hearts of the spectators.

"Nero" abounds in thrills. Any one of its sensational episodes would be sufficient to make the reputation of an ordinary feature. This Fox production counts them by the dozen, chief of which is the burning of Rome. When the brutal and self-deceived emperor grasps eagerly the suggestion that he apply the torch to the city and so furnish the inspiration for the composing of a song which shall enable him to exhibit the wonders of his singing voice, the resultant scenes of fright and destruction stand unequalled in motion picture annals as the frenzied populace seeks safety in flight from the mounting flames and crumbling walls.

Beautiful and unusual views of the country around Rome and exquisite reproductions of the interiors of great palaces in the Eternal City are also shown.

The acting is splendidly efficient. As Nero, a French actor named Jacques Gretillat gives a wonderfully life-like characterization of the last of the Caesars. Paulette Duval, as Poppaea, is revealed as the greatest "vamp" of them all. The beauty and force of her personality and the perfect skill of her acting make her irresistible.

DODGE BROTHERS
BUSINESS SEDAN

Dodge Brothers, with equal aptness, could have named it the Family Sedan.

In the first place, it is big and roomy—a five-passenger car that will really seat five adults in comfort. There is no space wasted on superfluous adornments. Every inch of body and chassis is put to actual use.

There are no delicate cloth furnishings to be soiled by the children. The seats are upholstered in durable and attractive blue Spanish leather.

There is no sensitive varnish to be easily scratched or finger-spotted. The body is steel-built—a new principle in Sedan design—making it possible to finish the exterior in Dodge Brothers oven-baked enamel, the most durable finish known.

The rear seat furnishings come out—instantly converting the rear section into a spacious carrying compartment—handy for carrying trunks, boxes and household luggage of all sorts.

Children can romp and play to their hearts' content in this car, and when cleaning time comes, you can turn the hose on it—inside and out.

The Price is $1300 Delivered.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Doings At the Broadway.

Those contemplating seeing some real good vaudeville and an exceptionally good feaure photoplay will not be at all disappointed for the management deserves credit for the programme that is herewith outlined for the first half of this week, starting today.

The feature attraction is a comedy skit called "A Lease For Life," and is presented by Bob Ferns & Co. Mehlo & Bruin in "It's a Bear," promised to be a real novelty for Bruin is a real Bear and not only does he skate but is a comedian as well. Harry Autrum & Betty Vale in "Sparks of Humor," are comedians who certainly throw sparks out with hearty laughter. Lorrain, Howard & Flo Lind present their harmonious comedy songalogue, "Wedding Bells." Ruth & Gene Fifer are Broadway's youthful stars, presenting "Original Dances."

Who is responsible for the divorce cases that crowd the courts and the columns of the daily press? Who is to blame for the love of the limelight that possesses young girls of today? Whose fault is it that the young generation feeds in sensationalism and demands continual novelty—in dress, dances, and diversions?

We ourselves are to blame—is the answer of Director Will Nigh's latest screen production, "Notoriety," which is scheduled to open at the Broadway theatre today. Young folks of today are over-anxious to attain attention, and are too eager to applaud anyone else that manages to catch the public eye. They worship the divorcee who succeeds in breaking out in print. They pay homage to any fanatic of a new-fangled idea. To quote one of the stirring titles in the film: "The public demands the latest sensation over the breakfast table."

The cast of "Notoriety" includes some of the leading stars of filmdom, such as Maurine Powers, who plays the part of "Pigeon," Rod La Rocque, George Hackathorne, Richard Travers, J. Barney Sherry and Mary Alden.

At the Strand.

Impressively done is the Cosmopolitan production, "The Pride of Palomar," which will open at the Strand theatre today for three days' showing. The cast is an all star one, featuring Forrest Stanley and Marjorie Daw, and including such well known players as James Barrow, Joseph Dowling and Warner Oland.

The title is a familiar one to many, the picture having been adapted to the screen from the widely read novel of the same name, by Peter B. Kyne. Treating a vital problem with intelligence, the story has a wide appeal. Frank Borzage, who produced "Humoresque," "The Valley of Silent Men" and "Get Rich Wallingford," was the director. Plentiful evidence of the Borzage touch is evident in the production, while the work of the admirably selected cast is splendid.

The story deals with the problems of a young American, Don Mike Farrell who upon returning from service with the American Army of Occupation finds the family ranch virtually in the hands of foreigners.

Don Mike finds that the head of the opposing forces, a man named Parker, is the father of the girl he loves. Making the struggle that follows harder for him is Parker's announcement that he will fight Mike to the limit for the ranch. There is love, sacrifice, hatred, bluff, in fact about all the different kinds of emotions to be found in the picture.

The comedy feature will be "Hazel From Hollywood," a Christie comedy and a screen Graphic will make up the remainder of the programme.

NORWICH RIFLE CLUB TO SHOOT AGAINST BRATTLEBORO

[illegible] with the Brattleboro Rifle club of Brattleboro, Vermont. This match will be shot in two stages, the first stage being shot next Wednesday night. The Brattleboro club is one of the most consistent shooting rifle clubs in New England and possibly with the exception of the Quinnipiac Rifle club of New Haven is the best rifle club in New England. One interesting feature in this match that will be of interest to several members of the Norwich Rifle club, is that Earle A. Barnard of the Brattleboro team and Charles Palmer of the Norwich club will oppose each other in this match. These two men were members of the crack rifle team [illegible] Norwich Rifle club, and the Connecticut Agricultural college rifle team of that year the college boys shot within a few points of a perfect score, defeating the Norwich Rifle club by over 200 points.

A match will be arranged soon with the members of the Norwich club, who have not shot in any of the club's matches, and the Jewett City Rifle club. Although the Jewett City club [illegible] range they can put up good scores and a close match is expected. Rifle shooting locally is fast gaining in popularity and as it is one of the cleanest of sports should be encouraged.

Moore skated the 440-yard event in 47 2-5 seconds, clipping one fifth of a second from the record held by Charles Gorman of St. John, N. B., which previously had been recognized by the International Skating union of America, and drove through the three-mile route in [illegible] seconds, lowering the record [illegible] by Robert Axelrod, Rochester.

The New York skater was high scoring man for the three meet matches but he was unable to overcome the lead of Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, in the Adirondack gold cup competition.

The Maxwell "200-point" cup will not be awarded until next year, the leading competitor, Jewtraw, lacking 10 points of the required 500 to capture the trophy.

JOIE RAY RUNS IN NEW YORK FOR LAST TIME

New York, Feb. 11.—(By The A. P.) Having achieved the distinction of being recognized as the greatest distance runner ever developed in the United States, perhaps in the world, Joie Ray, who sports the colors of the Illinois Athletic club, of Chicago, will make his final New ork appearance of the indoor season tomorrow night.

It may be his last metropolitan race, and one of the last races of his long and amazing track career, for there have been numerous rumors, which he has been reported as denying, though not emphatically, that this is his last season. After his unparalleled performance at the Wilco Athletic club games last night, sports followers are ready to believe that Joe would prefer to close his record in a burst of glory.

Ray will concede handicaps to some of the second-best distance men in the country tomorrow night in the annual indoor games of the 71st Regiment Athletic association in the one and three-quarter mile run, for which he set a new world's record of 7:59 4-5 last night. He will concede distance to Willie Ritola, of the Finnish-American A. C. national ten-mile and metropolitan two-mile champion and a host of lesser lights.

Upon completing last night the greatest individual performance in the history of amateur sport, as most critics today declare without qualification, Ray is saying, "one hundred percent." always inoffensively boastful, Joie only did last night what he predicted he would do- break all the records he desired to smash. He broke three world's records—3,000 meters, 1 3-4 and two miles—established one new world's record—1 7-8 miles—and made the two miles indoors under the outdoor time. He did it all in one race, that for the Hirshon trophy at 3,000 meter, continuing on to the end of two miles.

In every appearance here this season he has broken a record, either the track mark, the metropolitan mark, or the world's mark. All tracks have looked alike to him and as for his fields of competitors he passed them too quickly to notice much.

The Chicagoan will leave Tuesday for Buffalo to participate in the national indoor meet of the Amateur Athletic union.

GARDNER AND EVANS NOT TO GO TO ENGLAND

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Robert A. Gardner and Chick Evans of Chicago, the only two eligible American golfers who have won the American national amateur championship twice, will not go to Great Britain this summer with the American invaders to defend the Walker cup, according to expressions made by them today. Gardner's decision is taken to be final, but it is thought possible that Evans may change his mind if conditions permit.

Gardner finished runner up in a 77 hole match for the British title three years ago, but Evans has been less fortunate in his invasions of England, having run into an unbeatable 32 on one nine during his first expedition, when he was playing well, and being off his game on the succeeding attempts.

Their decision leaves R. E. Knepper of Iowa, a Princeton student, and Harrison Johnston, of St. Paul, as the most promising westerners, who may go, aside from Dave Herron of Chicago, formerly national champion, in case Herron gets back into the stride that carried him to victory over Bobby Jones at Pittsburgh three years ago.

While no reason except business was assigned by Evan and Gardner for not joining the invaders, it has been the understanding for several seasons that American golfers felt they had only a slim chance of winning in Great Britain, owing to the lack of practice under foreign climatic conditions, and the fact that preliminary rounds have been held to 18 holes, leaving too much to an extra good round.

LEONARD OFFERED $50,000 TO MEET FREEDMAN

TILDEN WINS FROM MURRAY IN THE SEMI-FINALS OF BUFFALO TENNIS PLAY

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 11.—William Tilden 2nd., national champion, won his singles match today in the semi-finals of the first annual indoor tennis tournament of the Buffalo Tennis and Squash club R. Lindley Murray of Niagara Falls, Tilden's opponent, put up a slashing contest and frequently forced Tilden to his most brilliant game. In the first set Murray drove frequently into the net and also lost points on Tilden's hard service, but in the second set the Niagara Falls man used with success a cross-court shot that bothered the champion. Tilden won the second set 6-4. Tilden had previously disposed of Hugh Kelleher of New York and Murray beat Harold A. Throckmorton in a three-set match.

R. Lindley Murray, Niagara Falls, defeated Harold A. Throckmorton, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Richards of Yonkers defeated Hunter of New York 5-6, 6-4. Doubles scheduled for this evening were postponed until tomorrow.

Grid Star Takes Bride.

Fairfield, Iowa, Feb. 11.—Aubrey Devine, all-American quarterback and captain of the Iowa university football team in 1921, was married here today to Miss Catherine Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton of Pasadena, Cal.

Devine is at present a law student at Iowa university and is assistant coach.

FREAK AUTO RACE RESULTS IN ACCIDENT

Montevideo, Feb. 11.—(By The A. P.)—An automobile race between three cars, in which the drivers were blindfolded, resulted disastrously today when one of the drivers swerved from his course and plunged into a crowd of spectators, seriously injuring twelve of them.

The race was 500 metres and was intended to test the capacity of the drivers for "orientation" and also provide a carnival spectacle. Each driver has a woman passenger in his car who was to warn him in case he lost his bearings. Two of the cars kept their courses successfully. The woman in the third car, which crashed into the crowd, became confused and misdirected the driver when he stepped on the accelerator in an effort to win the race.

Speaker is going to develop a new third baseman. He thinks he has found the man in Walter Luizke of the Kansas City club, but Rice Stephenson is also a candidate. Larry Gardner has been relegated to a coaching job.

What threatens a baseball war in this section is the announcement made by R. F. Smith, manager of the Bethlehem Fabricators and president of the Lehigh Valley Baseball league, that the circuit is considering the advisability of making application for protection in organized baseball.

THE LOBSTER INDUSTRY.

In all probability, except by those who are in the near vicinity, little thought is given by the people of the state at large to the lobster industry and yet along its shores there are those engaged in the business who bring to the market a million and a third pounds of lobsters a year.

Of more interest to this end of the state is the statement in the biennial report of Superintendent Titcomb of the state board of fisheries and game that more than half of these lobsters were handled through Noank. It is an industry that not only calls for protection and development in the interest of the consumer but also for the benefit of those directly involved. Instead of permitting it to be forced out of business by shortsighted policies and bad practices it is for the interest of all that measures looking to the proper conservation of all lobstermen should be fostered.

Already the restrictions that are in force are accomplishing results as is shown by the commission's statement that the lobsters are not being depleted. That means that the protection given is doing what was intended and that for those millions and millions of pounds taken each year as much if not more is being grown to take its place.

If the blocking of the greed and the bad practices in the lobster industry has made it possible to accomplish so much in the way of conservation, the importance not only of adherence to the laws protecting the short and egg-bearing lobsters, but of extending them wherever necessary cannot be wisely overlooked. For the reason such recommendations as the commission makes concerning the marking of all lobster cars in Connecticut and the requiring of all who market their lobsters in this state to obtain [illegible] must be regarded as serving the general interests of the lobster industry.

The value of preventing the sale of short lobsters and the egg-bearing lobsters as carried on under the direction of the commission is unmistakable. It should mean an industry growing stronger instead of dwindling, or progress in the right direction. Connecticut should be anxious to do what is necessary to encourage it.

COAL MINE HORRORS.

In the Dawson, N. M., mine horror there is emphasized anew the great element of uncertainty that exists in connection with mining operations. Although this has been regarded as one of the "safe" mines, one where gas conditions were not so bad as in others or where provisions had been made for taking care of them, yet despite the rating something happened to cause an explosion that quickly snuffed out the lives of more than a hundred and caused great wreckage.

Whether it will ever be determined what the cause was will depend upon the investigations. In view of the great death list it seems improbable that there will be any survivors who had any knowledge of the actual situation. With those who know probably numbered among the dead, it will remain for experts to determine if possible, how the explosion happened.

It would be unfortunate if nothing definite was determined from such investigations as are made. If conditions existed which ought not to have for the reasonable safety of the men it ought to be known that the remedy may be applied. If it was the mere defect in the wiring or [illegible] of the mine, that likewise ought to be established. If it was the fault of some miner through the striking of a match, or for any other reason, the future safeguarding of the mine requires it to be known. From the fact that it has held such a high rating following recent examinations, it seems improbable that there could have been criminal negligence on the part of the operating officials and yet if such were the case such should stand in the way of its [illegible] being revealed.

[illegible] show progress being made in the development of safety only to be followed by such deplorable catastrophes as that at Dawson, all of which accentuates the high degree of uncertainty that prevails in going down into the earth for coal.

IMPOSING JAIL SENTENCES.

[illegible] in various cases [illegible] charge maintained [illegible] the case because of [illegible] with determination and promptness to respect the law and enforce it in practice. Perhaps [illegible] become more aware of the [illegible] the judges before whom violators of liquor laws appeared repeatedly for the same offense. That at least [illegible] been the view of the federal judge in New York who gave a full sentence varying from two to four months in addition to fines in the cases of the LaMontagne brothers of New York indicted for conspiracy to violate the Volstead act and to defraud the government.

Although it may have been that pleas of guilty were entered in the hope that they would be permitted to adjust matters by paying a fine, it doesn't appear that the judge in this instance regarded the matter in that light at all. It was a confessedly open violation of the law. It was intended to disregard the restrictions, quite the same as others have done and are doing. Certainly it was no time for the judge to say that a fine would be imposed which would serve only as the licensing of an illegal act. The brothers knew what they were doing and what they might expect. If they took the chances and drew a fine instead of a jail sentence it was their misfortune.

But the cry of surprise at the jail sentence simply indicates what an important part the court has in upholding and enforcing the law. Disrespect is going to prevail as long as there is nothing to fear, and that is the way in which the imposition of a fine that only means a small part of the profits that come from the violation of the law is regarded by a large number. When all the authorities, including the courts, stop winking at the law there will be a different attitude among the violators. As long as they can get rich quickly and get in the way of a penalty something that amounts to no more than a slap on the wrist, they have little to worry them in the way of prosecution.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

It makes no difference that it was years ago that Abraham Lincoln lived, for those who are inspired by lives well lived, great deeds done and a determination to struggle onward and upward against great obstacles are certain to find in the life of the great commoner much to study, much to admire and much to emulate.

Abraham Lincoln will always stand as a wonderful example of what can be done by those with poor parents and few advantages but with a willingness to struggle to the limit to overcome the handicaps that must inevitably be faced. And he will also be revered because his personality reveals every attribute of the highest type of American manhood.

He recognized the responsibility that rested upon him as a boy when it became necessary to borrow books and to struggle for his education. He was by no means unmindful of his responsibility in later years or when he shouldered the duties of the presidency. Neither did he falter in the great conflict where he was commander in chief. These responsibilities were of the greatest and yet that did not swerve him from following the straightforward course. He acquitted himself nobly as a rail-splitter, a student, a soldier and a statesman. He was a man of courage and upright purpose and a leader of men whose strength has grown greater as the years have passed. It may not always have been so, but Abraham Lincoln has today a nation of admirers. Good reason is there for remembering the birthday anniversary of such a man.

HALTING COAL FOR CANADA.

Efforts to have an embargo placed on coal that is being exported from this country, until such a time as some relief is obtained for those suffering from the coal shortage in this country, have been undertaken once more. The large volume of exports in coal goes to Canada and it is certainly exasperating for those communities which are suffering from the lack of sufficient coal to keep warm to see trainloads of the fuel go by on their way to Canada.

Whatever efforts are being undertaken to have this tonnage destined for other countries checked are not for the purpose of creating worse conditions in the country to the north but to permit of a distribution within the country where the fuel is produced and where it is needed.

There have been instances where coal shortages have prevailed for this very reason. Because export coal commands a higher figure it has been sold where it would bring the greatest returns until restrictions were established requiring the service of the domestic requirements. Such a view is reasonable.

It is of course not the fault of Canada which is a large coal customer of this country that there is a coal shortage in this country. It is not our neighbor's fault that the coal situation has placed a greater burden upon the railroads than they can handle in a short space of time. Canada is not getting its usual amount of coal from the United States but as long as it continues to receive what those in this country cannot get there is sure to be a call for an embargo until the fuel situation improves here.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

What has become of those wild geese that persisted in flying north in January?

The man on the corner says: There is always a big difference between not wanting to and can't.

Those strikers in French territory aren't doing a thing but giving comfort and encouragement to Germany.

The absentee voting bill has been rejected, but there's plenty to be done in regar dto the absentminded voter.

Experience shows that there is real danger in some of the coal mines that are numbered among the safest.

Business throughout the country is showing a decided gain. Even the postoffice receipts furnish satisfying evidence.

That flight by airplane to South America that required nearly six months hasn't brought the continents any closer together.

There have been many and heavy snowfalls this winter but happily we have escaped without the collapsing of any theater roofs.

The day when the services of the great emancipator to his country are recalled and reviewed. They can never be forgotten.

New uses for the flying machine are being found every day. Carrying a surgeon to an icebound island in Lake Michigan it was instrumental in saving life.

The passing of the Chelsea Boat club means the end of a well known organization that has afforded much pleasure in past years. It yields, like the horse, to the popularity of the automobile.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Salad oil added to putty prevents it from hardening or cracking.

Turn a new paint brush bristles up, open, pour in a spoonful of good varnish and keep it in that position until dry. You will find that the bristles will never shed in painting.

When punching a new hole in a sewing-machine belt, heat a hatpin very hot and it will pentrate the belt like magic.

To remove a stamp from an envelope, cut a piece of blotter the size of the stamp, soak it in cold water and put it on the stamp. Remove the blotter in a few minutes and the stamp will come off.

In shipping flowers a long distance, put the stems in raw potatoes. Several flowers can be put in one potato. The juice of the potato keeps them fresh.

To keep linoleum looking like new, wipe it off with sweet milk. It preserves the surface and keeps it bright.

When bathing a baby in a porcelain tub lay a Turkish bath-towel on the bottom of the tub to prevent the child from slipping.

Does the tone of your piano ever seem dull in damp weather? Try placing a lump of line in a breakfast box inside the lower part, and see how soon it makes the tone clearer.

When knitting double mittens, using two threads, try using one ball of common wrapping twine instead of two woolen ones. It is cheaper, wears longer, and the men say the mittens are better for having the cotton in them as it keeps the wind out where all wool will not.

When your bedspread has become wrinkled take a stiff whisk-broom and brush over the spread. The fresh appearance it gives to the spread, removing all wrinkles, will surprise you.

To polish copper, brass or zinc use vinegar or salt. Apply with a soft cloth and polish with a dry woolen cloth.

PRESS THE AIR OUT.

A hot-water bag will stay hot much longer if it is filled only half full and is then pressed until all the air is expelled. Screw the top on quickly. This is much more comfortable, too, if the bag is used to ease pain in the back and the sufferer must lie one it. It is less bulky and cumbersome.

IN CLEANING GLASS.

In washing all kinds of glassware it is well to remember that the slightest scratch tends to weaken glass and makes it likely to break at the spot where it is marked. Therefore the greatest care must be exercised in handling, and pans, cloths and towels should be chosen so that there is no danger of scratching.

Cut glass is more difficult to dry, as the moisture remains in the crevices, and for ware of this kind a box of boxwood or basswood sawdust is an easy and neat method of drying cut glass. Put the glass in the box and cover it completely, allowing it to remain about a half hour. Remove from box and brush with a soft cloth or fine bristle brush. A chamois cloth is also good.

Spread the sawdust out to dry and it can then be used over and over again.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Silk stockings are more hygienic than cotton hose, says a well known doctor, but he condemns the too-light shoes worn by many women and girls.

Hair-dressing today has gone in for the Spanish mode, which it may be said is generally unbecoming to women outside of Spain. It requires the low forehead which northern races lack. The hair is drawn sleekly back from the brow and smoothed over the ears, only to rise in an extraordinarily high roll across the back of the head.

For hands that chap easily take common table salt, dampen and rub your hands thoroughly after they have been in water. This is very healing.

When you are dressing for the evening, if you wear a low cut frock, be sure you powder the back of the neck and shoulders liberally with a very good talcum. There is nothing less pleasant than a pearly tinted complexion in front, that becomes brown and coarse pored in back!

FINE FOR THE BATH.

The efficacy of common salt as a gargle for the throat, a dry shampoo for the hair or for a five-minute morning rub, is a well-recognized fact. A towel, especially prepared for the latter use, however, gives a sense of well being that little else can equal. To prepare it, dissolve one cup of either table or sea salt (preferably sea salt) in a quart of hot water. When cool immerse a large Turkish towel, allowing it to remain for fifteen or twenty minutes or until the salt is all absorbed. Hang it up and let it drip dry, without wringing. On arising in the morning rub the body vigorously with the dry salted towel. It will give a wonderfully stimulated, invigorated feeling.

MEALS ON THE HOUR.

The larger the family the more rigid should be the hours for meals. And with this rather rigid schedule should go the understanding that meals will be begun at approximately the same time each day, whether all the family have arrived or not.

Children soon acquire more prompt habits of homecoming if they know that the meal will be begun if they are not at home on time. If they think of it as a movable feast they tarry by the way, feeling confident that an indulgent mother and patient cook are waiting for them at home.

HERE'S A NEW BOOK MARK.

If you are tired of the reculation bookmark try this: Take a piece of ribbon, in any desired shade, with a small shell or silver paper knife tied at one end and a large Chinese head and ornament strung at the other. The ribbon may be a single piece holding the paper knife and bead by a ribbon flower that is sewn on to the end of the ribbon, after it has been drawn through the knife and bead. Or the ribbon may be doubled.

FANCY BASKETS.

Four-cornered waste baskets, made of ribbon in the same colors as the interior decoration of the bedroom, are easily made. The baskets are lined in a contrasting color and ribbons placed in vertical or horizontal bands around the basket and bound at the top and edges with gold ribbon or metal galon. Front of basket can be trimmed with a spray of ribbon flowers.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

White and pastel colored moires are being worn.

The craze for huge bows as millinery trimming, reported in Paris, is being reflected here.

Marabout, white fox and clipped ostrich trimmings are beginning to appear on evening gowns.

White beads on color make an unusual combination. A number of the dresses are headed in pearls instead of crystal.

Off-the-shoulder necks, trimmed with fur are gaining in favor.

Printed cloth of gold is among the smart new materials that is being featured. The print is large and in shades of green and red.

Pleated silver gowns are the newest note.

Small hats in white faille embroidered in a combination of silver and gold threads are worn for dancing.

Odd little powder bokes made in the shapes of lockets are hung at the end of a black silk cord which is worn around the neck.

Berthas continue to hold first place in neckline trimmings and are worn with black velvet gowns.

Tiny steel beads in rather formal patterns trim dinner dresses of black satin-finished crepe.

A stunning sport scarf very wide and long is of camel-color wool with stripes of green, red, blue and yellow grouped together and placed at intervals along its length. There is a tam to match.

A short box coat of moleskin is worn over a frock of mole-colored velvet trimmed with bands of fur. A hat of velvet has a cuff brim of moleskin.

PANELS FOR SPRING.

The side panel, usually hung on the left side, is a feature quite consistently emphasized in the spring dress. Heavy beading, braiding and even self-stitching is used to trim these panels that are softly folded and resemble wide sashes.

APRON DRAPES FEATURED.

The apron drape used either in the front or the back of the afternoon frock is becoming a permanent feature in the spring wardrobe. Almost every collection seen lately develops this type of draping in some fashion. In some soft crepe frocks the drape is plaited or softly fulled across the belt or in others it hangs perfectly plain. The drape often hangs below the hem of the underskirt, and when used in the back of the frock it is usually quite a good deal longer than the underskirt.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Ammonia should be used to soften the water in which woollens and knitted garments are washed. Only a little is needed.

Add a handful of salt to the water in which pocket handkerchiefs are soaked. It makes the washing easier.

If you will tack a strip of heavy asbestos across the end of your ironing board you will find it is more convenient than the ordinary iron stand.

Woollens that have shrunk in the wash can be restored to their original size and fluffiness if they are finished off in clean soapsuds instead of clean water. Do not rub woollens, but squeeze them in your hands.

Crepe de chine should be washed in lather of soap jelly and hot water. As the fabric is too delicate to stand hard rubbing, the garments should be squeezed and well kneaded, only especially dirty spots being rubbed. Rinse in three lots of warm water, and add a tablespoonful of vinegar to the last rinsing water; if the garments are white, add a little blue also. Put them into a towel and squeeze dry or mangle. Roll up and wrap in dry towel until ready for ironing, but do not leave them too long. Iron with a fairly hot iron over a cover of muslin until nearly dry. Finish without the muslin. Hang up to air.

A SPOTTED WINDOW

How annoying it is when the rain splashes and spots a recently cleaned window. But if a little paraffin is used as follows it will remedy the trouble. Put a little paraffin on a duster and well rub the window outside and in. Leave it for a little while and then give a final polish with a soft duster or a leather.

USE OF THE VALANCE

The use of the valance not only shortens and widens the effect of window space, but it is usually desirable because it conceals the curtain rods, softens the overhead light and gives to the room as well as the window, a more pleasing proportion. A valance should always be trimmed across the bottom. In depth the valance is approximately one-sixth the height of the curtain length. It should be hung at the top of the outside casing, if it belongs to the outer set of curtains, and always over the curtains for the entire space, for curtains should look as if they could be drawn, whether or not they ever are. There is only one reason for using the fixed valance hung between the curtains, and that is to lengthen the lines of a very broad squat window.

FOR THE HANGERS.

It is very annoying to go to your clothes closet and find several frocks and fine blouses have slipped from the hangers. Wind tightly a wide elastic band around each end of the hanger and you will find the clothes will not slip off.

FOR THE WORK BOX

Pin and needle cases are quickly made and tucked into sewing baskets. Cut green felt into the shape of a holly leaf. Cut two or three pieces of white flannel the same length, but a trifle smaller. With black silk stitch the center vein of the top leaf. Overcase the edges of the leaves so they do not fray. Bind the leaves together at the bottom with silk or ribbon. Make a red silk ball filled with emery. Join in to the lower end of the case.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Three societies for the liberation of women have been founded in Egypt.

Denmark has established homes for Danish women students in France and in England.

Mrs. Angelette Walters, 90 years old, living near Steubenville, O., has never seen a street car nor ridden upon a railroad train.

Women in Spain have had the right to attend the universities since early in the 13th century, but few availed themselves of the privilege until lately.

The present year marks the 75th anniversary of the death of Sarah Flower Adams, the English poet, famous as the author of "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

PLUMES IN SAFETY.

If you will put your ostrich plumes in a glass jar and seal tightly, they will be safe from moths.

EVERLASTING FLOWERS.

Everlasting flowers are very practical for the hostess. For a centerpiece they can be used over and over, for they do not wilt.

Victorian bouquets of pink, lavender and yellow everlasting flowers with paper lace frills are favors that decorate the table.

RECIPES.

American Cheese Sandwiches: Cut crusts from thin, stale pieces of white bread and place between each two slices thinly-sliced mild American cheese, sprinkling the cheese with salt and cayenne to suit liking. Saute these sandwiches in a frying pan in butter until delicately browned on both sides. This melts the cheese slightly and makes a delicious sandwich.

Devil's Food Cake: Devil's food cake is delicious to serve with mousse. To make this cake cream 1-2 cup butter and add gradually 1 cup of sugar. Beat the yolks of 4 eggs until thick and add to them another cup of sugar. Now combine these two separate mixtures in a medium size mixing bowl and add to the bowl alternately 1 cup of sweet milk and 2 2-3 cups of flour which has been sifted with 5 teaspoons of baking powder and 1-4 teaspoon of salt. Add the whites of 4 eggs beaten stiff, 4 squares of unsweetened chocolate melted, and 2-4 teaspoon of vanilla. Turn into an angel cake pan and bake 50 minutes in a moderate oven.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Deductions From Gross Income for Personal Expenses

Inquiries received by the bureau of internal revenue indicate a mistaken impression in the minds of many taxpayers concerning deductions from gross income for personal expenses. Deductions for living or family expenses, such as amounts expended for food, clothing, education of children, rent for a dwelling, hire of domestic servants and similar items for the upkeep of a home are expressly disallowed by the revenue act.

A storekeeper may not clothe himself and family with goods taken from the store and deduct the cost of the clothing as a business expense. A restaurant keeper or hotel proprietor should make an allowance for meals for himself and family.

The same rule applies to a physician, who conducts a sanitorium. A shopkeeper who dwells over his place of business should deduct as a business expense the rental only of the portion of the building used for business. A farmer may deduct as business expenses wages paid a farm hand but not those of a domestic employed in his household.

A physician who maintains an office in a rented home may deduct the proportion of such rent properly chargeable to the portion used for professional purposes. If, however, he maintains an office elsewhere and incidentally receives patients at his home, he is not entitled to deduct any part of the rent for his residence as a business expense. If a physician owns the home in which he has his office no deduction for rent is allowed.

The same general rulings in regard to deductions for home and office expenses apply to other professional men.

Wives of Famous Men

Esther Johnson, Wife of Dean Swift.

Esther Johnson, the "Stella" of Dean Johnathan Swift's three fair-famed loves, is accepted by most historians as having been the secret wife of the eccentric author of "Gulliver's Travels." Although their marriage was never publicly announced, the ceremony was performed, it is said, one stormy midnight in a little house at the bottom of the deanery garden. Swift refused to let Stella use his name and they never lived together after the marriage. Yet Stella it was whom the erratic divine really loved. All the events of his life after he knew her tend to show this.

Swift met Stella when she was only eight years old, and he acted as her tutor, counsellor and friend, until as she grew to be a beautiful and charming, as well as intellectual young woman, he came to regard her with a deep affection. He adored her beauty, declaring that every feature of her face was perfect. While their love affair was at its height, Swift met Vanessa, the young girl who fell so desperately in love with him that his indifference caused her death.

The dean visited Vanessa frequently, but biographers assure us, never gave her the least reason to believe he loved her. She pursued him with the relentlessness of unrequited love and ultimately, stung to a frenzy at his paternal attitude, she wrote to Stella, asking whether she was his wife. Stella replied that she was and forwarded Vanessa's letter to Swift. He was enraged at her for writing, and stopped seeing her. Soon after she died, heartbroken.

He remained faithful, always, to Stella, rewarding her intense devotion with deep affection. After her death he described her as "the truest, most virtuous and valuable friend that I, or perhaps any other person, was ever blessed with." And in spite of his cynical outlook on life, his original tenderness for Stella lived as long as he did. After his own death, when his desk was opened, a lock of Stella's hair was found wrapped in paper and carefully put away. A brief and characteristic sentence was written on the paper.

"Only a woman's hair," wrote Swift, and nobody will ever know exactly what shade of meaning was put into these half cynical, half pathetic words.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Urges Slowing Down of Trains

Mr. Editor: We all have to shiver again. Another grade crossing accident in Greeneville is the cause of our shivering. This time the near tragedy is at Second street. A few weeks ago the near tragedy was at South Golden street. Shortly before that the actual tragedy was at Eighth street, while not long before that two men were mangled to death at Erin street. The "close shaves" in the last few years in this section are something like the miscellany of the auction bill—"too numerous to mention."

If the accidents that have become disagreeable facts were not to be repeated—could not be repeated—we all could life a thanksgiving and try to forget them. The trouble is the very next person who crosses the New Haven tracks in this danger-strip may contribute to a hurting or to his death. From the municipal lighting plant to the Davis-Warner Arms company's plant there are 10 or 11 grade crossings. Each work day there are possibly 12,000 individual crossings, back and forth, to the several factories located between the New Haven tracks and the river. If the mills are to operate they must have operatives; the operatives must cross the tracks—either in full danger or in comparative safety. The curves in the tracks together with many buildings along the line contribute to the dangers of the people using the crossings. These factors of danger cannot be readily disposed of. But there is another important factor of danger that may be quickly gotten rid of; and that is the speed at which the railroad company runs its trains over this stretch of tracks, that has 10 crossings in about one mile of distance. Sometimes the trains run at thirty miles an hour. These are the trains that usually do the smashing of automobiles, the killing of men. They come rushing around a curve, or from between buildings, just about fast enough to frighten a driver into a panic. If he drives an automobile, his panic will as likely let him stall his machine, as it will let him "step on it" and escape "by the skin of his teeth." If he drives a horse, the horse may turn alongside the track and both horse and driver be snuffed out. If the railroad company would voluntarily lower the speed of its trains to 5 miles an hour over this crooked track with so many blind crossings, everyone passing over the tracks about train time would have six chances for safety and continued life where now he has one—or none at all.

In your editorial of last Thursday about this last accident, Mr. Editor, you very well say: "The need exists. Why wait longer?"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Head of the Swedish Red Cross, Miss Elsa Brandstrom, who has just been recommended for the Nobel peace prize for the year, was the Florence Nightingale of the late war to German and Austrian prisoners in Siberia. Miss Brandstrom is the daughter of the late Gen. Edward Brandstrom, who was for many years Swedish minister to Russia. When the war began she left her home in Stockholm and led a small Red Cross expedition to Siberia, where she cared for prisoners and when they were freed helped them to get home. Braving the intense cold and many privations, she saved thousands of lives and alleviated the sufferings of thousands more of the war prisoners. She collected a great fund for war crippies, and with it bought a village in southern Germany for the veterans. She will be the second woman to get the Nobel peace pride, the Baroness Von Suttner of Vienna having received it in 1895 having received it in 1895. It is worth approximately $40,000.

Stories That Recall Others

Put and Take

Eleanor, at three, was very fond of her chewing gum, yet promptly obeyed when one day her mother told her to put it in the coal scuttle, before dinner was ready. However, she was soon chewing again, so mother exclaimed: "Why, Eleanor, I though: your gum was in the coal scuttle!" And baby sweetly lisped, "It wath, but now 1ith over here where me is!"

Her Revised Grammar

"Has," said the teacher, " is the present tense, 'had' is past tense. For instance, if I say 'John has an apple' what tense is that? "

"Past tense!" shouted the class.

"And," continued the teacher, "if I say, 'Mary will have a doll,' what tense is that?"

Then the teacher noticed that little May was not paying attention to the lesson.

"Now, May," she said, "what tense would you be using if you said, 'My father has money?' "

"That would be pretense," said May soberly.

THE AFTER EFFECTS OF COLDS AND INFLUENZA

There is real danger in the after effects of colds and influenza because these attacks leave their victims with a cough or in a weakened condition, wide open to the attacks of other illness.

FIRE DISCLOSED TWO BIG STILLS OPERATING

Two 50 gallon stills in operation were disclosed in a fire Friday evening in an attic room at the home of Joseph Peretta, Belden street, New London. Before the firemen arrived Officer Philipino entered the house and, going directly to the attic room where the blaze was, noted the two 50 gallon liquor stills in use and 12 five gallon cans of liquor about the room. Near by was also a large condenser.

As soon as the fire had been extinguished the police took possession of the premises and confiscated the contraband equipment. The officers found that Peretta had been using medicated alcohol and redistilling it, extracting the poisonous products from the alcohol.

Later Guiseppe Viola, 675 Bank street, an alleged barber, who has previously been before the federal court on the charge of handling liquor, was arrested as the master mind in operating the stills. The police allege that Peretta is merely the accomplice of Viola. Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin referred in court Saturday to Viola as the "Who's Who among the New London bootleggers." Viola is widely known by the police and public as "the count," due to the fact that he always appears in public carrying a cane.

Made Wreck of House

Joseph Florence, 45, made a wreck of the kitchen at his home on the East Side Saturday night, bringing a hurry call for the police. Officers John Carroll and P. Murphy, who were sent to the Florence home, found the place looking as if a cyclone had swept through it. The stove, table, chairs and gas stove were smashed, holes were punched in the walls and the banisters torn loose from the stairway. Florence was arrested on a breach of the peace charge brought by his wife.

PROTESTS $985,000 ON MOHICAN HOTEL PROPERTY

The proposed assessment of $985,000 on the Mohican hotel in New London is raising a protest from its owner, Frank A. Munsey of New York.

Before the reassessment on property values in New London, the hotel had been in the grand list at $400,000. This was raised to $985,000, according to the assessment rule that was followed by an appraisal company, but Assessor F. C. Burrows put the property in the new list at $600,000. Now it is understood that the board of relief has put the figure back at $985,000, which Mr. Munsey protests.

SCOUTS GIVE SONGS AND CHEERS AT CAMP TIPPECAN REUNION

Norwich Boy Scouts held their Camp Tippecan reunion Saturday night, beginning with a banquet at The Terminal at 7 o'clock, where they made the air resound with their camp yells and cheers, and closing with a program held at the scout headquarters in the Shannon building.

Seated with the Scouts were several members of the camp council, Harry E. Prentice, A. L. Peale, George L. Ingalls, George H. Young, Scout Executive F. A. Benton and several scoutmasters. Covers were laid for twenty-five and the following menu was served:

Puree of Pea Soup
or Roast Beef
Mashed Potatoes Butter Beets
French Pastry
Coffee.

Upon adjournment to scout headquarters there was a program that included music, short talks, reading of The Beech Nut, an original story, and the outlining of plans for the camp next season at Beech pond, Voluntown. All present expressed their determination to be in camp in the coming season and make it better and larger than ever before.

The scouts were reminded of the anniversary of the 13th birthday of scouting which is to be celebrated this (Monday) evening at 7.30 at the Community house with a free public "stunt night," in which each troop will put on a stunt, with music and entertainment, at which they hope to see all their friends present.

In the scout campaign for $5,000 for their annual Norwich budget, 4,000 letters have been mailed and the returns are beginning to come in, but not as fast as the committee wishes they were. The committee emphasizes a request that returns will be made promptly so that the committee may know what the responses have been before the intensive campaign starts on the 15th.

The intensive campaign is to be preceded by a public meeting Wednesday night at the chamber of commerce rooms when R. M. Berry of Boston, national scout executive, will be the speaker.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS SHOULD HAVE CERTIFICATES

That the state requirements for school superintendents should be raised through the issuance of certificates, as are at present required of teachers, was the sentiment expressed at a hearing before the legislative committee on education last week at the capitol. H. E. Gibbs, superintendent of schools in Meriden, advocated passage of the bill which extends the requirements now in force in smaller towns. Under the proposed law, the provisions would include superintendents of larger communities. Five years' training as a teacher would be required.

The bill also empowers the superintendent to nominate an assistant who would be elected by the board of education.

Another bill, senate bill, No. 303, which was heard, would permit school superintendents in towns having less than thirty teachers to hold only that position. At present it was pointed out, there are superintendents holding office in a number of towns and drawing salaries from each. The law would not prevent smaller towns from combining for purpose of supervision, if conditions warranted.

Dr. A. B. Meredith, commissioner of education, spoke in behalf of senate bill, No. 309, which makes possible the acceptance of federal grants under the Smith-Hughes act. The legislature must recognize the grant every two years. It is in force at present, as it was accepted at the last session. An appropriation of $72,000 for the approaching year and $91,000 for the following twelve month period would be required under the law to equal the money received from the government. The money is used for payment of salaries.

Under senate bill No. 427, which was heard, the state board of education would be empowered to supervise the education of children in state institutions. This was urged by Commissioner Meredith, at the request of officials of a number of these places.

No objection was voiced to house bill No. 385, which authorized the state to furnish text books to high school pupils in towns where text books are supplied to pupils of public schools at present.

AUTOMOBILE AND TROLLEY COLLIDE AT CORNER

There was an automobile accident at the corner of Yantic and Sachem streets Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, when the 12.45 trolley from Franklin square and the automobile driven by John Arbanski of R. F. D. No. 6 came together. The automobile sustained a bent front axle, steering gear, and mudguard, while the bumper of the trolley was bent slightly. Mr. Arbanski was shaken up but not injured.

The motorman had received a bell to stop at the corner and was slowing down when the automobile came out and turned into the path of the car. This factor probably prevented a more serious collision.

HURLEY GETTING AFTER COAL GOUGING PRACTICES

Acting under authority contained in the fuel emergency control law passed Friday by the legislature, Supt. Hurley of the state police department has taken steps to bring an end to the practice of a number of retail grocery stores selling 20 pound bags of coal at a figure which made $20 a ton the price which poor families in Hartford and other cities have had to pay for coal.

"There is no justification for such a price," Supt. Hurley said.

"Evidence has been submitted to me that some of the stores in and around Hartford have charged as high as 28 and 30 cents a bag for this coal, making it cost needy families that cannot afford to buy coal in ton lots, $28 and $30 a ton.

"This is a very disturbing condition, and it is a matter that this department is going to look into immediately."

James M. H. Campbell, who has been Hartford fuel administrator of under the voluntary administration which ceased with the passage of the new law, announced Saturday that he had relinquished the duties of the office as he regarded his services as no longer necessary. It is expected that Joseph Sumner will be appointed by Fire Chief Robert H. Ramsden, who is fire marshal.

As far as general conditions throughout the state are concerned Superintendent Hurley said that reports gathered from a number of local administrators indicate that conditions have improved, but that there is much work to be done yet. The delay of coal cars en route has improved inasmuch coal is now felt that conditions will continue to improve from now on.

Superintendent Hurley suggested that it might be advisable, if hospitalized upon to grind flowing harness to choice streams in this part of the state. His happiness was centered in his home and he was an ideal father, husband and brother, and a true citizen ready to defend his country.

In the death of Mr. Brown and his daughter, Mrs. Jewett in so short a time, those who are left behind to mourn the loss of a father and brother have the sympathy of their many friends.

a long illness, during which he was devotedly cared for by relatives.

He was born in Uncasville in 1838 and spent his boyhood days there. Later he moved to Fitchville, then to Norwich and Baltic where he engaged in farming with success. For the past six years he had resided with his daughter, Mrs. Marshall Jewett, at 58 Church street, whose death occurred last Wednesday and whose funeral was held the day before her father died.

When a young man he enlisted in the Union army and served with credit during the Civil war, receiving an honorable discharge at expiration of service. He was a member of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., of this city.

Early in life he was united in marriage to Harriet Jane Smith, who passed away in 1914. Mr. Brown is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Burdette Kelley of Worcester.

Mr. Brown also leaves two brothers Eugene Brown of Providence, and Henry Brown of Hartford, and four sisters, Mrs. Mary Geer and Mrs. Albert Hamlin of Montville, Mrs. Susan Lewis of Norwich and Mrs. Emma Mitchell of Central Village. There are also several nephews and nieces.

Mr. Brown came from sturdy New England ancestry and like his forefathers looked to the soil to gain a living. He was well versed in public matters but never entered politics. His favorite pastime was hunting and fishing and his tenderness for fishing was well known, as he was often called upon to grind flowing harness to choice streams in this part of the state. His happiness was centered in his home and he was an ideal father, husband and brother, and a true citizen ready to defend his country.

In the death of Mr. Brown and his daughter, Mrs. Jewett in so short a time, those who are left behind to mourn the loss of a father and brother have the sympathy of their many friends.

LONGEST N. E. CONCRETE HIGHWAY IN THIS STATE

By the recent completion of the Hartford-New London turnpike, Connecticut has the longest concrete paved highway in New England. It also shortens by 20 miles the distance between those cities over the quickest route formerly available. The original turnpike was built in 1880 and it is interesting to note that the wages paid were 66 cents for ten hours, and for each team equal to two yoke of middling oxen with a cart to plow, 66 cents for ten hours in the spring and summer, but at other seasons of the year 34 cents.

A few years ago the Connecticut highway department entered into an agreement with the federal government to rebuild the turnpike. The new road shortened the time of travel between Hartford and New London, reduced all grades to a maximum of 10 per cent. and provided an even all weather surface of concrete. On the old dirt and gravel road many grades had an ascent of 16 per cent.

The highway passes through some of the most picturesque and historic localities in Connecticut. From Hartford the route leads through the pleasant town of Glastonbury and just beyond is Crow's Nest, from which on a clear day one can see Mount Tom and Mount Holyoke in Massachusetts and Mount Monadnock in New Hampshire, 100 miles away. Nearer at hand, Hartford, Wethersfield and the winding Connecticut river may be seen. Beyond this point the road winds it way through what is known as Dark Hollow, where deep cuts and high fills indicate the work required to widen and straighten the highway. Then the original road was built in 1800, it was considered an engineering feat of considerable magnitude to break a path wide enough for a carriage to travel in safety. Tarramugus lake, named after one of the chiefs of the Mohegan Indians, is passed just before reaching Marlborough Four Corners.

The Tavern, now the summer home of Miss Mary Hall, is located at Marlborough Four Corners. Miss Hall is a prominent attorney of Hartford. The tavern is more than 200 years old. Presidents George Washington and Andrew Jackson dined there on more than one occasion. On the third floor is the old guardroom, where prisoners were frequently kept. Jack Hale, the present superintendent of the grounds was employed at the Tavern during the Civil war.

Just beyond the top of the next hill is the Congregational church, built in 1842 by Augustus Truesdale. After a succession of hills and dales, Fawn Brook is passed and the top of Clark's Hill is reached over a nine per cent. grade. Ryan villa is at the left. This farm of 1,000 acres was purchased in 1700 from the Mohicans

Endowments now amount to $100,000 besides building and equipment. In 1847 Nathaniel Haywood, jointly with Goodyear, invented, vulcanized rubber and founded an industry which expanded from $100,000 to an output of $2,000,000.

The new highway, says the Concrete Highway Magazine, required the removal of 118,074 cubic yards of earth, 15,656 cubic yards of rock and the placing of 71,300 cubic yards of Portland cement concrete for the road surface.

This improvement has placed the Hartford-New London turnpike among the most important highways in Connecticut as it dovetails with the main traveled highways of Connecticut and Rhode Island.

CAN YOUR MONEY MAKE MORE MONEY?

Therefore there is not one cent of its capital tied up in factories, material, machinery or equipment of any kind.

It has nothing that wears out, nothing that has to be replaced. Not a dollar of the corporation's money goes out of its treasury except safe-guarded by gilt-edge security. This means SAFETY, which is really SAFE.

This may serve as an introduction to the fact that the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation, with its general offices at Putnam, Conn., is engaged in delivering a financing service, particularly for the automobile industry.

Loans made by this company on new automobiles are safe, first, because it receives, as security, the ownership of the vehicle and the paid for insurance policy; second, because notes signed by the borrower (whose character and local standing have been carefully investigated and approved before the loan is made) are held by us; third, because the endorsement on the notes is that of the automobile dealer selling the car, or some other responsible person; fourth, because our capital is never tied up in long-time loans or investments, and the loans are distributed over a wide area and in small amounts.

The repaid growth of the business of the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation since it was incorporated in September, 1921, has been amazing. Its annual report issued last week shows that it now has assets of $140,170.24 and liabilities of only $48,161.34.

That its sphere of action may be increased to meet the demands upon it for financing, stock of the corporation is now offered to the public. Stockholders of record during 1922 received dividends at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum.

At incorporation, the dividend rate on the preferred stock was fixed at 7 per cent. per annum, but the success of the corporation has made it possible to pay much more than that during 1922.

With increased capital the corporation will be able to greatly increase its earnings during 1923. BUYERS OF THIS STOCK CAN MAKE THEIR MONEY EARN MORE MONEY. EIGHTY PER CENT. of the new automobiles sold in this country are now sold on time—and it is supplying capital to these buyers that our profits are earned.

This advertisement invites you to become one of the owners of this corporation, organized and conducted by well known and responsible citizens of Eastern Connecticut. In the past five years many millions of dollars have been invested in corporations formed for the individual purpose of loaning money to the purchasers of automobiles. The success of those enterprises has been of such a marked character and the demand for this service has been proved so great that THE NEED FOR GREATER FACILITIES TO HANDLE THIS CLASS OF BUSINESS HAS BECOME ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY. You will be welcomed as a stockholder in line to share in the immense profits to be earned in this line of financing. Communicate with our general office for further detail or explanation of this remarkable investment opportunity.

PLAN

In illustration: Mr. Jones wishes to purchase a car—the price of which is..... $1500.00
The L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation's charges for negotiating loan, interest and insurance amounts to..... $ 142.00

Making total time price..... $1642.00
Mr. Jones pays (22 1-2 per cent. or 1-3 ... 547.34

which sum the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation loans him for 10 months.

Mr. Jones gives the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation as collateral a Conditional Bill of Sale on the Automobile and 10 monthly notes of $109.46 each—these notes are and must be endorsed by the dealer from whom automobile is purchased or some other satisfactory endorser. Since the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation charges must be paid in advance we actually loan Mr. Jones the difference between $1094.66 and $142 which is $952.66.

Now the Mr. Jones have held each month ... $109.46 which ... loaned ... again to ... another Purchaser ... making an endless chain—each link being an independent—safe—and profitable transaction.

It is now clearly shown that we have earned from the loan made to Mr. Jones—a total profit of $142.00 less the insurance—but—most important of all is that the principal has been safeguarded at all times.

1st. By holding a Conditional Bill of Sale which gives us the right to take said ... under any circumstances in case of default or departure from the Condition of Bill of Sale.
2nd. By holding borrower's note for entire amount.
3rd. By having borrower's note endorsed by the Automobile Dealer or a financially responsible person.
4th. Insuring Automobile in our favor.

Thus was shown an example of the profits earned on one transaction—but—it shows only the least possible earnings—for—as soon as the monthly notes are paid by the borrower the money is again loaned out—the interest thus compounding.

Notes received are negotiable and as such may be and are discounted at banks at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum giving us additional working capital the benefits of which go to the stockholders.

Suppose we took the 10 notes that were given to us by Mr. Jones to the bank and discounted them and loaned the proceeds then on the notes obtained from the next transaction and discounted them and so on all through the year. We are conservative when we say that our capital can be loaned many times a year.

THEY CALLED HIM AN "OLD PILL"

THAT was years ago when he packed a terrible grouch, a mighty irritable stomach and a liver that refused to do the things that all good lives should. No wonder his friends called him an "old pill" and stayed away.

But that was years ago—long before he discovered Beecham's Pills and learned that two at bedtime can bring sunshine into a man's life. Today, he's an optimist, a hero to his wife, and a staunch believer in Beecham's Pills.

The cheer that Beecham's Pills bring into a man's disposition, is the incomparable cheer of sound digestion, active liver, and the regular habits that make good health.

It was a fast and furious overtime session and the Ravstaters added four more points, while the best Putnam could do was two, giving the game to the visitors by a score of 29 to 27. It was one of the best games of the season and was a good game to win and a hard game to lose. Following the game there was dancing in the auditorium and refreshments were served. Last year Putnam was defeated at Norwood and was royally entertained after the game. This year it was Putnam's intention to reciprocate, which they did all but winning the game.

Putnam citizens awoke again Saturday morning to find a heavy fall of snow being added to the old fashioned winter of '23. To date it has cost the city $800 to remove ice and snow from the business section of the city. In doing this tip carts have been used and work has been furnished a large number of men. In comparison to what it has cost some of the other cities of the state Putnam's bill for snow removal is not considered large.

JEWETT CITY

Old Cluey Watson reported Sunday afternoon that he was ... to his trap line again, which makes ... times this winter. Mount Misery where Cluey lives, can be fairly ... as most ... town ... of ... Connecticut, its name is easily found just below, and its rugged top can be plainly seen from Voluntown and Glasco. When he heard of the animal's last depredation Saturday's Bulletin that he picked up the deer track on the road and followed it to the light snow, just below Broad Brook hill, he went over to see. Cluey pointed out that a dog doesn't follow a trail clearing from four to six feet at a bound as the animal had done. Cluey came from Oldtown, Maine, and all his early life trapped and hunted in northern Aroostook county, the very home of the Canadian lynx—Loupcervia, or Bob-Cat, he calls them—and says "That's the way they travel when the snow gets deep." He tells a story of his experience with a lynx, in a logging camp on Dead Diamond stream in Somerset county.

"We had a jolly rough crew of nearly thirty, he said. The camp was a log shanty, thirty feet square, with a log porch in front, which was used in part as a store room for the pork and flour. Through the porch we all had to pass out and into the camp. It had a rough slab door hung with leather hinges, as was all so the camp door. The porch was supposed to keep the camp warmer than it would otherwise have been. One night, three or four of us had been out 'till eight or nine o'clock, looking to some marten traps we had set on a neighboring mountain. As we came up to the porch, I noticed the door was ajar. This was nothing unusual, however. We stepped in. The inside camp door was shut, all was dark on the porch. As we came stamping in to go through we heard a great scratching and scrambling over the barrels. Thought first it was the cook out there for something, and sang out to him.

"At that, somebody opened the side door; when a big lynx sprang down from the barrels and dove out to the camp to get out of the cold. You can guess what an uproar that made inside; twenty men still up there with a bob-cat. They had only tallow candle burning, somebody upset that, first thing 'Twas ... everybody shouting and kicking and striking; the cat wailing and running about. They had a great stove red hot; for it was a sharp ... The creature got on to that, making a horrible stench of burnt hair. I never heard such a noise. Several of the men got scratched and more than a dozen got whacks from each other, meant for the lynx. At last the cook gave it a lick with his axe, which knocked it over. We kept the skin hung up in the porch all the rest of the winter, and had many a laugh over it."

Stanley Bakanowski, 41, died at his home on the Plainfield road Saturday evening. He is survived by a wife and four children. Mr. Bakanowski had recently bought land from the William Fogarty farm, and built a new house and barn.

There has been no suffering in Jewett City due to coal shortage. All sorts of commendable things are to be said in reference to the two local dealers. They have little if any coal at present. The small shipments that have been received from time to time have been apportioned with the greatest consideration. It is doubtful if any local bins contain a hoarded surplus.

The banks in town will be closed today. The post office and stores will do business as usual.

Deputy Sheriff John T. Dolan has received an interesting letter from Judge H. H. Burnham, dated at Baltimore, Md., where he is spending the winter with his oldest son, Alfred H. Burnham.

The judge writes pleasing intelligence about himself when he tells that he is feeling quite all right again, and expects to be in fine shape to come back home again, about the time the blue birds come. Mr. Burnham was ill when he left Jewett City last year, and he can be assured of a cordial welcome when he comes back again. It is probable that Judge John T. Barry, who assumes control of the Griswold town court bench in July, will reappoint Judge Burnham to his position as prosecuting attorney.

Mr. Burnham is much interested in the visit of his oldest granddaughter to New Orleans, where she is attending the famous Mardi Gras festival. When the judge comes home, the Jewett City friends will hear all about the gorgeous pageants and masks of the Mystic Crews of Momus Comus and Proteus.

Mrs. A. M. Clarke, the superintendent of the primary department of the Baptist Sunday school, entertained the members of the class at her home Saturday afternoon. There were twenty-five present to enjoy games and story telling. Refreshments of valentine cookies, animal cake, ice cream, candies, nuts and alphabets candies and apples were served and valentines for favors. The dining room was decorated in valentine effects.

Bennie Krueger's Orchestra

Hear it. Two pianos, saxaphones, sparkling brasses—worth walking a mile to hear. "The Thief," another big hit, on the other side. And like all Brunswick Records, a true reproduction, not a note lost or slurred.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

SCARE STUFF.

Scare stuff. Ever did you play
Scare yourself 'bout ever' way
Ya know believe an' see
How bad scared yourself can be!

Under the bed when I'm through
Not I don't know what to do
Sorta lay low, screamed instead
If the paper boy came to bed.

When I read 'Red Riding Hood
'Bout th' Big Bears in Th' Wood.
It's in daylight—then I say:
Who's a 'fraid cat anyway?

Sometimes [illegible] daylight yet—
I tell them Mama to get
All the goblins out an' see
[illegible] them or me"

[illegible] me, read an' say:
"Who's afraid these things anyway?
[illegible] made
Big enough to make me 'afraid!'"

[illegible] look [illegible] face,
Then I run, on off [illegible] place!
Bears an' goblins, imps an' elfs,
They're all scared o' me theirselfs!

Course it's different when
They come 'round again,
You won't hear my muvver say:
"Some one's scared this child today!"

I ain't scared—that is, you see—
Like some other childs would be;
Still, I'll tell you it's a fright
[illegible] use them are at night.

NIGHT LIGHTS.

Night light, shine bright through the gloom,
Guard the children in this room.
When I kiss them each goodnight,
Watch them for me, little light.
Throw no shadow on the wall,
Let your light enfold them all.
Shine above them while they sleep.
Rosy babies, slumbering deep.

Night light, tonight in the skies,
Over my house like friendly-wise
Through the window, where they are Shine upon them, evening star
That no dancer enter here,
Guarding spirit, hover near.
Night lights, tended all by Thee,
Help us shining faithfully!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

We are learning to keep well, says one of the Wide-Awakes in his letter to Uncle Jed this week. That is one thing every boy and girl should learn—how to keep well. And after they learn how to keep their health [illegible] how the rules that will [illegible] and diseases [illegible] well as [illegible] arithmetic, [illegible] grammar. Good health is the foundation upon which success in later life is built. No body likes to [illegible] boys and girls miss much of the joy of living.

It is easy for boys and girls to keep well if they only follow a few simple rules. All of you have at some time or other heard the saying, "Early to bed and early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise." That is one rule which boys and girls should observe.

Another thing to remember is that pure, fresh air is a great aid to good health. People who live in close, stuffy and poorly ventilated houses are very liable to be ill. Never breathe foul air for foul air breeds sickness. Get out in the open as much as you can, and fill your lungs with pure, fresh air.

[illegible] another aid to [illegible] The best kind of out door exercise is walks, hikes, sliding, skating and games. A fourth important rule to follow is that of cleanliness. Keep your face and hands clean and brush your teeth at least once a day.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

Belongs to School Bank Club.

Dear Uncle Jed: I wonder how many of the Wide-Awakes belong to any bank club? I do. I joined last week and put in twelve cents in the bank. Every Friday is banking day in my school. On Saturday my teacher takes the money to Norwich to the bank.

I am in the third grade. I hope all the Wide-Awakes will join the club and save some of their money.

Birds Are Our Friends

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about a few things I have seen this winter here in Occum. The birds and wild animals that you very seldom see, only in the woods, are now coming around the village here looking for something to eat, there being so much snow on the ground. Last Saturday afternoon a deer came through our lot looking for something to eat and the birds I never saw before are now coming near the house.

I am throwing them pieces of bread and a little grain and they eat it all up and go away, but come back looking for more. I think it is too bad the poor little birds and wild animals are having a hard time this winter finding food and hope all the Wide Awake circle who read my letter will try and help to feed the birds until the snow leaves the ground. The birds are our friends and we ought to help them. I want to thank you again Uncle Jed for my book, Do and Dare.

Good Winter for Skiing

Dear Uncle Jed: This is a very good winter for skiing. I had a pair given me by my father. There are some lots near my house, where my friends, and I go after school and spend the afternoon. It is a great deal of fun but you have to look out that the points do not come together, because if they do you will fall down. Saturday, I was out a long time skiing and coasting.

It is almost time for examinations in school. I am in the fourth grade now. My teacher is Miss Woodworth and she is very nice to me.

Our Doll House

Dear Uncle Jed: In school we have built a doll house. It has four rooms and we have electric lights. When we brought our doll house down the rats had eaten all the paper off the walls. The girls have to paper it over again.

We have a garage and two autos.

Cat Went to Sleep on Hat

Dear Uncle Jed: We have an old cat 11 years old. One day when my mother came in the house, she put her hat on the bed in a hurry. By and by our cat came in and thought the hat would be a nice bed (it was soft) so he lay down on it and squashed the top so that only the brim showed. He did many other funny things, too.

A Summer Picnic

Dear Uncle Jed: One day last summer a few of my friends and I planned to have a picnic at my brother's camp at Beechnut Cove, three miles from where I live. We all waited patiently for Saturday to come and all hoped it would be a very good day. Saturday came at last and [illegible] went by [illegible] mother of one of the girls [illegible] we reached the camp we [illegible] the door and went in. The Lost Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would tell you about our lost cat. His name is Billie. He is gray with dark stripes. When he was home last he would run under the stove or the cupboard. When you tease him he will bite or scratch you. You take and tickle him in the chest and he will hurt you.

If you tie a spool on a string he will hide in one corner until the spool passes and then grab it. Sometimes he will grab a shoe lace when you pull it along and sometimes he will use his claws and take it from your hands when you are lacing up your shoes.

His father is a maltese cat. He is five or six years old. Billie is about two or three years old.

Going After the Cows

Dear Wideawakes: This is my first story to your corner. Going after the cows was a serious thing. I had to climb a hill which was covered with wild strawberries in the season. Could any boy pass by those rip strawberries? And then, on the hill pasture there were beds of wintergreen with red berries, tufts of columbine roots of sassafras to be dug, and dozens of good things to eat or smell, that I could not resist. In the midst of my investigation the tin horn would blow a great blast from the farm house as if to say "Why on earth doesn't that boy come home?"

A Few Health Rules

Dear Uncle Jed: The school that I go to is nearly a mile and a half from my home. We are learning to keep well. Some of the things are, to have a bath twice a week, brush the teeth twice a day, eat either some fruit or vegetable every day. In school, we have a chart to keep track of the ones who brush their teeth twice a day.

Julius Caesar

Dear Uncle Jed: Julius Caesar was a great Roman general who led the first expedition across the Rhine to Germany and over the channel into Great Britain. He was a wealthy noble. He was also a great political leader and with two other men controlled Rome.

As soon as Caesar became governor of the province of southern Gaul he showed that he was a skilful general as well as a successful politician. When a large army of Germans entered Gaul, he defeated it and sent it back across the Rhine. One war led to another until all the tribes from the country now called Belgium to the Mediterranean coast professed to be friends of the Roman people. His campaign lasted from 58 B. C. for nine years. Two or three times Caesar was very close to ruin, but by his courage and energy he always succeeded in gaining the victory.

Another time he had his engineers build a bridge from Gaul across the Rhine into Germany. This they built in ten days. He laid waste the fields of the tribes near the river in order to make the name of the Romans feared and then returned to Gaul and destroyed the bridge. Twice he sailed over to Britain, the last time marching a few miles north of where London now stands.

His purpose was to keep back the Britains from stirring up the Gauls to attack him. Other generals many years later conquered Britain as far as the hills of Scotland.

Dear Uncle Jed: Last week we built a snow fort down at the school playground. We had four snow men. The fort was four feet high. We had two entrances into it. The snow was two feet high.

The Little Lame Girl.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a picture in mind. It is of a little lame girl. She cannot walk. She patiently sits in her wheel chair under the trees.

Although she is lame, she is very happy. All day she sits under the trees in her chair. All the animals and birds love her. There are two birds perched on her shoulder.

When this girl was small (she is now 12 years of age) she was not lame. One day she climbed a tree and fell from it. She has never walked since.

What Esther Found Out.

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a cold, crisp winter's day when Esther, the blue eyed doll, first came to live in the nursery. She had traveled from New York city to Boston and by the time she reached Dorothy Mayhew's house she was glad that her journey was [illegible]

As she entered the nursery and saw several other dolls of various kinds awaiting her, she felt a bit strange and wondered, whether or not she would be as happy living with Mother Dorothy as she had been in the great department store in the great city of New York. Feeding Tray for Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed: We have a girl in our room who made a feeding tray for the birds. This tray we are going to put near our window. Some boys in our school room brought some nails to put it up with. We are going to put some suet in it for the birds.

MARION GALLUP, Age 9.

The Stag.

Dear Uncle Jed: Once upon a time a stag came to a spring to drink. The water was clear and quiet, and the stag could see himself in it. "How beautiful my horns are," thought the stag. "How graceful they look on each side of my head. I should be very happy if my legs were as beautiful as my horns; but I am ashamed of these long slender legs."

While the stag was looking at himself in the water, a hunter with his dogs saw him.

The slender legs which he had despised easily carried him away from the dogs. He ran quickly over the fields and the hunter could not find him. Soon the stag came to a forest and his long horns caught in the branches of a tree. Before the stag could get away he was found by the hunter and his dogs. When the stag knew he must die he cried: "The slender legs that I once despised could have saved my life, but the horns which were my pride have been the cause of my death."

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my school. I have a nice teacher and I like her very much. Her name is Mrs. Mary Peckham. I am in the sixth grade. I am trying to be promoted to the seventh. The girls are having a sewing class. I have made an apron, also a dust cap and a shirtwaist set of collar and cuffs. I like sewing very much.

Our supervisor's name is Mrs. Sarah Palmer and I like her very much. She teaches us in our tests in school and gives us very good advice.

I hope that some of the Wide-Awakes like their teachers as well as I do and obey the rules of the school as I do.

The Life of Washington.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would try my best to tell you about George Washington. Once upon a time there was born in Virginia a boy named George Washington.

When the war broke out he became a captain.

General Braddock asked George to go down to Boston and tell the British that they had better leave. This was over one hundred miles, but George liked to go especially where there was any danger.

When he got there he delivered the message. They would not go. So he went back and told General Braddock. So General Braddock started out. He did not know much about fighting. George told him that he would get hurt, because Indians were standing behind trees to shoot him.

Later General Braddock got shot. When night came they hid him under some leaves. So George Washington led the army. After that they thought sure George would get shot. He got two horses shot out from under him, and four bullets through his coat, but he escaped with his life.

George Washington had a great friend, Jonathan Trumbull, who lived in Lebanon, Conn. Jonathan Trumbull was a war governor. [illegible] was the governor of [illegible]

George Washington settled a dispute between the north and the south. They never could get along about laws. So George settled the quarrel and made good laws.

Then they said, We are like iron barrel staves without a hoop around them. So they said we will have to have some one to make the laws stand together, and to see that the people do right. If they do not we will have some punishment for them.

So they said let us elect George for our president. He was then made first president of the United States.

George Washington married Miss Martha Custice. They went to live at Mount Vernon. They lived for a short time, when George was taken sick. He was sick with pneumonia and died. He was at the age of eighty-seven when he was taken ill.

Dear Uncle Jed: Saturday I went sliding on Peck street. When I got tired sliding on Peck street I went to a hill called Sherman's lot. It was [illegible] where we were sliding. We would go so fast you couldn't say Jack Robinson. So you must know how fast we went. Then a boy came up with a pair of skiis made of barrel staves. I sat on the skiis. I went down the hill on them. When I got down the hill one of them was there ahead of me.

My First Visit to Boston.

Dear Uncle Jed: The first time I went to Boston my cousin and I went to Franklin Park to see the animals. First we went to see the elephants, which were in a large building. They had just finished doing tricks. We fed them something. In the same building we saw a sacred cow that had just arrived and they were building him a new pen.

Next we went to the duck pond. There we went to g gk g gk gk g k There were different kinds of ducks and we fed them some bread. My cousin and I walked quite a distance until we came to the place where the bears were kept. There were black bears, brown bears, and white bears. LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING

"Hello, hello!" shouted Uncle Lucky Lefthindfoot, the nice old gentleman rabbit. "Is this the Three-in-One Cent Store?"

"It sure is," came the answer over the Rabbitville telephone wire.

"Why don't you send my radio apparatus? Don't you know I want to listen to the Little Jack Rabbit stories?"

"We'll have your radio installed today. Don't worry."

So Uncle Lucky hung up the receiver and, turning to Little Jack Rabbit, he said:

"Let's go for a ride in the Luckymobile. We'll drive through the Shady Forest and across the Sunny Meadow and invite all our friends over tonight."

In less than five hundred short seconds, the two little rabbits were in the Luckymobile and out of the front gate in the white picket fence that surrounded the little white house in which the nice old gentleman rabbit lived on the corner of Lettuce Avenue and Carrot Street, Rabbitville, U. S. A.

Pretty soon they saw Squirel Nutcracker on the doorstep of his Chestnut Tree House.

"I'll be there, thank you!" replied the old squirrel.

Next, Busy Beaver said he'd come; then Sammy Skunk and the Big Brown Bear. Then Uncle Lucky stopped at the Old Duck Pond to invite Granddaddy Bullfrog and Teddy Tadpole.

"What's all the noise about?" asked pretty Mrs. Oriole from her stocking-like nest on the Old Willow Tree.

"Come over to my radio party tonight," answered Uncle Lucky as he drove over to the Barnyard.

"I'll come," said Cocky Doodles.

"I'll be there," said Goosey Lucy.

"I won't be a second late," replied Turkey Tim."

"Yes, we'll come,
Make no mistake,
And don't forget
The Angel Cake!"

shouted all of the Barnyard folk.

Yours for a story.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

Getting a Letter From Mother

"Little Jack Rabbit," said his mother one morning, in February, "run over to the postoffice and see if there's a letter for me."

So the little rabbit put on his khaki spotted breeches and started off on a run, but after a while, hearing an automobile, where the postoffice stood on the corner of Pumpkin place and Corn Cob lane.

"Is there a letter for Lady Love, old Bramble Patch, Rail Fence Corner, U. S. A.?" he asked the lady postmistress who was an old maid grasshopper who worked for Uncle Sam in the winter time selling stamps and in the summer time played in the wheat field.

"Did you comb your hair this morning?" she asked.

"I think there is," she answered, looking in Box 13 and sure enough, there was. After giving it to the little rabbit, she shut the door of the little window and took out her vanity bag and powdered her nose.

Well, after that, Little Jack Rabbit hopped outside and started for home, but just as he reached the Shady Forest, whom should he see but Squirrel Nutcracker. The old gray squirrel had come out of his hollow tree for a little run in the sun. You see, on cold days he curled himself up in a ball and kept very quiet and when the days were warm, he came out and jumped from limb to limb, so as not to get cramps in his leg muscles.

"Where are you going?" he asked the little rabbit, and then taking a nut out of his pocket, cracked it with his sharp teeth.

"I've got a letter for mother," said little Jack Rabbit, "and I mustn't stop to talk to anyone," and he hopped along as fast as he could, for he was afraid he migh forget and lose the letter you see.

Well, pretty soon, not so very long, he came to the Old Bramble Patch, and after he had given the letter to his mother, he hopped out on the Sunny Meadow and just then, all of a sudden, Old Professor Crow flew by. He had his little black book under his wing and as soon as he saw the little rabbit he lighted on a bush and turned to page 14.

"Let me read you something," he said, putting on his spectacles, and after he had cawed three times and a half, he began:

"Little rabbits should take care
To every morning comb their hair,
And always to be clean and neat.
And keep their dispositions sweet," and then, that wise old bird looked up over his spectacles and winked at the little rabbit.

"Did you comb your hair this morning?" he asked.

And wasn't it lucky that Little Jack Rabbit hadn't forgotten to? Well, I just guess it was.

"Of course, I did, Professor Crow. Why do you ask, I'd like to know?" and in the next story you shall hear what Professor Crow said.

NOANK WHOLESALERS HANDLE MOST LOBSTERS

More than half of the lobsters landed in Connecticut ports in 1923 were handled by wholesalers at Noank, according to the report on the lobster industry just issued by the state board of fisheries and game.

The report is in part as follows:

During the year 1921 permits for setting lobster pots in Connecticut waters were issued to the number of 509 as compared with 464 for the year 1922. Eight non-resident licenses were issued for both 1921 and 1922.

The statistics of the lobster fishery, heretofore biennially published, cover only boats operating under the permit in Connecticut waters and do not include the many boats of both Connecticut and New York fishermen who fish in New York waters, but land their fares in Connecticut. Such statistics of lobstermen as have been obtained through reports of the fishermen are so palpably erroneous that their publication has been omitted.

The amount of lobsters landed in Connecticut ports during the year 1922 to December 1st is conservatively estimated at not less than 1,300,000 pounds. More than half of these were handled by wholesalers at Noank who paid an average price of 26 cents per pound. Undoubtedly a large number of lobstermen who market their catch locally direct to consumers realized a much higher average price per pound.

A very large proportion of the lobsters handled by wholesalers is shipped to New York city.

It is estimated that not over five per cent. of the lobsters landed on the Connecticut shores are taken in Connecticut waters. Residents of Connecticut are allowed to fish in a certain portion of the New York waters around Fishers Island under licenses issued by the New York State Conservation commission. The cream of the lobster fishery off Fishers Island is held exclusively for New York fishermen, and a large proportion of these lobsters are delivered at Noank and New London.

The New York fishermen appreciate the importance of saving the egg-bearing lobsters and so far as possible are glad to deliver the egg-bearers to the collecting station of the commission at Noank under the same terms and conditions as apply to the Connecticut fishermen. They fully appreciate the fact that the efforts of the commission in the conservation of egg-bearing lobsters benefit the New York waters fully as much as the Connecticut waters.

The lobster grounds along the Connecticut waters of Long Island sound are limited by the small amount of rocky bottom which presents a favorable environment for lobsters. No matter how many lobsters are propagated and planted by the Connecticut commission, it is inevitable that when released they will seek the environment which is most congenial.

Very few lobster cars are maintained by individual fishermen along the New London county shores, but along the Fairfield county shores the oystermen work individually and to a large extent peddle or sell their own catch at their own doors. These fishermen maintain cars. Some of these resident lobstermen [illegible] in New York waters only and claim exemption from the law which requires all cars of fishermen operating under a Connecticut permit to be marked.

In order that the law for the protection of short and egg-bearing lobsters may be strictly and impartially enforced in Connecticut waters, all lobster cars in Connecticut waters should be marked and under the supervision of the commission, and fishermen operating in New York waters from the Connecticut shore or landing their fares from New York should be required to secure a permit from the commission under the same restrictions and conditions as the Connecticut waters.

It is believed that such a law is in the interest of all lobstermen and that it will be cheerfully supported by all fishermen who really want to see the lobsters conserved.

It is believed that a close season on lobsters while they are in winter quarters from December 1st to April 1st would prove beneficial to the lobster industry, but it is useless to enact such a law for the state of Connecticut unless a similar law is enacter to cover the waters of contiguous states, and particularly New York state. During the months of December and January a few lobstermen operate in New York waters where the lobsters have congregated for wintering and are able to market their catch at very high prices. These few men are benefited temporarily, but at the sacrifice of the industry as a whole. Failing interstate co-operation, the only other possible solution for safeguarding the lobster industry appears to be through federal control of the entire lobster industry.

The New York law excluding Connecticut fishermen from certain portions of desirable lobster waters around Fishers Island is said to have been enacted on account of the greed of one Connecticut lobsterman. Possibly ten lobstermen—residing on Fishers Island—are benefited by this exclusive law. It seems unfortunate that such a condition exists and this is especially true since Connecticut is doing so much to benefit the industry.

The law which provides that the commission must issue permits to aliens who have resided within the state five years should be repealed.

New Methods in Culture.

Heretofore it has been customary to ask the fishermen to bring berried or egg-bearing lobsters to the hatchery at Noank where the wholesale price was paid for each. A portion of these lobsters was brushed, the eggs placed in jars and hatched and the brushed lobsters returned to the waters. During the fall of 1921, owing to a shortage of funds, the price paid for lobsters was at the rate of 10 cents per pound. Some of the lobsters were carried in cars through the winter and liberated during the spring of 1922.

During the spring of 1922, the brushing of mature egg-bearing lobsters to secure eggs for hatching was discontinued and instead the lobsters were marked by punching holes through the shell of the tail and liberated, under the belief that the parent lobster is able to hatch and distribute her young more sucessfully than it can be done from the hatchery.

During the fall of 1922 sufficient funds were not available to warrant purchasing them at wholesale prices, but the lobstermen were paid a bonus of 10 cents for each berried lobster delivered at the hatchery wharf.

It must be understood that this payment is really a bonus to the lobstermen to pay for the trouble of bringing the lobsters in, and in fact whatever is paid to the lobstermen for berried lobsters is to induce the unscrupulous ones to observe the law against removal of the eggs in order to market the lobsters. There are many thoroughly honest and reliable persons among the lobstermen, but according to their own statements, at least one-half of them will not hesitate to brush eggs from lobsters if they think they can market them without detection. The same holds true in reference to marketing short lobsters.

The worst punishment which a lobsterman can receive for violation of the laws for the protection of their industry is the revocation of the licenses following conviction.

There are conflicting reports as to whether the lobsters are being depleted or not, but it is the belief of this commission that they are holding their own and that the present methods of having fishermen bring in the berried lobsters to be marked and redistributed so that they cannot be brushed and marketed or again delivered at the hatchery is producing good results.

Several fishermen who set pots in the vicinity of where many berried lobsters were planted last spring report that when hauling their pots they found them covered with lobsters about half an inch long. This is said to be a condition which was never before noticed and it indicates quite conclusively that planting berried lobsters in their natural habitat is producing results. These minute lobsters were undoubtedly hanging around the lobster pots in order to secure food from the bait within them.

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, Feb. 10.—Professional operations for the rise were conducted with increased vigor in today's brief session of the stock market, all groups moving to higher ground under the leadership of the sugars and independents. Sales, which exceeded 675,000 shares, made it one of the most active half holiday sessions in many months.

High prices for Cuban raw sugar and the department of commerce's prediction of a shortage in the crops; further increases in the price of mid-continent and Pennsylvania crude oils and a big increase in the dividend on Atlantic Refining stock furnished the impetus for the advance, which also was influenced by reports of expending business operations and higher earnings contained in the weekly mercantile reviews.

All of the principal sugar stocks soared to new high records for the year, some of them to the highest prices in more than two years. Cuba Cane Sugar preferred touched 59 1-4 and then fell back to 58, where it was up 4 points on the day; American Beet Sugar closed at 4 5-8, up 4 5-8 points, and gains of 1 to 2 -4 points were made by Manati, Cuba Cane common, Punta Alegre, American and South Porto Rico sugars.

Gulf States Steel, which touched 93 1-4 and then fell back 1-2 for a net gain of nearly 4 points on the day, led the advance in those shares. Crucible was not far behind with a gain of points while Republic and Otis Steel preferred each gained 3 to 4 points. U. S. Steel closed fractionally higher. Announcement of an increase of 15,000 tons in the unfilled tonnage of the U. S. Steel Corporation after the market closed was somewhat of a surprise to the street, considering that which had registered a slight decrease because of the fact that the steel corporation was reported to have declined a large amount of business last month.

Equipments closed 1 to 3 for a net gain of 1 to 2 points, after crossed 100 and then fell back to 98 7-8, where it was up 2 points on the day. United Cigar Stores was the standout of the specialty list, rising 6 points to 59, which was 7 points above the opening figure. Other prominent issues which were unusually active were Baldwin Locomotive, American Tobacco, Coca Products preferred, Kelly Springfield Tire and Woolworth, all up 1 to 3 points.

Demand sterling advanced $4.65 1-2, a new high record for the year and only 1-2 cent below the all time high established in December 1919. Interest was the center in three issues, French francs, canal bonds and all of the foreign remittances, especially in view of a resolution of the chamber of deputies by large majority instructing the government to take steps to put the franc on a gold basis. Other prominent issues which were unusually active were United Fruit, Tobacco Products preferred, Baldwin Locomotive, American Sugar, American Tobacco, Coca Products preferred, Kelly Springfield and Woolworth, all up 1 to 3 points.

FRANCE CONFISCATED SURETIES FROM GERMANS

Washington, Feb. 11 (By the A. P.)—Legal advisers of the department of justice were said today to be puzzled over recent representations of the French government to Washington regarding the status of American sureties confiscated from German nationals during and after the World war by France. The French government, according to investigating officials, has asked that this government recognize the legality of transfers of such stock in case France can sell them.

Just what sureties are held by the French liquidator, who has the same general status as the alien property custodian in this country officials say they do not know, explaining the French government has not given any clear values in submitting its inquiry. It is believed, however that millions of dollars are involved.

The investigation has not progressed far enough for officials to forecast their decision as to the right of France to sell the seized stock. The question arose from a difference between American and French law regarding the status of such certificates which in this country are recognized only as evidence of title, requiring re-registration of ownership on a transfer or sale. In France certificates are held to be the property itself and therefore negotiable.

The American officials are said to be of the opinion that this government can have nothing to do with the disposition of seized stock held by France; that it is a question between France and the original German owners of the sureties.

In its decision, the American government is expected to stress its desire to protect the investments of foreign capital and to encourage further investment. However, an agreement was entered into with Great Britain under which the London government was free to sell American sureties it had seized from German nationals during the war and which the American alien property custodian had not laid claim to or actually taken possession of through receipt of certificates and registration on company books. In return, England sent back to this government the seized certificates which represented stock taken over by the alien property custodian. An agreement similar to the one existing with Great Britain, however, never has been sought by France.

Millions of dollars worth of American sureties were held by German and Austrian nationals prior to the war, a considerable portion of which evaded the property custodian when he seized the holdings of alien enemies through the tactics of their owners who had sought to avoid German taxation by registering the certificates in France and England under names of friendly citizens. Consequently, when the American concerns were directed to report the amounts held by alien enemies, these sureties were not listed and the American officials did not find the true situation until it was too late to secure them. From time to time, during the war, as actual ownership was established, the certificates were seized by France or England, leaving the alien property custodian without prior claims in many instances.

NOTORIOUS FORGER ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 11.—Phillip L. Lambelle, credited by Louisville police with having operated under fifteen aliases in various cities as a forger, died today in a hospital here, from a pistol bullet wound in the head self inflicted with a weapon snatched from a drawer at detective headquarters as he was being questioned last night.

Lambelle said by police to have been wanted in several northern and central western cities and in Atlanta, Ga., and his wife were arrested as they were leaving a hotel here. Lambelle was said to have passed $6,000 worth of money orders forged on stolen blanks. Mrs. Lambelle told police she is the daughter of A. A. Van Wormer, Fort Wayne, Ind., manufacturer.

"Dr. Phillip Kalb" was said by detectives to have been the alias under which Lambelle operated most extensively.

NARCOTIC CONDITIONS AT HOLLYWOOD MAGNIFIED

Washington, Feb. 11. — Narcotic conditions in Los Angeles and the movie colony at Hollywood, according to a supplementary report made by Narcotic Chief Harry D. Smith, of the Pacific coast division have been "magnified," and few of the sensational statements circulated "were based on fact."

Based on information obtained from state, county and municipal officers, prominent citizens and others interested in enforcement of the law, Chief Smith has formed the conclusion that "there is a preponderance of evidence tending to show that Los Angeles and particularly the Hollywood district is as free from the narcotic evil as could be hoped for, with the limited number of officers and funds available."

Police and other officials of Los Angeles charged with suppression of the narcotic evil expressed to Chief Smith the opinion that there had been a marked decrease in the use of opium and other narcotics, especially in the Hollywood section, during the last year.

POTASH IN THE GREEN SANDS OF NEW JERSEY

Washington, Feb. 11. — Enough potash to supply the needs of the United States for nearly a thousand years, based on pre-war importations, is contained in the green sands of New Jersey, the geological survey announced today. Scarcity of potash for fertilizers due to the shutting off of German supplies during the World war caused the government to make an extensive investigation of the green sand marl belt of New Jersey and its probable development as a source of supply.

Moderate estimates place the quantity of potash in that belt at 256,953,000 short tons that could be mined from open pits. Several companies have undertaken to produce potash from New Jersey green sand and some have marketed small quantities though none of the companies, the survey reports, is now actually producing.

The green sand marl belt extends across New Jersey from the vicinity of Sandy Hook southwesterly to the Delaware river, near Salem, a distance of about 100 miles. It ranges in width from nearly 14 miles in Monmouth county to one mile or less in parts of Gloucester county. For more than 100 years these sands have been dug and marketed for use as fertilizer and in the late sixties the quantity used amounted to nearly 1,000,000 tons annually. With the introduction of prepared fertilizers, the green sand marl industry gradually died, but here and there small quantities are still dug and used.

MEMBER OF COMMONS FAVORS CAPITAL LEVY

London, Feb. 11.—J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the labor party in the house of commons, speaking at a meeting in London tonight, declared his intention to raise the question of a capital levy formally at the coming session of parliament. He said the first duty of the chancellor of the exchequer in any future labor government would be to pay off a substantial part of public debt by a capital levy, that being the only possible means of equitable taxation.

FEWER DEATHS IN STATE FROM AUTO ACCIDENTS

Hartford, Feb. 11.—The number of persons killed in automobile accidents in Connecticut during January, 1923, was the smallest ever recorded for the same month in the history of the department of motor vehicles, according to figures made public today. Four persons met death.

In 1919 there were 13 fatal accidents in January, in 1920 there were 10, nine in 1921 and five in 1922.

The department also announced that there were 12,000 more motor vehicles registered during January than in January than in the same period last year. The total number registered was 83,467 on February 1. The increase in the number of cars registered was reflected in the amount of fees collected, $66,000 being paid over last year.

NEW YORK WELCOMED RHINELAND SOLDIERS

New York, Feb. 11.—New York welcomed home today the last soldiers of America's army of occupation in Germany, when the transport St. Mihiel arrived at the Brooklyn army base with 180 officers and men, after having disembarked larger detachments at Savannah and Charleston. Thirty-five Rhineland brides and thirteen children were aboard the transport.

Despite a heavy snowstorm, the returning troops were welcomed by several thousand relatives and friends while acting Mayor Murray Hulbert, other officials and a municipal band accompanied the transport to the dock from quarantine in the police boat Macon.

The troops soon were trailing over the gangway for the trip to Fort Hamilton where they will be stationed temporarily. The women and children were taken to a hotel to await the discharge of their husbands, which will be expedited by army officials.

Plans for a formal welcome to the overseas contingent will not be carried out, as all unmarried troops will be transferred to other army posts within a few days, according to Captain Harry T. Hand, commander of the detachment.

Unknown to the soldiers and their wives, the transport brought bodies of eleven persons who died in Germany, including those of Lieutenant Colonel F. M. Burroughs, retired, of Washington, D. C., Major Henry F. Brinkerhoff, Jr., of Atlantic City, and Private Thomas Long, who lost his life in an automobile accident the day before the troops left for home.

The simplest way to end a corn is to apply a few drops painlessly. Then lift it off with fingers. Doesn't even irritate the skin. Costs a few cents at any druggist's. Ask for Bayer-Compound Freezone. Dries in a second. Shrivels the corn. Then the corn comes off, root and all. Works on any corn or callus. Freezone is the discovery of a Cincinnati genius. Try it!

Effective Moth Protection.

Chests made of red cedar are ample protection against the operations of the moth. The government says so in a report which comes from the agricultural department. These chests must be secure and tight in every respect. Since it is the odor of the red cedar which kills the young moths, care must be taken to prevent the escape of the odor. This is accomplished by seeing that the joints are all tight, and when there is occasion to open the chest the interior must not be exposed any longer than is absolutely necessary.

BALTIC

The members of the Mens League of the Baltic M. E. church, gave a very successful concert in Sprague hall Monday evening presenting the Shawanee River quartette in songs and melodies. A large audience was present. The committee in charge comprised Charles Barnes, Paul Etter, J. Robers, W. Houghton, M. Bailey, J. Heap, T. Adams and J. Heibel.

A good sum was realized.

Wednesday evening the Men's League, 49 strong went to Willimantic as guests of the M. E. church club of that city and spent a very pleasant evening. After the business was disposed up singing was enjoyed, followed by an oyster stew, doughnuts, crackers, tea and coffee. During the evening there was solos by William McGill and William Bailey.

Miss Marie Heibel gave a birthday party to a number of her friends on Saturday after noon and and the afternoon was spent in playing games and music.

Refreshments of cookies, cake and candy were served.

The decorations were by the Misses Annie Zaph and Anna Grieshamer. The children who won prizes were Bertha Robinson, Beatrice Ashworth, Edna and Raymond Krodel, L. Almquist, Charles and Lillian Williams, James Houghton, Lillian and Elsie Erickson. Those present were Marie Heibel, Walter Erickson, Lillian and Mildred Mason, Beatrice Ashworth, Bertha Robinson, L. Almquist, Edno and May Krodell, Elsie and Lilly Erickson, Helen Fournier, Lillian Williams, Dorothy and Lois Bradlaw, Fideles and Raymond Krodell, Florence and Ethel Parkhurst, Doris Parkhurst, Raymond Parkhurst, James Houghton, Charles Williams, Master Albert Stewart and Master George Heibel.

YANTIC

The first dramatic event of the new year took place in the Fire Engine hall, Thursday evening when the members of the Girls' Friendly society presented the amusing comedy "Breezy Point." The characters were well taken by the following members of the society: Aunt Debby, Mistress of Breezy Point, Miss Rose Matteson; Eleanor Pearl, of unknown parentage, Miss Dorothy Harvey; Admiral Grant a workhouse waif, Miss Lois Manning; Mrs. Hardscratch, with business propensities, Mrs. Stella Stott; the Hardscratch Twins, who "never tell nothin'," Marjorie Harvey and Stella Kilroy; Mehitable Doolittle, manufacturer of catarrh snuff and Celtics, Miss Ethel Whitmarsh; Aunt Debby's summer boarders, fresh from boarding school, Bernice Vernon, Miss Lila Smith; Laura Lewis, Miss Marion Gibbs; Edith Norton, Miss Olive Bishop; Clarice Fenwick, Miss Marjorie Merry; Pantine, Miss Vernon's French maid, Miss Cecelia Sweeney, Ole Olem, the gipsy, Mrs. Beatrice Bantle.

The first scene showed an attractive sitting room at Breezy Point and as the characters appeared one soon found that they were well fitted for their parts. The second scene was laid six weeks after the arrival of the boarders, and showed an ideal camp in the woods where all were enjoying camp life. The third scene showed the sitting room at Breezy Point again and the many changes that had happened during the interval were well illustrated by the actors.

Each part was so well taken that it is almost impossible to make any distinction only that some of the characters were more difficult to portray.

Much was the character of Admiral Grant portrayed by Miss Manning, who showed none of the originality of the character to be lost through her interpretation, and the others seemed to find their characters as easy to portray. One interesting character Sophie Hardscrabble, had been assigned to Miss Phyllis Irvine, but Miss Irvine was injured in a bobsled accident ten days before the play was given and was unable to take her part. Then part was transferred to Miss Marjorie Harvey, who gave much pleasing interpretation that much credit is due her for her work.

The play was under the direction of the branch secretary, Mrs. John Kilroe, who was ably assisted by Mrs. Howard Bishop who drilled the young ladies and had charge of the staging. The stage scenery was loaned by the Rev. P. Gaudet. Bailey of Norwich Town and through the courtesy of Howard Beckwith it was brought to the hall and returned after the play.

One of the interesting features of the evening's entertainment was the musical program rendered. At a previous Friendly Society dinner, [illegible] commenced by Miss Marjorie Merry, pianist, rendered several pleasing numbers; between the first and second acts Miss Beulah Carpenter favored the audience with a Nocturne. After the second act, Miss Carpenter, assisted by her brother, Roy Carpenter, violin, were heard in a duet and were followed by Miss. Lois Manning, who sang very sweetly "My World," accompanied by Miss Merry on the piano. After the drama Mr. Sterry favored the audience with a violin solo and was accompanied by Miss Merry.

The hall was well filled and showed that home talent is much appreciated and much praise has been given not only to those who took part but to those who so ably directed it and it is hoped that more such plays will be given by the members of the Girls' Friendly.

DECLARES GOOD LIVES AND GOOD WORKS MAKE CITY WORTH LIVING IN

If we took the good lives and good works out of Norwich the city would not be worth living in twenty-four hours afterwards, said Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, at the Sunday evening service. It is the good lives and good works of Christians that make a city what it is, and there should be better lives and better works to make our city worth even more.

The subject of the sermon was Salvation by Faith or by Sacrament, the preacher showing how the subject of dealing with the repenting sinner is dealt with by various churches and religious sects in the world.

Whatever the life of a man, said Dr. Pitt, there are some things which have been lived that he is ashamed of, things that have been done that are sins. A man realises this fact and seeks redemption. The sinner comes to the religions of the world and asks what it has to offer him for redemption and with two exceptions the religions will say, try to do better tomorrow and hereafter and God will forgive you your failures in the past.

One may be right in believing that faith in "Day by day I'm getting better and beter." That belief may be a cure for physical ailments but anyone believing that any such treatment will cure spiritual ailments is mistaken. The thing is a lie on the face of it. Even though we live 100 per cent perfect tomorrow, our law requires us to do so, and what have we left to atone for the sin of yesterday

I said that there were two exceptions to this rule, the Mohammedan belief and Christianity. The Mohammedan would say: Oh, that's all right, God is easy and will forget your past sins, don't mind them; it's O. K., go out and do beter in the future."

It would be all right if the Mohammedan belief was simply confined to themselves, but the same belief prevails in America and the world over the English speaking race is not a spirit of salvation by our forefathers, accepted God's way, and the Israelites [illegible]

We are too hopeful of working for a great revival of religion in the world, but I tell you that this will never be until people come back to a fresh appreciation of sin, a new appreciation of their independent responsibility to God. This teaching should be given to men today in language that they can all understand. They must learn the consequences of sin, the old time idea of hell must be brought home to them in a modern way. Every man must learn the fact of sin, that the consequence is death, and that only through Christ is their promise of salvation. Thank God that though man is a great sinner, there is a God big enough to save him from his sins if he will but repent.

Christianity doesn't tell us that we can go ahead. The sinner comes to Christianity and asks what it has to offer. It answers, Follow Christ, take your troubles, your sins, to him, be aided by his spirit, his word and follow in this new way. The individual sinner by his own right, God-given, can appeal directly to God for forgiveness. I tell you that in religion today, the same as in the business world, the middle man is not needed; it is better to buy direct, to go directly to your Heavenly Father with your sin. Every Christian man and woman is a saint in God, they need no middle man, and God tells them to come straight to the throne of grace. The Baptists believe that the human soul is competent to come to God itself, while other sects have the opposite belief.

In the verse from John three mighty words are used—Grace, Faith and Salvation. Grace is from the heavenly side, faith from earthly man, and salvation is the result of the two. Salvation can only come through work, the works you perform for the Master, and I thank God for the works, for homes and communities done because of the love of Jesus Christ.

During the service several announcements were made and two pleasing selections were rendered by Rev. Joseph Grosa of Monson Mr. Rev. Mr Grosa preached the Sunday morning sermon at the church.

Announcement was also made that the baptismal service which was to take place Sunday evening would take place either Thursday evening of this week, or on Sunday morning, February 18th.

NORWICH GIVES SUPPORT TO ABOLISHING BRIDGE TOLLS

State Senator Gibbs of Norwich at the hearing in Hartford Friday, before the roads, river and bridges joint committee of the general assembly, came out nobly in behalf of New London in his speech favoring passage of the bill to remove the tolls, says the New London Day.

Amid laughter the senator declared that Norwich and New London were not much in the habit of pulling together in the past, but they were becoming better friends now and he wanted to see the tolls eliminated from the Thames river bridge. He made a strong and able plea for the bill. James G. Hazelwood made a hit with the committee by a few most eloquent words for free bridges and he pounded his argument home as only he can do. He thanked Senator Gibbs for support, and said that Norwich was now regarded as one of the delightful suburbs of New London.

Representative [illegible] of Norwich [illegible] off in Representative [illegible] arguments for the bill [illegible] for Old Saybrook made a few speeches in favor of the bill. Senator Ernest E. Rogers strongly advocated the bill, as did Senator William G. Park of the Shoreline district. Col. and Representative Morris H. Payne, Representative Howard A. Edgecomb and Charles H. Smith of Groton, Representative C. S. Abel of Stonington, Representative Maurice A. Shannon and the representative from Deep River, Essex and Lyme. There was no opposition shown in favor and not a single word of opposition, and it would appear that the bill had a fine chance of going through the assembly this time and becoming a law.

A delegation of about [illegible] from Groton rounded up by Selectman Clark H. Whaley, attended the hearing, and about a dozen from New London. There was a big delegation from Deep River and Haddam and Saybrook.

RENEWED ACQUAINTANCE WITH MR. LAMOND

After having been in the employ of Robert W. Otis for over four years, Ludger Krumbholz of 6 Asylum street is to leave Feb. 15th to take up his new position with the Beech-Nut Packing company of New York. The many friends Mr. Krumbholz has made while in business in this city are pleased to hear of his advance and wish him success in his new undertaking.

Will Install Pomona Officers.

Charles M. Gardner, high priest of Demeter, will install the officers of New London county Pomona, No. 6, Patrons of Husbandry, at its meeting in this city this week. At the morning session there will be routine business and the afternoon session will be open to the fourth degrees. The installing officer will make an address after the installation and there will be music on the program.

It isn't queer that a man never shows his temper until after he has lost it?

SHOULD WARN OTHERS OF PITFALLS OF LIFE

The meeting at the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association Sunday afternoon was enjoyed by a good audience of men. The opening part of the program was made up of the following: Selection by Swahn's orchestra; the singing of a number of the popular hymns, scripture read and prayer. Educational moving pictures were shown, including The Astronomer's Workshop, Keeping Tabs on Tomorrow and The Science of Weather Prediction, all of which were interesting and instructive to all present.

The audience was favored by a timely address by Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, who called attention to the way in which men have studied to find ways and means to tell us of the kind of weather we are to have and also to tell us when the severe storms and hurricanes are to come, so that we may be warned of danger, and especially that the great ships at sea may seek places of safety until the dangerous storms are past. He suggested that the Christian man who has himself been saved from the moral dangers, should in kindly, helpful ways warn those about him of the many dangers that would assail them; in other words, if these men at Washington spend so much time and pains to warn of dangers that accompany bad weather, we certainly are duty bound to go to the limit in helping others to avoid the dangers and pitfalls of life.

TO ORDAIN MRS. DAVIES FOR ASSISTANT PASTOR

Churches of the Windham County association are to send delegates on Tuesday morning at 10.45 to an ecclesiastical council at the Westminster Congregational church, Canterbury, for the purpose of ordaining Mrs. T. Edward Davies, whom the church has elected a candidate for ordination to serve as assistant, without salary, to the pastor of the church, who is her husband.

Mrs. Davies is a graduate of Mount Holyoke, is an R. N. in two states, was one of the first two nurses to enroll in the American Red Cross after its reorganization, being No. 112 of National Red Cross nurses registered at Washington, D. C., and enrolled in the "military census" in the world war.

Born of missionary parents, in the near east, Mrs. Davies has done missionary work in the south and west, and since her marriage has aided her husband in his work and is very deeply interested in all community affairs, the W. C. T. U., and in clean politics in which all good citizens are concerned.

When ordained, Mrs. Davies will become the assistant pastor of Westminster church, which celebrated, two years ago last November, the 100th anniversary of its building and organization; it being the fourth oldest church building in Connecticut.

The program for the service of ordination at 1.45 p. m., will be as follows: Hymn 195, How Firm a Foundation; invocation by the pastor; reading the condensed record of the meeting of the council by the scribe; scripture reading, Rev. John R. Pratt; solo; ordination sermon, by Rev. J. Spencer Voorhees; ordination prayer, by Rev. Mary Macom-

Clyde M. Beebe, Miss Jessie E. Hyde and Miss Loretta Allen.

At the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 6.30 John L. Browning was the leader. The topic was Lessons from the Psalms, The Testimony Psalm, Ps. 145: 1-21.

Under the auspices of the social committee of the Christian Endeavor society a valentine social to which all young people of the church will be privileged to attend is to be held Wednesday evening in the chapel.

The Congregational prayer service on Thursday evening will have for its subject The World's Saviour, the Redeemer of His Ministry.

Having spent several days on two recent visits at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Earl Browning, of New London turnpike, Junior Browning has returned to Providence and resumed his studies at Brown university, following the midyear examinations.

PAST MONTH HAD FEWEST FATAL AUTO ACCIDENTS

Connecticut has set two new and enviable records during the last month, according to the department of motor vehicles, which has announced that there were fewer fatal accidents during this January than ever before in the history of the department's records and that more automobiles were registered during this last month than ever before for the same period.

In 1919 there were twelve fatal accidents in January, in 1920 there were ten, nine in 1921, five in 1922, and only four in the first month of 1923.

In the seven larger Connecticut cities there has been for this period but one fatal accident for each 290,667 people, while a wire report from Chicago states that in that city there has been a fatality for each 25,000 people. The comparison with Chicago, which shows the Connecticut cities far more advanced in accident prevention, is considered a fair one. While the Illinois city is more densely populated, in all other respects the conditions are considered equal. The weather has been more severe, if anything, in Connecticut. This has caused less driving but has also made traffic conditions much worse and has made accidents more likely.

In spite of this period of inclement weather, there are nearly 25,000 more motor vehicles registered so far this year than there were at the same time last year. The total number on the lists on Feb. 1, 1922, was 175,870, while this year the figure stood at 88,467. The department officials also report that the various warners offices have taken in over $60,000 more in fees this year than last.

NORWICH PARTY TO MAKE SOUTH AMERICAN TRIP

Julius W. Cadden, his two sisters, Misses Carie and Minnie Cadden, and their nephew, R. C. Plaut, are answering the call of South America, a land that is indeed rich in its offerings to the tourist whose inclinations reach beyond conventional paths into domains striking and picturesque. There are beautiful cities in South America, and the party is expected to spend much time at Rio De Janeiro, where the Brazilian centennial exposition is in full blast. South America has wonderful lakes and rivers, rich stretches of rolling country and lofty, inspiring mountain peaks. It is interesting to note that South America's seasons are just the reverse from North America and because of trade winds, high altitudes and geographical locations the southern summer is not so hot nor the winter so cold as the same seasons in the north. When Norwich is wrapped in snow and ice these sunny lands below the equator are enjoying mild, sunny days and cool nights.

The steamer (the Western World) that the Norwich party is to sail on departs Saturday, Feb. 17. This steamer is noted for having more private staterooms than any other steamer. The advent of Father Neptune and his court coming aboard the steamer when the equator is crossed is an event to look forward to; also the 833 mile trip from Buenos Aires to Valparaiso across the continent by Trans-Andes railway. The summit of the cordilleras is crossed through a tunnel three miles long and 10,000 feet above the sea level. Other places of interest to be visited by the party are Coquimbo, Antofogasto, Iquique, Mollendo, Callao, Guayaquil, Balboa Colon, through the Panama canal and home. About 75 days will be consumed in the trip.

SLATER LODGE PRESENTED GIFT TO MRS. STOCKDALE

Members of Slater lodge, No. 509, N. E. O. P., met Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Angelina Stockdale at 3 Union street. The surprise of the evening came at the close of the meeting when George Howard, past warden of the lodge, presented Mrs. Stockdale a large cut glass fern bowl in honor of the birthday of the hostess. Mrs. Stockdale expressed her thanks for the beautiful gift from the lodge members.

A social time followed during which instrumental and vocal selections were enjoyed and a delightful supper was served. The table was most attractively decorated with valentine designs of red and white, the center piece being a large birthday cake decorated with red candles and rosebuds.

The members parted at a late hour wishing the hostess many happy returns of the day. The next meeting of the lodge is to be held at the home of Mrs. Leroy Johnson in Montville in March.

LINCOLN, THE MAN OF THE PEOPLE

When the Norn Mother saw the whirling wind how Gleaming and [illegible] it hurled on earth,
She bent the strenuous heathens and came down
To make a man to meet the mortal need.
She took the tried clay of the common road,
Clay warm yet with the genial heat of earth,
Dashed through it all a strain of prophecy;
Then mixed in laughter with the serious stuff.
It was a stuff to wear for centuries.
A man that matched the mountains, and [illegible] compelled
The stars to look our way and homer us.
The color of the ground was in him, the red earth;
The tang and color of the primal things
The [illegible] and patience of the rocks;
The [illegible] of the [illegible] makes the corn;
The courage of the bird that dares the sea;
The justice of the rain that loves all leaves;
The pity of the snow that hides all scars;
The loving kindness of the wayside well;
The tolerance and quality of light
That falls as freely on the shrinking weed
As to the great oak flaring to the wind
To the slave's low hill as to the Matterhorn
That shoulders out the sky

And so he came
From prairie cabin up to Capitol,
One fire ideal lit our chieftain on,
Forevermore he burned to do his deed
With the fine stroke and gesture of a king:
He built the rail pile as he built the state,
Pouring his splendid strength through every blow:
The conscience of him testing every stroke,
To make his deed the measure of a man.

So came the Captain with the mighty heart;
And when the step of earthquake shook the house,
Wrenching the rafters from their ancient seat,
He held the ridgepole up, and spiked them fast
The rafters of the home. He held his place—
Held the long purpose like a growing tree—
Held on through blame and faltered not at praise.
And when he fell in whirlwind, he went down
As when a kingly cedar, green with boughs
Falls in the [illegible] with a [illegible] shout upon the hills,
And lets in [illegible] the [illegible] against the sky.

"Well, it seems to me you should know the tune better," was the child's critical comment.—Boston Transcript.

SHIPPING AND DEBT BILLS TO BE CONSIDERED JOINTLY

Administration Program is to Prevail in the Senate—Senate is to Adjourn From Day to Day, Providing a Morning Hour Each Day for Consideration of the British Debt Bill, After Which the Shipping Bill is to be Taken Up—In the Event of Failure to Obtain an Agreement to Vote on the Shipping Bill an Effort Will be Made to Inaugurate Night Sessions Beginning Wednesday.

Washington, Feb. 12.—An administration program providing for joint consideration of the shipping bill and of the British debt settlement measure was developed today in the senate.

The plan, which is understood to have received the approval of President Harding, was disclosed by Chairman Jones of the commerce committee, who is in charge of the shipping bill, after he had failed in another attempt to limit debate on the measure through unanimous consent agreement. It provides that the senate shall adjourn from day to day, thereby providing a morning hour each day during which the debt bill shall be considered and after which the shipping bill is to come up. In making known the plan Senator Jones further informed the senate that failing to obtain an agreement to vote on the shipping bill he would seek night sessions beginning Wednesday.

Definite arrangements to put the plan into effect were deferred today as democratic senators said they wished to consult with Senator Reed of Missouri, a democratic member of the finance committee, who returned to the capital today after an absence of several weeks, before formulating their views with respect to the proposal. Republican leaders, however, indicated after adjournment that they expect to begin operations under the plan tomorrow.

Standing in the way of the proposed procedure, however, is a motion made today by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, and debated throughout most of the session, to begin consideration of the constitutional amendment recently reported by the agriculture committee. This amendment would provide for direct election of president, for moving up the date of the presidential inauguration from March 4 to the third Monday in January, and for elimination of any session of an old congress after election of a new congress.

Senator Norris in discussing the amendment announced he would move to amend it so as to eliminate the provisions relating to the president, and press only the portion regarding the meeting of congress. In this form it was said to be acceptible to republicans generally and it was indicated that if Senator Norris proposed to press it as he announced today it would be approved with very little further debate. It extended discussion ensues, however, republican leaders in charge of the ship bill probably will counter with a move to lay the Norris motion on the table.

Meantime some democratic opponents of the shipping legislation indicated that they would agree to bring it to a vote if the administration forces would accept the Madden amendment, which was approved by the house but eliminated by the senate commerce committee after President Harding had informed Chairman Jones it would nullify the bill.

The amendment would make grants og government aid to ship operators contingent upon annual appropriation by congress. The first reaction of the administration leaders on acceptance of the amendment was unfavorable.

The question of the legislative program will be discussed further with President Harding tomorrow by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, republican leader. Chairman McCumber of the senate finance committee which on Saturday reported the debt settlement bill, and Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, a member of the American debt funding commission. The conference was to have been held today but was postponed pending development of the program.

GERMAN BRIDE PASSES MOTHER-IN-LAW TEST

New York, Feb. 12.—At least one of the 38 German brides who returned yesterday from the Rhine with the American doughboys passed the mother-in-law test today.

She was Mrs. William Wheeler, late of Coblenz, soon of Everett, Mass. Her mark in the examination was 100 per cent.

Bright and early this morning a sturdy, erect figure in khaki entered the lobby of the Hotel Rutledge, where the brides are quartered. It was "Bill," buck private.

Clinging to his arm was a bent little woman with white hair and keen, appraising eyes. It was Bill's mother, Mrs. Annie Wheeler of Everett.

"Tell Mrs. Wheeler to come down, please," the soldier said to the elevator operator, and then the two stood there silent, waiting.

The elevator door opened and a plump, smiling, fair-haired girl of twenty-four stepped out. A little girl of two was clinging to her hand.

The bride ran at once to the two figures. Paying no attention to the doughboy she threw two short arms around the grayed woman.

"Mama," she said, excitedly.

The little woman did not stop to survey the other. The evidence was without reservation.

A moment or two later the elderly woman was on her knees with her hands outstretched to a grandchild —named after her—a grandchild she had never seen before.

Little Annie drew back. Her mother bent over her.

"It's grandma," she said with a German accent. Annie still hesitated. "Ess ist deine grossmutter," the mother said.

The child held her face up for a kiss. A few minutes later she uttered her first phrase in the English tongue—a phrase in which she had been carefully coached—"Hello, grandma."

Soon the family was seated in the lounge, chatting as freely as the limitations of strange tongues would permit.

"We're off to Boston tomorrow night," Bill announced happily.

All but one of the brides seemed happy in the native land of their husbands. She had a violent attack of somesickness and threatened to take the next ship back—but recanted.

The others peered curiously from the windows of the hotel or sat around in groups talking fluent German. Some of the brave ventured forth to have a look at the subway and some of the other things of which they've heard.

A Kidnapped Nun Escaped Abductors

Taken From Notre Dame Academy, Frederick, Md.—Returned After Being Held Captive Several Hours.

Frederick, Md., Feb. 13.—Sister Cecilia, a teacher at the Notre Dame Academy here, was believed to have been kidnapped from that institution today, according to Father William J. Kane, supervisor of the academy.

Father Kane announced that Sister Cecilia, who was Marie Whalen, 33 years old of Vernon, Pa., was found to be missing at 3 o'clock this afternoon. There were signs of a struggle in the room she occupied, he stated, and a bottle, believed to contain chloroform, was discovered on the floor.

Father Kane also stated a broken girdle, rosary and a black veil belonging to Sister Cecilia also were also found on the floor of the room.

Police are looking for a man and woman who had parked a closed automobile opposite the convent at the academy. Jane Roddy, a 12-year-old student, who had taken a music lesson from Sister Cecilia less than an hour before the supposed kidnapping, told the authorities that the strangers had been seen by the nun, who seemed to be aroused by their curiosity.

RETURNED AFTER BEING CAPTIVE SEVERAL HOURS

Frederick, Md., Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—Sister Cecilia, a music teacher at the Notre Dame Academy here, who was believed to have been kidnapped from the institution this afternoon, returned uto the convent tonight after she had escaped, according to her story to Father William J. Kane, supervisor of the academy, from a house in Baltimore where she was held captive for several hours.

Sister Cecilia, who was Miss Alice Marie Whalen of Verona, Pa., is in a serious condition at the convent and has been ordered to remain in bed. According to a statement by Father Kane, she is suffering from shock and a blow received on the head by unidentified persons. All of her religious garments were taken away from her, he said, and she is unable to give a detailed account of the kidnapping because of her hysterical condition.

According to Father Kane, the kidnapping occurred between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon. While Sister Cecilia was giving piano instructions to a pupil, he said, she noticed a man and a woman standing beside a closed automobile across the street from the convent. She became alarmed, he stated, as the couple acted mysteriously. An hour after the pupil had left the building and while she was sitting alone in the room, she noticed the woman peering through a rear window. When she went to investigate, according to her story to Father Kane the man struck her over the head, rendering her unconscious. She said she did not remember anything of what happened until she came to several hours later in the Baltimore house.

When she recovered consciousness, Father Kane said, she overheard several persons in the adjoining room talking about her. She told the superior that they "spoke like foreigners and were talking about a $5m ransom." Seeing a coat and hat on the wall of the room, she grabbed them and ran out on the street. There she met a policeman, and, without telling him the story of the kidnapping, asked him to direct her to a taxicab stand, in order that she might be able to return to Frederick.

When told that the fare would be $.6, she requested that the money be received from Father Kane, as she only had $11 with her, which she said was in the pocket of the coat she took from the house. On arriving at Frederick, she stumbled into the vestibule of the convent, where she fainted. While not believing the taxicab driver, who gave his name as Stewart Cuthkart, of Baltimore, to be implicated in the kidnapping, Father Kane requested police to hold him "as a suspicious person and for questioning."

Father Kane said he could not account for the attempt to kidnap Sister Cecilia. "We are going to investigate this affair," he said, "and will not be satisfied until we have apprehended all persons involved."

Sister Cecilia could give Father Kane no idea of who her kidnappers were. She said she had watched them in front of the building for more than an hour before she was kidnapped but was unable to give a proper description of either.

A MODEL YOUNG LADY IN WORLDLY LIFE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 12.—Sister Cecilia, formerly Marie Whalen, of Verona, a suburb of Pittsburgh, is well known in his section. A year ago, Sister Cecilia took up studies in the parochial school at Verona, and during last August she became a sister of Notre Dame. She left Verona for Frederick, last September.

Both her parents are dead. Her grandmother and number of other relatives reside in Verona.

Father Duwell, pastor of the Catholic church at Verona, said tonight that Sister Cecilia, who, he declared, was about 24 years old, was a member of his parish for years. "She was a model young lady," the priest said, "and was well thought of by all with whom she came in contact."

When informed that Father Kane at Notre Dame, had expressed the belief that Sister Cecilia had been kidnapped, Father Duwell expressed great surprise. "I know of no reason why Sister Cecilia would leave Notre Dame," he declared. She was thoroughly satisfied, he added.

"RED" SCARES INVENTED BY PRIVATE DETECTIVES

Chicago, Feb. 12.—An amazing story of intrigue and deception was unfolded today when Frank P. Walsh, attorney for twenty-two communists facing trial at St. Joseph, Mich., for advocating criminal syndicalism began taking the deposition of Albert Ballin, alias Balanow, self-confessed spy.

By Balanow's testimony Mr. Walsh is seeking to show that radical organizations and "red" scares were invented at will by private detective agencies to assist them in collecting large sums from banking and other interests for the purpose of investigating an imaginary radical menace.

Balanow, in a story that ranged from sordid details of double crossing and the double-double cross to high comedy, swore he had worked for the W. J. Burns and the Thiel detective agencies at the same time as an expert on radical questions; that he had sold the secret reports of the Thiel agency to the Burns people; that an official of the Burns agency had picked his pocket and appropriated other Thiel reports, and that Allan O. Myers, head of the radical bureau of the Burns agency, had proposed that he make bombs and get well known radicals to throw them, so Burns men could arrest the radicals.

TRUSTEE CHARGED WITH RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

Boston, Feb. 12.—S. Leland Monlague of Cambridge, sole trustee of the Inter-City Trust Company, was arrested tonight on a secret indictment charging larceny, conspiracy to sell and receiving stolen goods. The indictment, in 16 counts, covers alleged activities involving $50,000 in connection with sales of stock.

The complainants, 15 in number, are mostly women. The largest loss claimed was $24,660, by Mrs. Mabel S. Noyes of Newburyport.

Sale of securities of the Inter-City Trust, described as a voluntary and unincorporated company carrying on a real estate business in New York and elsewhere for three years, is forbidden in this state November 20, under the "Blue Sky" laws. The company was petitioned into bankruptcy in federal court here December last, by Boston and New York creditors.

CANADA TO IMPORT COAL FROM GREAT BRITAIN

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—The Canadian government looks to development of its domestic fuel resources and to import from Great Britain to solve its fuel problems, Charles Stewart, minister of mines, declared in the house of commons today. He said no official steps were being taken in the Dominion to import coal from the United States or elsewhere. "Investigations," he declared, are being carried on to further develop our domestic fuel resources, especially in those parts of the country where fuel shortages occur, with a view to reducing the amount of fuel imported. It would appear also that some steps are being taken by private interests in Great Britain to secure a permanent place in the Canadian market for domestic coal."

HOUSE NEAR DUNDALK BLOWN UP BY A MINE

Belfast, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—Annskaugh House, near Dundalk, the property of A. N. Sheridan, clerk of the crown in County Louth and a close friend of Cardinal Logue, was blown up last night.

Two priests had just left the mansion when a body of armed men appeared and told Mr. Sheridan they had orders to blow up the house because he was a government official. He asked time in which to get his wife, three children and servants to a place of safety. This was granted. A mine then was exploded, reducing the house to ruins.

FRANCE SEIZES TERRITORY; GERMANY RENEWS PROTEST

Copy of Note of Protest Received in Washington Declares That France is "Taking Advantage of the Defencelessness of the German Nation"—A London Dispatch Says That Germany is Prepared to Honor Bonds for 500,000,000 Gold Marks Turned Over to Belgium Six Months Ago.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Latest seizures of German territory made by French military forces in the Ruhr have been made the subject of a renewed protest by the German government.

The note of protest, a copy of which has reached diplomatic quarters here, characterizes the French occupation as "one of purely arbitrary action and force, accentuated by taking advantage of the defenselessness of the German nation."

Approval expressed by the Rhineland commission of the measures taken by the French government, the note said, "does not legalize these measures which violate the treaty and likewise does not give a legal title to the illegal ord[illegible] of the R[illegible] and Commissaire.

"The approval shows also," however" the note continued, "that the inter-allied Rhineland commission lets itself be made the tool of French policy.

"The French government in the note dated February 2 and transmitted to the German embassy at Paris on February 4 reproaches the German government of a violation of the treaty of Versailles, a violation which was said to have occurred by the German administration of railways, having stopped the service of the international trains — Paris-Bucharest and Paris-Munich-Prague. The French government at the same time announced that for this alleged violation of the treaty it would occupy as sanction the German towns of Offenburg and Appenweier. The occupation of both towns actually took place on the day the note was handed to the German embassy at Paris.

"The German administration of railways was on account of shortage of coal and other difficulties of transport, caused by the Franco-Belgian invasion of the Ruhr, obliged to suspend a great number of international and German railway services. Among these were also the trains mentioned in the note. In view of the true and circumstances under which the stoppage of the services of the two trains took place, such stoppage obviously amounted to an emergency measure of a transitory nature wherby there can be no question of a violation of the treaty.

"But even if, formally speaking, the treaty had been violated, it would mock every state of peace if the French government took occasions of such minor importance as the suspension of two train services to send without further notice its troops into German towns.

"The French government has indeed, with a view of concealing the apparent misproportion between the cause of reproach and the French measures, tried to enumerate further alleged violations of the treaty by Germany.

"In reply to this the German government refers to its former exchange of notes with the French government. The German government points out, that in every single case of a reproach made of having violated its obligations by detailed argument refuted such reproach without the French government having even tried to refute on its side the argument put forth by Germany.

"The French government does not mention a legal title on which it claims to have imposed its sanctions. In this case therefore, the French government does not even dispose of visionary grounds for imposing sanctions. In reality the whole case amounts to one of purely arbitrary action and force, committed by taking advantage of the defencelessness of the German nation. The German government formally protests against this procedure before the entire world.

"The Rhineland convention circumscribes the material as well as the local scope of the powers of the Rhineland commission. According to article one of said convention the territory subject to the competence of the Rhineland commission comprises only those parts of German territory, the occupation of which was provided for by Article Five of the armistice of November 11, 1918, and by Article Seven of the additional convention of January 16, 1919, the towns of Appenweir and Offenburg lie beyond this territory and no article of the Rhineland convention or of the treaty of Versailles gives the Rhineland commission the right, of its own accord, to extend the scope of its competence.

"The approval expressed by the Rhineland commission of the measures taken by the French government does not legalize these measures which violate the treaty and likewise does not give a legal title to the illegal ordinance of the Rhineland commission. The approval shows, however, anew, that the inter-allied Rhineland commission lets itself be made the tool of French policy. The German government protests also against this violation of the treaty and of right."

ESSEN BOYCOTTS THE FRENCH AND BELGIANS

London, Feb. 12.—The boycott against the French and Belgians began at Essen today says a Dortmund despatch to the Times. All the hotels refused to serve the French who thereupon cleared everyone out of the Handelshof hotel, driving the guests into the square, where crowds collected. French patrol then proceeded to disperse them with bayonets and riding whips, and finally a machine gun was brought into service before the square was completely cleared.

In the afternoon the workers in the Kaiserhof hotel, having refused to serve the French, were ordered to leave, and departed in a body.

There have been several cases of looting today but nobody was injured. On all the walls, shop windows and doorways in Essen and other places in the Ruhr there suddenly appeared this morning, as if by magic, little labels the size of a tramway ticket, exhorting the population to obey only orders from the German government. The blockade against steel products is in full force, and the Germans admit that they are powerless to oppose it.

It is reported from Duesseldorf that reinforcements, especially of engineering companies destined for the Ruhr are arriving continually. It is learned that the Belgians are pressing the French to increase the severity of their measures in the Ruhr.

New Haven, Feb. 12.—Abraham Lincoln as a champion of state's rights was painted by Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Bingham at a Lincoln dinner here tonight.

IMPROVEMENT IN PEACE OUTLOOK IN NEAR EAST

Constantinople, Feb. [illegible] —(By The A. P.)—A distinct improvement in the situation respecting both Smyrna and the peace outlook is reflected in official quarters tonight. There appears however to be another epidemic, that of appendicitis among high school pupils. An open smile

Pretty teeth often form a woman's chief attraction. Countless women get them now by removing film.

What Women Lose By Dingy Teeth
—Why do it?

Dingy teeth rob women of a major charm. Not beauty only, but that added grace which lies in the open smile.

Millions of women have found a way to whiter teeth, also to better protection. You meet them everywhere today—with teeth you envy, maybe.

Will you not learn how they get them—by this delightful test?

Due to film

That viscous film you feel on teeth is what clouds them. And it often wrecks them. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to that unsightly film.

Ways to end it

Tooth troubles were increasing until very few escaped. So dental science sought for ways to fight that film. In time two ways were found. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved those methods. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. Those two great film combatants were embodied in it.

The name of that tooth paste is Pepsodent. Careful people of some 50 nations now employ it daily, largely by dental advice.

What must be done

Research also proved two other things essential. So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Old-time tooth pastes, it was found, seriously diminished those great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth.

Watch it act

Use Pepsodent for ten days. See for yourself what it does. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Then decide by what you see and feel. Judge what is best for you and yours. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

Avoid Harmful Grit
Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At The Broadway Theatre.

A very pleasing programme of B. F. Keith vaudeville and photoplays was presented at the Broadway theatre last night and will continue through Wednesday.

The vaudeville programme opened with Mella and Bruin in a novelty offering, "It's a Bear." Bruin, who is a real bear, performs on roller skates and is really comical.

Harry Autrum and Betty Vale presenting "Sisters of Rhythm." They have some clever songs and comedy.

Lorraine, Howard and Pay Lind presented a harmonious comedy song-logue called "Wedding Bells." Their act is brimful of good comedy and singing.

Ruth and Gene Fifer, called Broadway's Own Youthful Stars, appeared in "Original Dances" that was a delight to all. The act is gorgeously and uniquely costumed and one of the real novelties of the act is the most gorgeous set of scenery ever seen in this city.

One reel and a half of spellbinding situations created the audience of the Broadway theatre last night when the sensational two-part photo-drama of a modern, Miss Neptune for admiration [illegible] the screen. The picture [illegible] caused more talk than many a film of recent times is Will Nigh's latest masterpiece, "Notriety."

Proving itself to be an epic of the screen, "The Pride of Palomar," a Cosmopolitan picturization for Paramount of Peter B. Kyne's celebrated novel of the same name, was warmly received on its presentation at the Strand theatre last night. Marjorie Wow and Forrest Stanley were the featured players of an all-star cast, and both acquitted themselves with highly enjoyable results.

"The Pride of Palomar" is an excellent story and doubtless will prove to be one of the outstanding successes of the current screen season. Filled with action and lined with high American ideals is this great drama, laid in California. The cast is an exceptionally powerful one, including as it does, James Barrow, Joseph Dowling, Alfred Allen, George Nichols, Warner Oland, Mrs. Jessie Hebbard, Percy Williams, Mrs. George Hernandez, Edward Brady and Carmen Arscella.

The Educational Christie comedy, "Hazel From Hollywood," pleased as did the Screen Graphic. These attractions can be seen today and Wednesday.

"Nero" is Climax of Progress.

Very few persons will be inclined to differ with the producer in his estimate of "Nero." Offering, as it does, every opportunity for massed effects and vital incidents and dealing with an important historical period, it was only necessary for a producer with the vision and the bank roll to engage a director and have him put a company to work. Then, after a year of the right kind of endeavor, it would be possible to announce that a master-picture had been completed. It proved so in this case, and picture patrons are assured that "Nero" leads the procession when it comes to big doings in Screenland.

It is difficult to decide which feature of the picture to mention first. Story, production, sensational features and photography, are of equal merit. The acting is splendid, the novel and well-chosen cast having been engaged on the other side of the ocean, except in the case of Violet Mersereau, who plays a Christian princess.

Nero is acted by a French artist named Jacques Grenilla. He is every inch the emperor as history paints him. Alexander Salvini as Horatius, Guido Trento as Tullius, Paulette Duvas as Poppaea, and Edy Darclea as Acte have important roles.

College Convocation.

DUNN RELEASED FROM OBLIGATION TO SELL MEMBERS OF ORIOLE INFIELD

New York, Feb. 13.—Adoption of a 22 game schedule, reiteration of its refusal to accept players from the major leagues to whom the draft [illegible] attached, and release of Jack Dunn, Baltimore owner, from an obligation to dispose of three of the stars of his championship club, [illegible] the principal developments today at the annual spring meeting of the International league.

Opposition to the draft scheme of the majors, already voiced by the league was put formally on record in an emphatic resolution, adopted unanimously.

The resolution stated that "the International league again refuses to accept any contracts with such provisions (namely, the draft provision) and will refuse to allow any player to sign under such contract to play in any of its games" and that "such action on the part of the American and National leagues is in violation of the major-minor league agreement (of 1921) and void so far as this league is concerned."

The action freeing Dunn from his agreement to sell three of his stars to the majors was viewed in baseball circles as a counter-blow against the two leagues in the draft controversy, despite a denial by John Conway Toole, president of the International league, that there was any connection between the two.

It was pointed out, however, that Dunn was now permitted to drop negotiations with major league clubs many of whom have sought several of his players during the winter, and that the league was in a position to bargain on a higher basis in retaliation for the major's draft attitude.

"We're not worried about what the majors want to do," declared President Toole. "We are not looking for a battle but I guess we can get along all right with what we have."

Dunn's agreement, made voluntarily last summer to the international league owners, was partially fulfilled when he sold Jack Bentley, southpaw batting and hitting star, to the New York Giants for $65,000. It was understood that he had received offers for the purchase of his other players, notably Joe Boley, shortstop, and Max [illegible]

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS.

It is the right attitude when the senate agrees to devote a half of each day to the debt refunding bill and the shipping act, and it is to be hoped that there will not be a needless prolongation of the debate.

This is a compromise for the shipping bill had the right of way, but inasmuch as both are important and call for a vote at this session, as was pointed out by the president last week, whatever is done to advance each to a vote must be regarded as progress.

From all indications it doesn't appear that the opposition to the debt refunding measure will be large. The house has indicated what the sentiment of the country is and efforts may be well directed to the elimination of waste time in its consideration.

The feature that may receive extra attention is that which calls for the refunding of other debts upon the same basis. That would permit the commission to go ahead as rapidly as it is possible and deal with the other foreign loans. They could adjust them, if such was agreed to by the other countries, without waiting for the reassembling of congress. The idea is certainly a fair one inasmuch as it could not be expected that the others would receive less favorable terms, even though the conditions might seem to warrant more favorable ones. The idea of dealing with them all on the same basis cannot be regarded otherwise than just and to delegate such authority to the commission would not be abandoning any rights by congress.

The importance of disposing of this bill is fully recognized. On the other hand there is no good reason why the shipping bill should be prevented from coming to a vote. It is like pulling teeth but the president is holding the senate to its duty.

BERGDOLL'S PROPERTY.

The World war veterans may differ upon many steps that are proposed, whether they happen to concern them or not, but there is little reason to believe that there will be anything but one mind amongst them concerning the favorable report by the house committee on interstate commerce of that provision in the alien property return bill which would prevent the return of any of his property to Grover Cleveland Bergdoll.

There isn't any real sympathy to be found for Bergdoll, except it be among the other slackers and draft dodgers. Bergdoll was determined that he would not serve his country, in that he appears to have been successful. He dodged his responsibilities for a long time and when caught and brought to trial he still made it evident that he had not weakened in his determination, and following his conviction and imprisonment he managed to get away and out of the country quite as cleverly as he had dodged army service.

Bergdoll has chuckled on frequent occasions over the manner in which he has outwitted this government. That this government is through such wealth as he has here and which the government has taken charge of quite the same as it did the property of certain aliens.

While the time may have come for the return of some of this property, inasmuch as the reason for holding it further has been overcome, such does not appear to be the case regarding Bergdoll, and the legislation that is aimed at preventing such return will strike a responsive chord in the hearts of more than the veterans of the late war. Bergdoll himself may hardly expect any different treatment, although the refusal to return the property will not mean a squaring of accounts between him and the government.

APPEALING FOR RUSSIANS.

When the appeal is made for further assistance in order to prevent starvation from claiming millions in Russia the question naturally arises as to what Russia is doing to help its own people. The answer is not an impressive one if reports are correct for it seems to be the attitude of soviet Russia that it would be the best policy for Russia if some millions perished, since it insists upon selling and sending out of the country grain that could be utilized for the relief of the people threatened with starvation.

As long as the rest of the world is ready and willing to buy and pay the cost of transporting foodstuffs over long distances for the purpose of sustaining the lives of those in Russia who are without food, there is no protest from the soviet. That all operates indirectly to the benefit of the soviet government is that cannot come from outside sources, to utilize the [illegible] in pile up [illegible] or [illegible] other countries [illegible] if those in other countries are not responsive, they can die. There doesn't seem to be any responsibility assumed by the soviets concerning the need of sustaining life.

Millions have been poured into that country for the relief of the starving, especially the children. Of that which has been given there was more than enough to feed the eleven million last winter so that there will be sufficient to take care of the three million helpless children until the next harvest. The need is going to be for some five million adults past whose doors the soviet government is shipping enough grain for export to keep the wolf from the door. Humanity in distress is seldom abandoned, and the only thing that will cause hesitation now will be the indirect benefit which the soviets will get from such help which they are able to administer themselves.

PLAYING WITH TROUBLE.

If the Angora government wants to precipitate trouble in the near east there is no question but what it can succeed, but if it carries the idea that it will be the winner instead of the loser thereby it is time for a sober second thought. The troublesome and defiant attitude that it is displaying at the present time is certainly a peculiar development of the Lausanne conference.

At Lausanne it was found that the allies were not as solidly united as they ought to be but when Turkey goes to banking upon that in the hopes of bringing about a greater division it is due for an awakening, especially if it resorts to the use of violence which is threatened at Smyrna.

The Kemalists have been encouraged to assume their haughty attitude because of the success that they had against the Greeks, and because of the evidence which has accumulated from time to time in their dealings with the allied powers to impress them with their ability to drive in such a wedge that no matter what Turkey does it will not be obliged to withstand united opposition. This doesn't give much credit to some of the powers, but it is apparently the basis for the Turkish conduct.

No greater mistake could be made, however, than to rate the allies as seriously divided. If Turkey believes to the contrary let it try to prove it. That will quickly show what the situation is, despite the failure of Great Britain to approve the action of the French in the Ruhr.

Could there have been better evidence of the solidarity of the allies at Lausanne the result of that conference would unquestionably have been different. There was right where it was needed in order to discount the Turkish elation over the signal defeat of the Greeks, but if the Kemalists figure they can come out victorious in the stand they are taking they are likely to find that they are unconsciously dealing in a careless manner with dynamite.

MUCH NEEDED ADVICE.

It is because good, sound advice is too often disregarded that many find themselves the victims of sharpers. It is for that reason that the warning issued by the United States treasury should get the attention it deserves when it tells those holders of war savings certificates, Victory notes or other government obligations that they should be careful how they convert them into other securities.

The government is solicitous for the protection of all those who have invested in its securities, and there is likewise an excellent opportunity for any others to apportion to themselves the advice offered. Those who have money invested in any manner have the best of reasons to properly guard it, and to see that they are not inveigled into parting with investments for something that is far less valuable or possibly worthless, through the alluring promises made by swindlers or other irresponsible individuals.

Thus when holders of government securities are urged not to part with them without getting full value or securing in return sound investments, through consultation of those in whom there is reason to place confidence, they may be receiving a service unconsciously, but it is none the less a real one.

The warning against wildcat promoters and gold brick peddlers is an old story but it deserves repetition frequently. There are always those who need it.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Seldom has a political speech in the senate come back as a boomerang hitting the speaker square in the face, as did the recent facetious attempt of Senator Pat Harrison to belittle the leadership of Senator Lodge and put the several factions of the republican side of the chamber into fighting trim. The Harrison effort resulted very much as does the attempts of outsiders to settle family quarrels. The republicans may differ and squabble among themselves, but they wouldn't stand for an attack by the sharp-tongued orator from down in Mississippi. The Harrison speech drew the factions closer together instead of separating them and moreover gave Senator Watson of Indiana the chance to make one of the best republican campaign stump speeches on record, at the close of which no member of the democratic side of the chamber rose to refute. Taken all in all the Mississippian suffered from the comeback of his own assertions and not only was Senator Lodge eulogized without dissent as the chosen leader of the next congress, but President Harding came in for the lion's share of the glory and only the strict "no applause rule" of the senate prevented an outburst of applause when the Indiana man finished "showing up" the motives of Harrison.

Harrison is witty, clever and has an unbridled tongue. Personally, he is on friendly terms with the republicans of the senate but never loses an opportunity to whack away at them in his own peculiar way. The galleries tittered at the Harrison witticisms—so did the senators, even those who were hit by his comparisons. But when Senator Lodge rose and remarked the senate was assembled to transact the government's business and it was no time for trivial talk, stated his position and that of the republicans in the senate, and then took his seat, the galleries listened attentively and with respect. Then up rose Senator "Jim" Watson of Indiana, conceded to be one of the best and most eloquent republican speakers who ever took the stump in the heat of political campaigns. And Watson was never in better fettle than when he took a whack at Harrison standing just across the middle aisle that separates the republicans from the democrats. The two men were scarcely ten feet apart. Both are able, and with the ready tongue that makes political debate in the senate red hot. Mr. Watson said he didn't know why he had been dragged into the fray, as had been done by Mr. Harrison, when comparing the "species" found on the republican side of the chamber to the animals out at the zoo. "I am only a bystander," said Mr. Watson, "but like most innocent bystanders, I am the one that gets shot." Then he launched out in eulogy of Senator Lodge as a floor leader, and of President Harding, and with keen wit and many sharp thrusts at Harrison, put President Harding in nomination for reelection in 1924 with the unanimous support of the republicans of the country, predicted a splendid republican victory in that election, giving his reasons in forceful terms, and after asserting the seeming discords in the party are not of a nature to may a party break in the next election, ended by saying "So far as the republican party is concerned there is no devision as to national leadership, and no discord as to leadership in the senate." And in that, Mr. Watson spoke the truth. Of course there are wide differences of opinion, many factions and so called blocs in the senate on both sides of the chamber. But it is a fact, that so far as can be learned there is no opposition to the continued floor leadership of Mr. Lodge. Men may differ with him but they acknowledge his superiority for the position and accept him as the leader of the next congress. Lodge is in fine fettle and excellent health, and whatever stories may be circulated to the contrary will be the choice of the incoming senate for leadership.

In fact there is no indication that the present leadership and prestige of New England will be diminished in the incoming congress, insinuations to the contrary notwithstanding.

Take for instance the Connecticut delegation. The senior senator, Mr. Brandegee, stands at the top of the list of fearless and acknowledged leaders of the republicans. He is chairman of one important committee, and holds high rank on others, including foreign relations, which at this moment is second to none. Mr. McLean, junior senator, is chairman of the committee on banking and currency, which is of the utmost importance now the financial situation the world over is in unrest and uncertainty.

In the house, Col. Tilson of New Haven stands high on ways and means; Congressman Merritt is equally high up on interstate and foreign commerce; Freeman of the Norwich district is well up on rivers and harbors; Glynn is chairman of a committee; Fenn is on banking and currency and thus all the Connecticut members both in senate and house hold positions of importance and prestige, and are filling them with marked ability.

There is little or no chance of opposition to Senator Lodge in the senate as leader of the republican forces, and chairman of foreign relations; there is no opposition worth the name in sight to Speaker Gillett for reelection to the highest office the house of representatives can bestow on one of its members. By virtue of his position as vice president, Mr. Coolidge will continue to preside over the senate; Congressman Winslow of Massachusetts will continue as the chairman of the powerful committee on interstate and foreign commerce, on which committee he has the able assistance of Merritt of Connecticut and other New England men; John Jacob Rogers of Lowell, is ranking member on foreign affairs. On the committee on ways and means, New England has Treadway of Massachusetts and Tilson of Connecticut, postoffices has Paige of Massachusetts as ranking member in the next congress, and Watson of New Hampshire on appropriations, so the list might run on at length, the men from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut in the house are all high up on big committees. In the senate, Lodge, Moses, Brandegee, McLean, Hale, Fernald, are high up in committee assignments with other New England senators following close in the confidence and esteem of their colleagues, Watson of Indiana was right. There is no split in the republican ranks of the senate beyond factional opinions, the so-called insurgents apparently have no idea of trying to break away from the rank and file when it comes to formal party leadership, however much they may differ on measures concerning their sections of the country. They know they could not stand alone, and win out.

The German embassy was the scene of rather a drab type of gayety when Ambassador and Madam Wiedfeldt gave their first official reception a few days ago. Practically all the women of the diplomatic corps, except those who were themselves holding receptions that day, did the German envoy the courtesy of calling and there was a goodly sprinkling of women from senatorial and congressional families, but the setting was wrong for a brilliant affair such as formerly marked the receptions given by German ambassadors before the war. The big house is sparsely and frugally furnished. The great portraits that covered the walls are gone—the splendid rugs and heavy velvet draperies have given place to simple furnishings and plain scrim curtains; in the state dining room a simple lunch was served and although there was no "social frost" the luxury that makes an official reception a success, was entirely lacking. But cordiality marked the occasion so far as personal greetings were concerned.

One of the bills before congress, on which there are now being held hearings, is the Frothingham bill to permit rental allowance to men at training camps which were ordered to be paid back to the government on account of a misinterpretation of the national defense act when the men were in camp last summer. The Frothingham bill will prevent a heavy loss to some of the New England states, as hundreds of New England men are affected by it.

INCOME TAX FACTS

BUSINESS EXPENDITURES.
No. 13.

Business expenditures are not always business expenses within the meaning of the income tax law. For example, a merchant may build an addition to his warehouse at a cost of $100,000. This is a capital expenditure for an addition to his assets. Capital expenditures are not deductible.

Distinction is made between expenditures for an asset and expenditures in connection with an asset. If the merchant should, during the year, spend $500 for repairs to his warehouse, such as painting the roof or replacing broken windows, he may deduct such amount as a business expense.

Medical, law or other professional books, machinery, tools, implements, or surgical instruments purchased by a taxpayer for use in his trade or profession, and which are of a permanent character, are capital assets and their cost is not allowed as a deduction. A farmer may not deduct the cost of a threshing machine or tractor, these being capital expenditures, but is allowed to deduct the cost of hoes, rakes and small tools which are used up in course of a year or two in farming operation.

The purchase price of an automobile, even when used wholly for business or professional purposes, is not deductible, but is regarded as investment of capital. The cost of gasoline, repairs and upkeep of an automobile is deductible if used wholly in business. If used partly for business and partly for the pleasure or convenience of the taxpayer and his family, such cost should be apportioned accordingly.

THE NEW LEASE

"I get so sick of this apartment life," sighed Mrs. Walkup, "that I don't know what to do."

"What happened today?" asked Walkup.

"Well," she explained, "I had just put Bobbie out on the porch in his buggy for a good nap in the fresh air when the janitor decided to brush off the porches. I haven't known him to do that before more than three times in all of the years we've lived here. But, of course, when he saw the baby carriage out there he couldn't rest until it was taken in.

"So I brought Bobbie in and put him in the bedroom, where it was nice and sunny. Then the man upstairs arose and began doing his morning exercises. They may be beneficial to the one doing them, but they're awfully rough on the neighbors.

"The man upstairs has just reached what they call stationary running, and so he stands in one spot and makes his feet jump up and down as though he were rapidly running.

"It wakened Bobbie instantly and he began to scream.

"Then the man upstairs became irritated by the crying and began to tap on the radiator. The idea! Such impertinence!

"I got things settled adown after awhile and decided to write to your folks. You never write to them yourself, and, no doubt, they think I keep you from it. Anyhow, I sat down at the desk, and everything was so peaceful and sunny that I felt like a millionaire's wife—but it didn't last. No, it wasn't three minutes before the woman next door started the phonograph. Honestly, she must have been using the records that were brought over in the ark or perhaps the Mayflower.

"They were all old and worn, but she played them right through. She never got down to the new ones, if she has any. You know I have always insisted that anything would be better than this modern jazz, but, Homer Walkup, those old things were terrible!

"I couldn't write at all, because I kept singing the words to those old songs. So I closed the desk and let it go for today. But there was not to be any rest for me. The cleaner brought home Mrs. Anderson's blue tricotine and left it with me; Mrs. Bollingby's laundryman called; the Smith-Jones' groceries came and the man brought in three full boxes of groceries. I didn't mind so much taking care of the things, only I had to watch and see when Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Bollingby and Mrs. Smith-Jones came home, so that I could give them their things.

"The day had been so kind of cut up by that time that I went out and stirred up a little cake for supper and iced it and then thought that I'd lie down and take a nap to be nice and fresh for tonight. But was there such a thing as a nap for me—an apartment dweller? There was not! Emphatically, no!

"I had no sooner touched my head to the pillow than Mrs. Bollingby came home with some new music. And, Homer Walkup, every last piece was high notes that she could hardly reach with a ladder, let alone her voice. She tried first one piece and then another, nothing very successfully.

"Sometimes she would beat the piano with one finger and hum the melody and other times she would sing loudly with a gentle piano accompaniment that was wrong just about every third note. But what is one to do when she lives in an apartment? I arose, rasped and harried in every nerve. It is no way to live, Homer Walkup, no way to live."

"Well," remarked Walkup, as he bit the end off his cigar, "then there is no use discussing the letter I had from the agent today. He said that we would have to decide tonight whether or not we wanted to renew the lease for another year. If we want to sign we have to do so tonight and drop it in the mail box, but, of course, I can see that you don't want to consider staying here."

"Homer Walkup," said his wife, "what possesses you to say that? Of course we want to stay. Where else could we find so attractive a flat with such good heat and hot water; nearly all the neighbors we know and like and—and—everything. Sign the lease right away, dear, and we'll drop it in the corner mail box on our way to the movies."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Thomas C. Darlington, who says that diet and hygiene have added fifteen year to the span of life, is an eminent New York physician who served for some years at the head of the New York board of health. Born in Brooklyn in 1858, he received his scholastic training at New York University and his professional education at the College of Physicians and Surgeons. After two years of practice in Newark and a similar period spent in professional work in Bisbee, Arizona, he returned to New York city in 1891 and soon attained high standing in the medical profession. He has been professor of sanitary science in Fordham University and has been active in numerous medical, social welfare, patriotic and othe rorganizations. Wives of Famous Men

Eva Violetti, Wife of David Garrick.

On infrequent occasions we learn about great people of the stage who are able not only to keep the marriage knot tied throughout their lives, but who are able also to enjoy being bound. Such a person was David Garrick, famous actor-manager of the 18th century, whose wife was Eva Marie Violetti, beautiful Latin dancing girl of the Haymarket theatre.

One of the most romantic figures of a highly glamorous period, it is only natural that David Garrick should choose with an unerring instinct a highly colored and romantic love affair. At the time of their marriage, which occurred in 1749, not long after David had recovered from his love affair with the actress, Peg Woffington, Eva Violetti was a favorite among members of the nobility and nightly crowded the famous old theatre. Her great beauty, as well as the extraordinary grace of her dancing, had won for her a brilliant following. In addition to this, her rather mysterious antecedents shed a rosy glow upon her.

A number of stories were in circulation about her at the time but the one given the most credence, and probably the true one, was that she was the daughter of the Earl of Burlington and a young Italian mother of high birth. Gossip had it at the time of the marriage that the Earl of Burlington had made a $30,000 settlement on her.

Apparently, Eva was gifted with brains as well as beauty. At any rate, she had the gift of comparative silence, which frequently passes for great wisdom.

"She was cheerfully grave," writes one commentator, "did not speak much, but was followed and addressed by everybody."

David and Eva were married 30 years and spent not a single day apart. Eva, in speaking of David after his death, told a friend their secret of happiness, one that might serve all husbands for all times.

"He was never a husband to me," she said. "He was always my lover."

Lots of men would rather go to the other place after death if there were any marrying in heaven.

Stories That Recall Others

And Wife.

A certain man and his young bride had gone south on their wedding trip. They were stopping at a fashionable hotel in a Florida city and as he proceeded to the hotel register she waited several paces in the rear. It seemed to him that someone had announced to the bellboy, the porter, the clerk and everyone about that he was just married for they waited and watched eagerly. He wrote somethings and started toward his wife.

"Haven't you forgotten something, sir?" the clerk asked.

The husband turned quickly, sized up the situation in his mind hurriedly and with a snap of his finger, characteristic of him, he said:

"By dad, I most certainly have."

With that he returned to the register and to his own name, which he had already written, he added "and wife."

Camden Man's Amazing Message to Rheumatics

After Suffering Intense Agony for Many Years—He Wants to Tell Others.

Dr. Brigadell: I simply had to write and tell you what your wonderful Camphorole has done for me. For many years I suffered the tortures of Rheumatism as only those who have it know. At the same time I had a terrible itch and, covered with sores, the sharp pains were so severe, I could not sleep. Had to get up and rub and scratch. It almost drove me crazy. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine I was told to take, which only left me worse. I could not bend my knees. I am a stonecutter by trade and had to give up my work. Seeing your advertisement in a paper, I thought I would take another chance and told my daughter to get me a package of Camphorole. You can imagine my surprise after using Camphorole, I started to get better right away. After using two jars of Camphorole I am well and happy and have gone back to work. I shall never forget the day I took a chance on Camphorole. After all the years I suffered, it feels good to be well again. Robert W. Tomalin, 4917 High St., Camden, N. J.

TWO NORWICH MEN SPEAK ON LINCOLN BEFORE CHURCH CLUBS

Abraham Lincoln's birthday anniversary on Monday provided a topic for brief addresses before two meetings of church men's clubs Monday evening, when General William A. Aiken gave personal recollections of Lincoln before the Brotherhood of the Congregational church and Judge John H. Barnes spoke of some of the aspects of Lincoln's life before the men's banquet of the City Bible class at the Central Baptist church.

Brotherhood Meeting.

At the meeting of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church held at the Community house it was voted that the club give $25 each to the Boy Scouts and the Salvation Army in their drive for funds.

The vote was taken after Ex-Mayor Herbert M. Lerou had spoken words of praise of both organizations, outlining the work carried on in Norwich by both and describing the benefits derived from having such organizations within its boundaries. Mr. Lerou also outlined the work of the departments and various committees of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce of which organization he is the president.

During the evening a message was received from Gen. William A. Aiken from the Boy Scouts of America relating to the anniversary of the birth of the great American patriot and president, Abraham Lincoln, and General Aiken gave a most interesting talk on reminiscenses of the martyred president.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the church presided over the meeting in the absence of President Nathan A. Gibbs and made several announcements of interest to the members.

At 6.30 o'clock a bountiful supper was served by the women of the church, the menu being as follows:

Tomato Soup
Crackers
Hot Beef Loaf, Baked Potatoes
Cold Slaw
Jelly Rolls
Ginger Bread
Whipped Cream Coffee

The committee in charge of the supper comprised Mrs. Harry Blackburn, Mrs. Henry Gee, Mrs. Harold Carpenter, Miss Marion Beebe, Mrs. A. F. Noran, Miss Villette Peck and Miss Grace Rogers.

City Bible Class.

Under the auspices of the City Bible class, a venison supper was given at 6.30 in Bushnell chapel for the men of the Central Baptist church with an attendance of 100. The deer that furnished the feature on the menu was shot at Lily Bay, Moosehead Lake, Maine, last October by H. R. Woodward, who contributed the venison for the supper, for which a fine menu that ended with cake, ice cream and coffee was served by the women of the church.

James L. Case was song leader for the supper hour and two of the selections that won loud applause were by the clerical quartette, Rev. Dr. D. A. Pitt, Rev. R. Daniel Trick, Rev. E. C. Dunbar and Rev. Joseph Grosa of Monson, Me., and by the legal sextette, Judge Lucius Brown, Judge Allyn L. Brown, Judge John H. Barnes, Judge A. F. Libby, Charles L. Stewart and Gilbert S. Raymond. William A. Lund was heard in a fine solo and Mr. Woodward briefly related some of his experiences in gathering beech nuts in Maine, samples of which he had distributed to the diners.

In the absence because of illness of Rev. James McGee of New Haven, who had been expected to speak, Judge Barnes was called on by Toastmaster C. D. Noyes, president of the class, to speak upon Lincoln.

Judge Barnes called attention to the fact that almost nothing is known of the parentage or early life of Lincoln, in fact the great president would never give any information about that period in his life and said of it that it was merely the simple annals of the poor. It is known, however, that he was born in Kentucky, Feb. 12, 1809. Lincoln evidently thought little of his father, but said that all the good influences of his early life had come from his mother. He was a self-educated man, reading such few books as he could obtain, the Bible, Aesop's Fables, and a few others. He had his love affairs and gave his heart to Mary S. Owens, who died shortly before he had expected to marry her. With her death came sorrow into his life and when he did marry it was not to a woman he loved for his heart was always with Mary Owens. The woman he did marry married him for pique because he had once refused her.

Judge Barnes spoke of Lincoln's wit which he said he believed the great president used to illustrate a point but it was equally to cover up the sadness of his life. Judge Barnes gave several illustrations of Lincoln's inimitable wit and spoke of his great modesty.

Referring to Lincoln's attitude toward the Bible, Judge Barnes quoted Lincoln's words that the Bible is the best gift God ever gave to man and that all things most desirable for man's welfare, here and hereafter, are to be found in it. The man who could write that, concluded Judge Barnes, was a good Christian man.

Rev. Mr. Gross spoke briefly of the present day call for men to give the best that is in them and of the great opportunity for men of the church to do and give their best for righteousness, peace, good will and prosperity among peoples and nations.

General Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. gave some reminiscences of a visit to Lincoln's old home in Springfield, Illinois.

Mr. Case, who had visited the men's class at the First Baptist church, New London, last Sunday, brought from them a challenge to the Central Baptist men's class for an attendance contest during the Sundays in March, which was immediately accepted with enthusiasm by the Central Baptist men.

Rev. R. Daniel Trick of the Third Baptist church, who is soon to go to a pastorate at Bridgeport, spoke briefly and was followed by Rev. Dr. Pitt, the pastor, who impressed the men deeply as he spoke of the power and possibility in the great bunch of men in the class. He held before them as a hoped for ideal a new appreciation of the possibilities of lay leadership, the importance of the boys in the church, and a new loyalty to Jesus Christ.

FOUR CLOSE UP IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

Dr. Boynton, Dr. Lewis, J. Jordan and Peckham are bunched in the play of the West Side Pinochle club and next Monday night will decide the winner in the tournament, for on that night the play closes.

Dr. Boynton took advantage of Mr. Jordan's low score and jumped into first place from second position. With one night of play but 800 points separates Dr. Boynton from Peckham the fourth man, next coming Haskell who is 1,460 behind the leader and 585 behind Peckham, who holds fourth place.

VALENTINE PARTY WITH SHOWER FOR MISS ROESSLER

Many friends of Miss Johanna Roessler gathered at her home at 404 West Main street Monday evening and tendered her a miscellaneous shower in honor of her approaching marriage to Theodore R. Clark of New London, formerly of Portland, Maine.

Miss Roessler received many beautiful gifts of cut glass, silverware, linen and other useful articles.

The entertainment took the form of a valentine party during which Miss "Maggie" McVeigh and Miss Helen Flynn gave a pretty valentine act. Miss Minnie J. Donovan entertained with several solos which were greatly enjoyed. The peanut hunt was won by Miss Kitty McVeigh. Other selections on the program of the evening were solos by Miss Kitty Malady, accompanied by Miss Theresa Saunders, and an interpretive dance by Miss Adeline White.

The party broke up at a late hour all wishing the hostess many happy days. Miss Roessler is employed as a toll operator in the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company and is popular with the younger set.

FOOT TWISTED WHEN CAUGHT IN AUTO WHEEL

Reports from Danbury Monday were that John J. Sheehy of 311 Prospect street, this city, had stood the operation well for removal of his foot and that, barring complications, his recovery is expected.

The accident through which his foot was crushed Saturday happened at Bethel where his automobile became stuck in a snow drift. In attempting to get the automobile out of the drift, Mr. Sheehy's left foot became caught in one of the wheels just as the engine was started and the foot was so badly twisted that amputation was necessary.

TRUCK HIT HOUSE ON DUDLEY'S HILL

Monday evening at 9 o'clock a truck owned by W. H. Brooks of New Jersey and loaded with furniture backed down Dudley's Hill. The truck smashed into a house on the left side of the hill, boring a hole about three or four feet square in the house. It required the assistance of two trucks to pull the truck out on the road. Mr. Brooks was accompanied by a helper. The truck and the house received little damage.

GIVES INSTRUCTIVE LECTURE ON ORIENTAL RUGS

Members of the Norwich Art Association and their friends were treated to a most interesting lecture on Oriental rugs Monday evening in the lecture room at Slater hall, given by Arthur U. Dilley of New York, a man who has made the study of rugs and tapestry a life work.

Mr. Dilley began his lecture which was illustrated by many beautiful slides, with an outline of what goes into the making of a rug. Animals that contribute to the rug making industry are the camel, from which comes hair and wool, the goat which also gives hair and wool, and sheep which give wool. People, said Mr. Dilley, often ask me what kind of wool makes the best rug. When it is considered that there are 300 grades of wool, the answer seems to be that a proper mixture of all grades makes the best rug.

In Asia today in some sections flocks of goats and sheep and camels are seen, some flocks of sheep and goats numbering as high as 100,000. Nomads have great flocks and weave their rugs as they go from place to place, thus making their rugs uneven. Although many rugs are made in this manner the rug making industry is in the cities. In the rug making, can daily be seen the families carding, sorting, and making the rugs. These are usually the smaller rugs, the larger ones being made by groups or compounds, which execute a design on large looms.

The first thing done in rug making is the washing of the wool and this is important for many a rug that looks as though it would wear forever, soon fades out, because it had been washed improperly. After the washing comes the picking or carding, then the spinning, hand spun materials being better in wearing strength than machine spun. Then comes the dyeing, using either vegetables or coal tar dyes.

People sometimes ask if a rug will fade. Let me tell you that it is the opening of the fibers, and the uniform fading of the materials that makes the old rug so beautiful and soft.

After the dyeing the foundation is laid with cotton and then transferred to bamboo poles and then to looms. At this stage in rug making the designer plays an important part. Hieroglyphics are used by each manufacturer in outlining the design of every rug, directions being given for every knot and move to be made. The directions are written in code to prevent the stealing of the pattern. When ready to weave, the girls are seated and a man reads the directions to the girls who follow him as he goes, every move being made in rotation until the rug is completed. A heavy comb is used to beat down the knots, and recently one of these combs was found in a pyramid in Egypt showing that rug making was done in that country long before Christ.

After the rug is completed the surface is sheared off until even and then washed down to a proper shading. In business today they bleach but call it washing and this practice injures a rug if too much bleaching is done to get the color. Another fault of business today is the touching up of a rug if the bleaching takes out too much color.

The history of rug making goes back to a Jewish legend of the rug of King Solomon, 60 miles long and 60 miles wide. The first rugs known are of 950 B. C., and we know that in Binevah and Babylon rugs were made, this being in the year 650 B. C. These rugs were mostly tapestry rugs of a simple design yet beautiful.

In Persia is shown how history and religion entered greatly into the art of rug making. The old Persian religion was centered about the flame temples and early Persian rugs show the design of the flame.

Go to China and we know on Confucious who taught nobility, and in the rugs of that time simplicity is outstanding, yet nobility is there. After him came other great men and China's eight signs were heard of, and are shown in the rugs of old days.

In India Buddha, the founder of that religion, taught the eight correct ways of thought and these eight emblems are shown in the rugs of that period. Then in Asia comes Mahomet, the found of a great religion. He was the prophet of the sword, and taught the unity of God. Wonderful rugs of that period carry out the ideals of Mahomet.

Some of the earliest rugs show that designs were taken from nature. Emperors had wonderful gardens and rugs woven for them show these gardens in full bloom.

Take the prayer rugs of the Mohammedan and again religion enters. When the Mohammedans conquered the other peoples they entered the tabernacles and churches and smashed the idols that were worshipped. However, the recesses in which these idols stood remained, and in the prayer rugs are shown the recesses, the incense burners and the lighted candles. The prayer rugs are divided into four groups, the Persian, those of Asia Minor, Turkish, and family prayer rugs, each distinct in outline, yet having the same idea in original design.

Some of the most beautiful Turkish rugs are those taken from the belief of that people, that for every burial a tree must be planted. Turkish cemeteries show that this belief was carried out, and in the design of rugs are shown the cemetery, stones, flowers and the tree beside each grave.

There are six families of rug weavers, those in China, India, Turkestan, Persia, Asia Minor, and in the Caucasus region. The style of design in each of these families is entirely distinctive and we can trace them from the earliest rugs to modern rugs and find it so. In Chinese rugs, dragons, fans, bats, and other symbols of belief are shown. In India, the signs of the Zodiac and gardens and hunting scenes are shown. In Persia wonderful designs are found, some taken from masterpieces in temples and public buildings, while in Turkestan comes the prayer type, and the symbols of Mahomet. In the rugs of the Caucasus are mountain peaks, and in Asia Minor are flowers, and beautiful scenes from old buildings.

Many of these are now in New York, others in London, and still others are owned by individuals. The rugs are priceless and show the way in which the art of weaving rugs have been handed down from generation to generation. Artists of renown have used the rugs in their paintings and have recognized their value. The most priceless paintings in the world show tapestry and rugs of these six families beautifully transferred onto canvass by artists who saw the beauty of the rugs.

Previous to the lecture, which was one of the best given in the city under the auspices of the Norwich Art Association, a business meeting was held, the president Mrs. Channing M. Huntington presiding. Several new members were voted upon, and it was announced that at the April meeting the association hoped to have Count Tolstoi here to speak concerning the life and writings of his noted father. The meeting will be an open one.

HARTFORD MANAGER PUT HIS O. K. ON IT

Jones Declares Tanlac Treatment Ended Suffering From Indigestion, Restoring Appetite and Full Vigor.

Here is another statement that will add both force and dignity to the long list of Tanlac endorsements. A. E. Jones, popular floor manager for the Brown-Thomson Department Store of Hartford, Conn., recently said:

"My improvement has been so marked since I began taking Tanlac that I do not hesitate to say it is a wonderful medicine and that for months I had not been able to enjoy my meals on account of poor digestion and loss of appetite. In fact, everything I would eat caused gas to form on my stomach and kept me feeling stuffed up and uncomfortable for hours.

"Tanlac was so highly spoken of by a friend in the store that I determined to try it and have now taken four bottles. The results have been most gratifying, for all my stomach misery is gone and my appetite is great and I am now feeling like my oldself again."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

and disappointments and criticism which must have crushed any less than a master heart and soul."

The world today sees civilization brought to its supreme test. Its trial came when it had least been expected. At the very apex of material advances when science and industry and invention and culture seemed to have united in justifying man's proudest estimate of his destiny, there came among the nations such a clash of ambitions, such a confusion of ideals, such a crash of conflicting aims and aspirations, as it had never known before. It brought bewildering confusion, and overwhelming amazement to those who had been esteemed the wisest among their kind, and who in the folly of their wisdom had been most certain that such a thing could never happen. And in the very face of havoc wrought, of the utter futility of it all, we still wonder that it could have been.

"But the sobering and distressing realization has come at last, that in its eagerness to harness and dominate the material forces of the world, humanity had lost its anchorage to the ultimate things of the higher, the nobler, the spiritual universe. Turning now, in the midst of wreckage, to seek for whatever can be trusted as safe and strong and lasting, it is not to be wondered that people turn anew the pages of Lincoln's story. In very characters of history. Lincoln has appealed to them as one who manifestly was brought forth with the destiny of consecrated by an infinite hand to render a particular service, to save a nation, to emancipate a people, to conserve to the world the fruits of the American experiment in self for humanity. ... It is strange that the eyes and the heart of a world should turn to him now, when all mankind feels the need for such leadership and service and direction as he gave. A world in transition, an epoch of great moral purposes, the noble assumption of the right courage, that he interpreted to our America in the days of its crisis. More, humanity itself needs to-day ... the gift of unfailing confidence which, enabled him to stand sweet and unshaken amid discouragements and criticisms which would have crushed any less than a master heart and soul.

The world today sees civilization brought to its supreme test. Its trial came when it had least been expected. At the very apex of material advances when science and industry and invention and culture seemed to have united in justifying man's proudest estimate of his destiny, there came among the nations such a clash of ambitions, such a confusion of ideals, such a crash of conflicting aims and aspirations, as it had never known before. Turning now, in the midst of wreckage, to seek for whatever can be trusted as safe and strong and lasting, it is not to be wondered that people turn anew the pages of Lincoln's story. In very truth, his soul is marching on. To him it has been given to leave a living inheritance of vital power and supreme inspiration to the race. Out of Lincoln came the proof that lofty achievement is not in ideals alone, but in that spiritual and material justice which is the wholesome blending of infinite purpose and finite capacity for fulfillment. • • • •

We are coming year by year to a more truthful and understanding appraisal of him. But all the researches of scholars and efforts of students have brought us little story of real understanding. have taught us well such nothing concerning the supreme providential purpose which permits such light to shine now and then upon a generation of men. We know not whence come such great souls, such simple wisdom, such capacity for sacrifice and service. But we do know that as men contemplate this strange career and study its wonders and its lessons, they are at least planting in their minds and hearts a certain vague realization of what Lincoln was and meant; a consciousness of his personal significance to them; and with all this, a keen aspiration for some little participation in such a bestowal of selflessness, sacrifice and service as was the life of Lincoln. That aspiration I firmly believe, is fixed in a greater number of human hearts today than it ever was before. It may be somewhat vague and uniformed, yet we readily recognize that it represents something like the aspirations of a race for a new incarnation of the spirit and the leadership of Lincoln.

"Doubtless it is vain to hope that another as he will be given to us and to our time. But to the extent that we shall prove ourselves worthy of such a leader, to that extent, we shall be the better able to save ourselves without him. The task which men face throughout the world now is one with which they must cope as God intended. Their hope, their salvation, their destiny, must at last be in their own hands. They will save themselves if they will forget themselves. Probably the task would be less difficult if humanity would get a little nearer to God. In times like these, the fullest, truest service that any nation or any society can render to itself, will be the service which is conceived in unselfishness and rendered without thought of immediate gain, or even of ultimate personal advantage.

"We drink from memory, we find inspiration in example, we are exalted by the eternal truths which Lincoln saw and proclaimed, but the highest usefulness in these things is their practical preservation, so as to reveal to all the people a true understanding of Lincolns transcending eminence. His supreme gift was not in construction, his was the master preservation. And the call of the world today is for preservation for the preserved civilization which is the best judgment of human intelligence since the world began. • • • •

"The Lincoln Memorial University has truly been called a living memorial to the emancipator. It was founded in pursuance of his expressed desire that the light of learning might be carried to the people of that strangely sequestered mountain community of which his own forbears were members. • • • • It stands to the everlasting credit of these men and women of the mountains that in every time of national need they have been instant in response and magnificent in loyalty. • • • • The nation owes to them a vast balance of obligation, and the Lincoln Memorial University represents one installment which devout and unselfish people are paying upon that debt." • • •

DELEGATE AT CONVENTION THAT NOMINATED LINCOLN

Chicago, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—Observing the 114th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, Addison G. Proctor, said to be the only living delegate to the Chicago convention that nominated Lincoln for president, told in a speech today of the influences behind the scenes that led to the choice of the "Great Emancipator."

"The 466 delegates to that convention in 1860 met in reality to decide whether slavery should exist or not," he said. "The fugitive slave law had outraged the moral sensibilities of the north.

"After a 'no slavery' plank had been inserted in the platform, a strong delegation from the east asked the nomination of William H. Seward. The leaders, [illegible] of controlling the convention, [illegible] asked the nomination of Lincoln.

"One of the editors of the eastern delegation urged the nomination of Seward. Horace Greeley, however predicted that Seward would fail to carry five states and possibly more. Speaking of Lincoln, Greeley said: 'He is a pretty adroit politician, but he is certainly inexperienced in national affairs and I don't believe the people would trust him.' Cassius Clay of the Kentucky delegation, told us we were on the threshold of civil war and that if Lincoln is elected, 'the south will withdraw from the union, and we the unionists, will help push secession back into its lair.'

"Lincoln was nominated despite the Seward delegates and Senator Seward was one of the first to volunteer to take the platform in favor of Lincoln. I saw him as he was [illegible] before 20,000 persons. He then promised to enforce the laws in all states and when the flag fell at Fort Sumter the people were of one heart. 75,000 volunteered after the first call. 'We are coming Father Abraham, 300,000 strong' was the answer to his second call."

Elwin A. Munger, master in chancery, and another speaker, declared that "Lincoln lived as Moses lived, to lead his people through all of their trials to within sight of the promised land of a reunited people, a great and homogenous nation."

NORWICH LEADS COUNTY TOWNS IN HUNTING LICENSES ISSUED

Norwich led the towns of New London county in the number of hunting licenses issued in 1921, according to the biennial report issued by the state board of fisheries and game. There were 669 resident, 7 non-resident and 2 alien licenses. New London had fewer hunters as there were 573 resident licenses there, 2 non-resident and 4 alien.

The report states that by authority of section 3187 licenses to breed, propagate or sell wild fowl, pheasants or deer was issued to the number of 324.

The primary object of the law is to regulate the possession and sale of animals for which there is a close season, and to protect persons in legitimate possession of such animals in close season.

With the liberal distribution of partially mature pheasants some individuals are tempted to capture or retain in captivity birds liberated by the commission. To safeguard the public interest in such property the provisions of Section 3247 are especially important.

A large proportion of the permits issued under this section were for the protection of individuals having in possession birds or deer legally acquired and kept as pets or for personal pleasure.

Only a few permits were issued to breeders or dealers in birds and deer commercially.

The breeding of game birds and quadrupeds—particularly fur-bearing animals—has in some states become an important industry. The provisions of the section should be amended to cover all protected animals with a view to encouraging a legitimate industry in the breeding of fur-bearing animals under conditions which will protect both the public an dinvestors in such enterprises.

As the licenses are issued by calendar year and it is necessary to compile the biennial report before the end of the calendar year, statistics for 1922 are not yet available. It is interesting to note, however that there is a steady increase in the number of licenses issued. For the year 1919 resident licenses were issued to the number of 27,056 and for 1920, 31,388 as compared with 33,100 for the year 1921. Non resident licenses were issued during the year 1919 to the number of 151, as compared with 242 for 1920 and 281 for 1921. This favorable comparison is not shown in the issuance of alien licenses which were issued during the year 1919 to the number of 187, compared with 208 for 1920 and 168 for 1921. The decrease in 1921 may be due to the fact that some of the alien hunters who bought licenses in 1920 have become naturalized citizens. It is believed that it would facilitate the protection of game if that portion of the law which provides for the issuance of a license also should be repealed. The chief argument in opposition to the elimination of aliens is that occasionally we entertain distinguished visitors from foreign countries who are good sportsmen. Perhaps some provision can be made of the issuance of licenses direct from the office of the commission to visitors from abroad as distinguished from the irresponsible ignorant alien who upon arrival in this country is inclined to resort to questionable methods of killing game; in fact does not stop at game, but kills every bird that flies.

Angling Licenses as Revenue

At present the hunters are required to take out a license in order to hunt. The revenue thus derived is devoted to the protection of both fish and game. Some of the hunters feel that it is not just that they alone should be licensed, and that a portion of their funds be used for the protection of fish.

The propagation of fish is made possible through appropriations made by the legislature.

Fresh water fish culture is a demonstrated success, and the limitations as to what can be accomplished in the propagation of some species is influenced only by the amount of funds available for the maintenance and operations of the hatcheries.

In order to properly stock the trout streams of this state, at least ten times as many three to six inch fingerlings should be produced as have ever been heretofore distributed.

Reference has been made in another part of the report to the work of removing warm water fishes from municipal reservoirs where fishing is prohibited to ponds and lakes which are open to public fishing. The reservoirs may be regarded as hatcheries for the production of large quantities of valuable food and game fishes which are not otherwise attainable without the establishment of very expensive pond culture stations. Only skilled men trained for the purpose can be entrusted with such work, and it can not be done without money. The limit of this sort of work is only bounded by the funds available for defraying the expenses of the operation.

The anglers are quite generally ready to contribute a fee similar to the hunting license fee, for the privilege of fishing, provided the funds are devoted to the propagation and protection of fish.

There are some other minor advantages in a resident angling license law. It will aid in the enforcement of the non-resident angling license law now on the statute books, because every fisherman is then obliged to show his license to the warden. He will, of course, if the provisions of the law are similar to those of other states, be obliged to show his license to any land owner on whose land he is found angling. This provision for the inspection of licenses, provides for identification in connection with violation of the laws for protection of fish and protects the land owner if the fisherman is careless, leaves the gates open, tears down fences or trespasses where he has no right to be.

It is believed that it is in the interest of all concerned that provision be made for an angling license law which will permit the angler to fish on waters which are not forbidden territory or privately posted, and that the revenue derived from such licenses, coupled with the revenue derived from the licensing of commercial fisheries and the hunters licenses will practically make the department self-sustaining and obviate the necessity for calling upon the legislature every two years for large appropriations.

TO PROMOTE PLANS FOR RESTORATION OF PALESTINE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 12.—A world congress to be attended by delegates representing Jewish organizations in all countries will be held some time this year to promote plans for the restoration of Palestine, it was decided today by the United States Synagogue of America in annual session here. Date and place of the world congress will be fixed later by the executive committee at a meeting to be held in New York.

SHOWS HEAVY DEMAND FOR TREASURY CERTIFICATES

The safety of savings has received much attention during the past few years and the government plan of savings through the issue of war savings stamps during the war and of treasury savings certificates during the past year has resulted in millions of dollars which have been loaned to the government in small amounts. The savings of the people have thus been safeguarded and protected from the wiles of the oily-tongued promoters of get-rich-quick enterprises.

In a statement issued by F. C. Ayres, savings division, first federal reserve district, it is declared that the demand for treasury savings certificates in exchange for the matured war savings stamps of the 1918 series has been very heavy. Mr. Ayres states that the postmasters of all classes have taken an unusual interest in helping their patrons to protect their savings and that they are responsible for the success which has been met in refunding the 1918 issue of war savings stamps.

It is estimated that in December the issue of treasury savings certificates amounted to over $1,600,000, divided among the states of the district as follows:

Maine	205,000
Vermont	168,000
New Hampshire	284,000
Massachusetts	485,000
Connecticut	156,000
Rhode Island	101,000
	1,409,000

The incomplete returns received by Mr. Ayres for January indicate a total investment of more than $2,000,000 in these securities. From records thus far received it is evident that people of New England have absorbed upwards of $.0,000,000 in treasury savings certificates since they were first offered to the public on Dec. 15, 19[illegible].

CONFERENCE-CONVENTION OF POSTOFFICE OFFICIALS

Postmasters of the state, postal department employes and business men to whom invitations are being sent are to attend a conference-convention of postoffice officials, postal employes, representatives of chambers of commerce and interested business men in Hartford on Feb. 21. The program will consist of a business men's luncheon at the Hartford club at noon under the auspices of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce. Following the luncheon one hour will be devoted to conferences by the postmaster general and other departmental officials with the representatives of business organizations, large mailers and the business men of the state generally.

At 2 p. m. the conference will adjourn to the assembly hall of the Travelers Insurance company at 57 Prospect street, where Postmaster General Hubert Work and First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett will address a meeting of the postal workers of the state and also discuss postal problems with them.

The purpose of this convention is to bring the postmaster general and departmental officials in closer touch with the needs of the postal service in Connecticut and to afford business men the opportunity of discussing the situation with the postmaster general and submitting to him any suggestions or recommendations which may be deemed advisable.

Postmaster John F. Murphy will attend from this city and it is probable that a number of business men from here may also attend.

ATTENDED 10TH BANQUET OF TEXTILE ASSOCIATES

A number of local textile men were in Providence, R. I., Saturday evening to attend the 10th annual banquet of the Textile Associations, club, which was held at the Biltmore hotel, after which a theatre party was enjoyed. The dinner at the Biltmore was preceded by an afternoon entertainment given by the Swindle [illegible] Quartet with [illegible] numbers by several of the members.

The club is a limited membership organization of textile executives covering the territory from Maine to the southern tier states. Robert W. Boyden, formerly agent of the Goodyear Cotton Mills, Inc., of Goodyear, Conn. and now with the Farr Alpaca Company of Holyoke, Mass., is president and John [illegible] Hensley, of the Leader Weaving Company of Pawtucket, R. I., is secretary and treasurer. Mr. Hensley is well known in this section, being a frequent business caller here during the war, when he was an inspector in the employ of the Air Service United States government.

The next meeting will be held at the Biltmore on March 10th when Thomas Arpden, who was in Russia at the time of the bolshevik accession to power will tell of his experiences as manager of a textile mill for two years under bolshevik control.

FIND "THE SCORPION" IS NOT OBJECTIONABLE

Madison, Wis., Feb. 12.—A furore caused by the publication of "The Scorpion" described as "a fortnightly journal of political opinion," edited by David Sinclair, son of Upton Sinclair, the novelist, and Jesse H. Brooks of Delavan, Wis., students at the University of Wisconsin today proved to be much ado about nothing, according to S. H. Goodnight, dean of men at the university.

The first issue of "The Scorpion" appeared Friday after which Dean Goodnight called in editors for a conference regarding the publication. Rumors that the paper had been suppressed and the editors expelled resulted in declarations from several state legislators that if such action had been taken they would "do something themselves."

Dean Goodnight said tonight that there was no objection on the part of the university officials to the publication of "The Scorpion" and also discounted the rumors regarding the expulsion of the editors and the suppression of the journal.

The regulations of the board of regents, he said, provide for censorship for slander, libel, indecency and obscenity. Dean Goodnight said there was nothing in the regulations to suppress political or religious views or free speech.

3,000 MINE WORKERS OUT ON STRIKE AT MOUNT CARMEL, PA.

Mount Carmel, Pa., Feb. 12.—Three thousand mine workers in the Mount Carmel district went on strike today at the Reliance and Alaska collieries of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Co. The strike is in sympathy with the miners at Locust Spring, who claim that the men working in slopes received $5.40 per yard at one place, an $11.00 for the same work in another.

Local union heads have not been called in to consultation, and the corporation has refused to treat with the men. It had been said that the wage scale was in accordance with the agreement reached last September.

OPPOSING BILL TO COMPEL CUTTING BRUSH

Requiring property owners to cut the weeds and brush alongside the highways, called for in Representative Johnson's bill has been the cause of some amusement in the general assembly but the opposition shown at the hearing before the committee on agriculture showed that it was no laughing matter to most farmers. Senator Brooks of Torrington opposed this as he did the bill of Senator Pierson before the same committee prohibiting the picking of arbutus for commercial purposes.

Representative Johnson, in his bill would [illegible] the maintenance of highways make travel safer and put the expense where it belonged, on the property owner, instead of the town. Some roads were so hidden by brush on each side that it was impossible to see a vehicle coming on a cross road and accidents often resulted. Sen. Joe Brooks brought out that the bill would apply to all roads, which he suggested would cause considerable opposition in the house from representatives from towns where little wood roads are [illegible] travelled. [illegible] orders for roads which even a Ford couldn't get over and there are hundreds of such roads," he said. "It would cost more to keep the brush out than the land is worth. In fact the selectmen in this town have asked me not to cut as that would spoil the scenic view."

Would Cost Too Much.

Representative Hyde of Brooklyn also said that it would cost more to cut the brush than the land was worth in many cases and suggested that it be changed so as to require the property owners to keep the road passable as regards brush.

Senator Brooks pointed out that there was now a law compelling the brush to be cut back 10 feet from the road and if this was not sufficient to afford a view of other roads the discretion be made to [illegible] speed of the [illegible] he also suggested that it be made applicable only to traveled roads, no "cart paths". The suggestion was made that this result could be attained by making the law applicable only to R. F. D. roads. Someone stated that not all of the R. F. D. roads were well traveled roads but Chairman Child declared that if they were not, it was up to the town because the governor would [illegible] that all R. F. D. roads be kept in good condition.

"If you [illegible] weeds and briers with the brush, as the bill calls for, the farmers won't have time to do [illegible] else," said Senator Brooks.

"Why don't you add rocks and boulders on," said a farmer.

"I'll vote for that," remarked Senator Brooks.

Another farmer said that when he raised was the only time farmers had to cut any brush at all over on their pasture lands, and they did this only to provide pasturage for their cattle.

"We can't pasture on the highway so why should we cut the brush there?" he asked.

Forbids Selling Arbutus.

Senator Pierson's bill is an amendment to the present bill which prohibits the transportation of evergreen trees unless properly marked. It forbids the picking of trailing arbutus for the purpose of sale and specifies that having in the possession a bunch of more than 50 sprays will be prima facie evidence of intent to sell.

Senator Atchison asked why it would not be sufficient to specify that the attempt to sell the flower would be evidence of intent to sell instead of the possession of 500 sprays. He feared this would penalize many innocent persons. Senator Pierson said he felt 100 sprays should be sufficient for anyone.

Might Harm Children.

"If you pass this bill," said Senator Bronson, "some fool I say that unwisely will take advantage of it for making criminals out of little children just for spite. Arbutus is getting scarce and should be protected. This bill won't reach the ones you want to reach and it furnishes ground for spite work. Legally in Litchfield county the arbutus is in places where the ordinary person can't get it. Every spring between Torrington and Waterbury hundreds of little children throng the roads offering for sale small bunches of arbutus they have picked high up in the mountains where no one else could find or get it. It's the only chance they have to get a little spending money the whole year. You have put through laws prohibiting fishing, too. I have acres of laurel I'd pay anybody for if they would come and clean it off."

Senator Pierson remarked that he had the address of some Greeks in New York city who would be glad to come up and clean off his laurel and pay him for it.

"You are trying to protect wildflowers by legislation, aren't you?" "I've been trying for years to protect people by legislation from investing in things that are worthless and I can't do it. You can't reach the ones you want to and some innocent person suffers."

He also pointed out that the penalty fixed for the violation of the act to which the amendment was attached was $50 fine, one-half of which should go to the informer.

"One of the worst pieces of legislation on the books," he declared. "Rewarding one who informs on another usually one merely venting his spite."

It is believed that substitute bills, less drastic in nature will be introduced by the committee, along the lines of the suggestions made.

SMASHED INTO TREE ON QUAKER HILL ROAD

While operating an automobile on Quaker Hill about 8 o'clock Saturday night, while in an alleged intoxicated state, Herbert Rockwell, 47, of Westbrook, and Joseph Costelli, 26, Chester, ran into a tree at the side of the road and smashed the car they were riding in and both were somewhat injured.

Costelli's injuries were slight being [illegible] bruises but it is feared that Rockwell may have suffered some internal injuries and X-ray pictures are to be taken of him at the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital in New London, where he is a patient. His shoulder and right leg were also slightly injured.

GAVE SURPRISE SHOWER TO MISS FANNY RAGOVIN

A surprise shower was held at the home of Mrs. J. Sacks, 27 Greene avenue, Sunday evening in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Fanny Ragovin of this city to Edward Kamp of Portchester, N. Y.

Among the many games played a mock marriage was the most interesting feature of the evening, which was carried out by Miss Sophie Goler as the bride, Miss Bobbie Niederman as the groom and Miss Eva Blenderman as the minister.

Miss Ragovin received many useful gifts, and during the evening refreshments were served. All the arrangements of the evening were made by the Misses Sophia and Bessie Yalen, Leah Addlestone and Ethel Levine.

Companions of Forest Dance.

A very successful Mardi Gras dance was given by Nevins circle, Companions of the Forest, in Union hall Friday evening. The affair opened with grand march led by Margaret Kilkenny and William McClafferty amidst a shower of confetti and serpentine rolls. After the first number the participants unmasked, which was the cause of much laughter, as several wore very interesting costumes. Dancing continued until 1 o'clock, and all reported a fine time.

POETRY

A VALENTINE.

Let others wonder what fair face
Up in their path shall shine,
And fancying half half hoping trace
Some manner charm or tenderest grace
To be their Valentine.

Let other hearts with secret sweet
One secret wish enshrine,
That Fate may lead their happy feet
Fair Julia in the lane to meet
To be their Valentine.

But I, far happier, am secure;
I know the eyes benign,
The face more beautiful and pure
Than Fancy's fairest portraiture
That mock my Valentine.

More than when first I singled thee,
This one in prayer to mine,—
That in the years I yet shall see
Adorning to the last, to be My happy Valentine.

A new development in the poultry industry is the production of a fowl that is a cross between a turkey and a chicken. This hybrid, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine, has been propagated for four years by a California breeder. He has called the fowls "turkens," and has now quite a large flock of them. The male bird has a gobbler neck and other resemblances to a turkey. The female has a turkey head, but otherwise looks like a chicken. In color they are generally red, and when fully grown, weigh from nine to fourteen pounds.

FRENCH ARE SURMOUNTING OBSTACLES IN THE RUHR

French Embassy in Washington Reports That 12,000 French and Belgian Railwaymen Are Ready for Service in Occupied Germany—French Are in a Position to Obtain as Much Coal From That District as Before the Occupation, With Prospects of Increasing the Amount—Military Situation is Described as Excellent—British Troops Not to be Withdrawn From the Rhine.

Washington, Feb. 13.—(By The A. P.)—Announcement was made through the French embassy tonight that up to February 12, twelve thousand French and Belgian railwaymen were at the disposal of the technical commission in the Ruhr and that France was accordingly in a position to obtain as much coal from that district as before the occupation, with prospects of increasing the amount. France, it was added, was in a position to say to the German railwaymen "work or get out."

The French troops in the Ruhr were declared to number 46,94[illegible] officers and men and the military situation was described as "excellent," it being added that [illegible] press dispatches were without importance and that "no reinforcement of these troops is contemplated now."

PARLIAMENT DEBATED THE RUHR AND DEBT

London, [illegible] (By The A. P.)—The debate [illegible] be begun in the house of commons on [illegible] was expected to throw [illegible] upon many questions of home and foreign [illegible] not with two individuals [illegible] place [illegible] the United States.

No such [illegible] from either the government or the opposition side of the house, the discussion being [illegible] of a preliminary skirmishing [illegible].

It became evident [illegible] the government had no [illegible] to the withdrawal of British troops from the Rhine, but the same [illegible] whether it will be possible for them to remain very long," said Mr. Bonar Law.

The speakers on both sides of the main [illegible] temperately with Premier Ramsay MacDonald, the labor leader, admitted that it would be madly [illegible] to oppose [illegible] directly. While [illegible] the people [illegible] leaving the Ruhr [illegible] referred to the league of [illegible].

[illegible] conference Mr. MacDonald said that it would eventually be obliged to recognize the Soviet government and declared it would have been better at Lausanne had Russia been taken more into account. On the question of the debt to America Mr. MacDonald asserted no sound [illegible] here in regard to any negotiation as to how the debt was to be paid and whether [illegible] was good [illegible] or not would be [illegible] the party because [illegible] be argued, because [illegible] a substantial percentage in addition to the debt.

Premier Bonar Law devoted almost the whole of his long speech to a review of the London and Paris conferences of the premiers, in which he confessed his belief that France in proposing [illegible] harsh proposals was largely influenced by the fear that if reparations were fixed at the smaller amount proposed by Great Britain, France would be able to pay the whole off in fifteen or twenty years and would then become as strong and as formidable as ever.

In this respect Mr. Bonar Law clearly indicated his opinion that full credit should be given for French anxiety on the score of her security, he seemed to think also that German public opinion would never accept the situation until the [illegible] experiment has been tried, and that the French people themselves [illegible] until the Ruhr plan proved either a success or a failure. He also said he [illegible] at the moment was [illegible].

The premier aptly described the Ruhr as "the jugular vein of Europe's industrial life" and made no concealment of his belief that French action in the Ruhr had not only harmed Germany herself, but had been disastrous to Europe's economic life.

The correspondent adds that the officials were "bloodily beaten" as they were taken away and that they were obliged to march in "Goose step" fashion.

The Germans understand that the occupation of the town was a sequel to yesterday's disorders in which a German policeman was killed and two French gendarmes were wounded.

OCCUPATIONAL FORCES DEMAND 48 AUTOMOBILES

Bochum, Feb. 13.—It is stated in German quarters that the occupational authorities have demanded the delivery of 48 automobiles by the German residents, each car to be of at least 20 horsepower capable of seating four, and accompanied by a chauffeur.

A [illegible] of fulfillment of the demand, it is said, a number of automobiles have already been appropriated in the streets. The Germans claim that fulfillment of the requisition could involve property worth one billion marks.

GERMAN POLICEMEN IN CUSTODY OF FRENCH

[illegible] Feb. 13.—According to [illegible] from French sources the result of today's temporary occupation of Gelsenkirchen was the arrest of [illegible] policemen concerned in yesterday's affray with French officers. The [illegible] police barracks [illegible] the men [illegible] and the others who were arrested were taken into custody for disrespect to the French while the detachment having the arrested men in charge was passing.

These despatches say the six policemen will be courtmartialed and that they are liable to the death sentence.

Duesseldorf, Feb. 13.—The burgomaster and chief of police of Vohwinkel have been expelled from the town for refusing to obey orders of the occupation authorities.

TO USE SEVERE MEASURES TO CURB GERMAN SABOTAGE

London, Feb. 13.—The Dortmund correspondent of the Times says the French announce that severe measures will be taken in consequence of the [illegible] of the railways in the [illegible] district and the cutting of military wires near Herne.

The burgomaster of Essen has made [illegible] a letter received from General [illegible] notifying him that in consequence of the burgomaster's failure to comply with certain requisition orders the general has instructed his troops to help themselves. The recent [illegible] seizure by the French of [illegible] seems to be in impress the manufacturers with the inconvenience of railroad and telegraph interruption, while [illegible] industries have been [illegible] to the employment of motors. Several German cars, including one belonging to Thyssen, have escaped into Holland.

COMMUNISTS BY THOUSANDS ARRESTED IN ITALY

Rome, Feb. 13.—(By The A. P.)—"Communists by the thousands have been arrested," said Deputy Finzi, under secretary of the interior, in an interview published today by the Giornale D'Italia.

The deputy added that the Fascisti disliked halfway measures, wherever the innocence of persons arrested was proved they would be released. Two hundred such men already had been freed. Everywhere evidence had been gathered showing the organization of a plot against the safety of the state. The plotters had been supplied with foreign money; they had cipher codes which were changed monthly. Arms and explosives and hostile manifestos had been sequestrated at various places.

BILLS BEFORE ASSEMBLY CALL FOR OVER $62,000,000

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 13.—Governor Templeton was notified today that the passage of all bills before the general assembly would require appropriations aggregating over $62,000,000 during the present session. This was disclosed by a survey completed today by the appropriations committee. The total is over $25,000,000 more than the aggregate of appropriations requests referred to the legislature by the state board of finance.

Fifty-four bills calling for the construction by the state highway department of special roads in particular localities would require the expenditure of $7,644,000, according to estimates furnished to the governor by Highway Commissioner Bennett.

The estimated receipts of the state for the next two years are $32,977,1[illegible], which is not much more than half the total of askings.

FIRE DROVE 110 PERSONS TO STREET IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., Feb. 13.—Fire, breaking out in a store on the ground floor of the Furlong apartments, North Main and North Court streets, this city, about 7.15 o'clock tonight drove more than seventy men and women and about 40 children into the streets. Four alarms called two-thirds of the city's fire fighting forces to the scene, and it was 11 o'clock before firemen were satisfied that they had the fire under control. Damage to the building by fire and water and the loss of personal property to tenants and stock in four stores on the street floor is estimated at more than $100,000.

INJURED BY EXPLOSION OF FLASHLIGHT POWDER

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Charges that a letter sent to the postmaster of New Work city in October, 1920, threatening to kill him and blow up the Woolworth building was inspired by an official of the W. J. Burns Detective Agency, were made today by Albert Ballin, alias Balanow, confessed spy and Agent Provacateur, continuing his sworn deposition for use by the defense in the trial of twenty-two alleged communists at St. Josepr, Michigan, February 26.

Balanow, under questioning by Frank P. Walsh, attorney for the defendants, also charged that Charles Scully, head of the radical bureau of the department of justice in New York, was in the employ of Burns and sold him secret papers for the files of William J. Flynn, former chief of the department of justice bureau of investigation, which position Burns now occupies.

Taking of Balanow's sworn statement was halted shortly before noon when a premature explosion of flashlight powder being used by a newspaper wrecked the offices of William Cunnes, socialist candidate for mayor, where the hearing is being held. Miss Ida Silverman, court commissioner before whom the deposition is being made, was seriously injured; the right arm of Nicholas McDonald, the photographer, was blown off, and William Cunnes, Jr., was slightly injured by flying glass.

All the windows of the office suite were blown out and many valuable papers destroyed. Mr. Walsh, Ikananow, O. L. Smith, assistant attorney general of Michigan; and Max Burger, former department of justice agent who were posing for the picture were so badly shaken it was also feared that a score of Balanow's private papers and documents, which were to be used as evidence had been destroyed.

Balanow, in his testimony, swore that Allan O. Meyers, head of the radical department of the Burns Agency, had him, while employed as a Burns operative, go to the office of the Thiel Agency, where he was formerly employed, and write the letter to the New York postmaster on a Thiel typewriter.

SETTLEMENT OF WAR CONTRACTS TO BE HURRIED

Washington, Feb. 13.—Secretary Weeks announced today a new plan to expedite settlement of war contracts. He assigned Colonel J. A. Hull, who has been acting judge advocate general of the army to the task of arranging quick settlement for a wholesale disposal of contracts entered during the war, involving more than 150,000 cases.

[illegible] by the war claims board will be reviewed and audited under Colonel Hull's supervision. This work will [illegible] under the [illegible] [illegible] approval [illegible] [illegible] war department books. Under the new plans it is hoped the delay will be greatly reduced.

Honest contractors, some of them lost rather than profited by the war work, Secretary Weeks said, would be [illegible]

Where [illegible] revealed a suspicion of fraud, it was said, the policy of the department would be to hold up all other contracts involving the same contractor, sidetracking these while the claims of contractors against whom no suspicion has been aroused would be given right of way.

Reviews and audits of cases already passed upon by the war claims board for settlement, Secretary Weeks explained, had resulted in a return to the government of about $15,000,000.

SUGAR CROP ESTIMATES SEND PRICES SOARING

New York, Feb. 13.—The sugar market was electrified today by a general buying movement founded on reduced crop estimates, figured by a Cuban house, which carried futures up 100 points, the maximum daily fluctuation permitted on the floor of the New York Coffe and Sugar Exchange.

Buyers were willing to pay the full 100 point advance all day, but sellers refused to offer and the market closed at the top price with May contracts quoted at 5.61, July at 5.82 and September at 5.91.

The maximum rise represented an advance of $1,000 per contract over Saturday's close.

The crop figures responsible for the exciting trading were issued by Messrs. Guma-Mejor of Havana. Their December estimate of 4,193,000 tons for the sugar crop now harvesting was reduced to 3,800,000, thus offsetting Secretary Hoover's assurance that there would be enough sugar to go around.

CARPENTERS AND JOINERS ELECT STATE OFFICERS

Greenwich, Feb. 13.—J. L. Richards of New Haven was re-elected president of the Connecticut State council of carpenters and joiners at the closing session of a two-day convention here today. The next convention will be held in Hartford in February, 1924.

Officers of the organization were instructed to work in conjunction with the American Federation of Labor in all legislative programmes and the work to establish a bank for organized labor. Reports of committees were accepted and resolutions concerning internal affairs of the council were adopted.

In addition to the president, the following officers were re-elected.

H. W. Guernsey, Derby, first vice president; Thomas Russell, Hartford, second vice president; George B. Chandler, Greenwich, secretary; J. L. Andrews, Willimantic, was elected treasurer to succeed Fred E. Dunn, New London.

MIGRATORY BIRD BILL DEFEATED IN THE HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 13.—The migratory bird bill, proposing to establish public hunting grounds an dmake federal licenses necessary for hunters, was killed today by the house, 94 to 60, after a bitter fight.

The measure was similar to one passed by the senate. Representative Mondell of Wyoming and Garrette of Tennessee, the republican and democratic leaders, joined in opposing the bill as an invasion of state rights. Ther opponents declared it was drawn in the interest of wealthy sportsmen.

Treaties Signed by the U. S. and France

Giving France Mandates Over Former German Possessions in Africa.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Treaties between the United States and France covering the mandates over Togoland and the Kamaruns, former German colonial possessions in Africa, were signed today in Paris by Premier Poincare and Ambassador Herrick.

The agreements were said to be the first of the "Class B" mandates under the treaty of Versailles to be approved formally by the United States. They provide for equal opportunity for Americans in the two mandated territories as compared to those given to the nations of signatory powers to the treaty of Versailles.

As is the case of the Yap mandate treaty signed a year ago with Japan, the approval of the United States was required because this country is not a member of the league of nations through which mandate rights are granted but is claiming nevertheless, a voice in disposition of the territory taken from Germany in the World war.

LEGISLATIVE HEARING ON BIRTH CONTROL BILL

Hartford, Feb. 13.—Outstanding among the legislative hearings at the capitol this afternoon was that before the judiciary committee on the bill of the recently formed Birth Control league in this state. Anticipating the appearance of Mrs. Margaret Sanger, widely known worker in the birth control movement, the old senate chamber was crowded throughout the afternoon with women and men.

The bill seeks to repeal laws in force in Connecticut for more than half a century which penalize any attempt or means to prevent conception, and would supply new laws which physicians and nurses may disseminate "scientific information" concerning birth control. Other portions of the present laws bearing upon other forms of interference with possible maternity would be left unchanged.

Mrs. Sanger then addressed the committee, speaking not on the bill specifically but on the general subject of birth control and what was sought through legislation. She made a plea for a selected birth rate and described clinics in Holland and gave opinions and statistics from British medical authorities. She declared that clinics should be maintained in this country so that women might obtain needed information about the responsibilities of marriage, and laws which would enable physicians to instruct poor women, just as it was claimed they did their wealthy patients.

The bill was opposed by Right Rev. John G. Murray, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic diocese of Hartford who [illegible] statement in regard [illegible] Holland were incorrect. He also made sharp criticisms of the bill and declared that [illegible] were in effect those that [illegible] law [illegible] this subject be eliminated. WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic Office
61 Church Street Telephone 1023

A hundred per cent. meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club was held Tuesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. and was in charge of the [illegible] committee of the club. President Virginia L. Murphy presided. Guests of the club were William Cash, president of the Norwich club, James L. Case, Charles W. Tarbart, Louis Buchanan and Albert Adams, all of Norwich, Judge George E. Hinman, Dr. W. H. Hendry and George Gurley of this city. After the reading of the minutes by Secretary Hill it was announced that District Governor John Adams would be here on February 27 and it is planned to hold an evening meeting on that date. Invited for that meeting will be the committee from Putnam in charge of forming a club in that place and also the members of the Norwich Rotary club, which pack president of the Norwich club was called upon for remarks as to the best means for conducting a contest for obtaining 100 per cent. meetings which plan was suggested some time ago by Judge Frank H. Foss. He said that the Norwich club had divided into two teams and after a certain period of time the losing team in the contest was forced to stage a banquet for the active club at the team's expense. If all of the meetings were one hundred per cent. in attendance the banquet was at the expense of the club.

The meeting was then turned over to Fred D. Jordan, president of the boys' work committee. Every member of the club had as his guest a boy not over 16 years of age and Mr. Jordan ultimately introduced "Jim" Case, who gave a talk to the young guests.

He began his talk by stating that in his opinion the Willimantic club should take over the Y. M. C. A. and organize it into a community house in order to give the boys of this city all of the advantages that such a building offers.

"The boys of today are the men of tomorrow. They are the future business men of Willimantic, and future Rotarians, and they should be given all of the opportunities possible." He directed the remainder of his remarks to the boys and said that there were three things necessary for success, the first was character, the second was knowledge and the third was ability. No person can be a success without possessing these characteristics. He advised all the boys to practice the Rotarian motto, service above self, and said that they must do good to make good. He then related a story which illustrated the fact that every little bit counts and that success is slow in coming; one should never become discouraged. The speaker closed his remarks by impressing upon the minds of the boys that they should strive to become an asset and not a liability to Willimantic.

The club extended a rousing vote of thanks to Mr. Case for his inspiring talk. The young guests then retired to the gymnasium where they indulged in various games which were heartily enjoyed by all.

NATIONAL LEAGUERS VOTE TO LEAVE BENTON CASE TO COMMISSIONER LANDIS

New York, Feb. 13.—Decision as to whether Rube Benton, southpaw pitcher of the St. Paul club of the American association, will play this year with the Cincinnati club, was left today by the National league in the hands of Commissioner K. M. Landis.

The league, at its spring meeting, referred the Benton issue, which involves opposition to the pitcher's return to the majors as an alleged undesirable player, to President John A. Heydler, but the latter declared he would be guided wholly by whatever finding Commissioner Landis makes.

The commissioner, Mr. Heydler said, has been conducting an inquiry into the case for some time as a result of a formal request from the St. Paul club for a clear statement of Benton's status in organized baseball. The commissioner has not informed the league when his decision will be made.

Prior to the meeting, it was understood that August Hermann president of the Cincinnati club, would seek a show down on the part of the National league, but Mr. Heydler announced that no action was taken to show the alignment of the clubs in the matter.

Mr. Hermann, however, reiterated emphatically his view that Benton should be given a clean bill.

Meanwhile the deal between Cincinnati and St. Paul was said, would hang fire. Formal transfer of Jeff Massey, first baseman; pitcher, as part payment for Benton has been held up by Mr. Heydler pending the outcome of the case.

The National league today formally adopted a schedule of 154 games beginning on April 17 and voted to increase the league player prize from $5,000 to $7,500 and approved the design for a memorial to be erected in Chicago for the late Michael (Hop) Anson, one of the most famous baseball stars of all time.

Boston, Feb. 13.—Pancho Villa, Filipino fighter, tonight defended his title as American flyweight boxing champion against Frankie Mason, of Fort Wayne, Ind., former holder. Villa knocked out Mason in the fifth round.

Except for a short storm which Mason forced on him in the fourth round, Villa was a little brown master throughout. Mason had by far the worst of three rounds and the fourth was going against him, when he sent home several rights to the body to gain honors in that one round.

The sting of these proved a spur to Villa's mastery. The fifth round was only a few seconds along when he jolted Mason with a right to the head and caught him short with a stiff left. Mason was down sprawling in his own corner, but came up after a count of nine. The champion was on him with both hands and swinging hard on head and body sent Mason against the ropes and to the floor under a rain of blows.

The Hoosier was game and tried to rise, but was unequal to it and fell back.

Villa, like a little brown [illegible] stepped back to his place smoothed down his oiled hair, then went forward to shake hands with his defeated opponent, himself a former champion in five smaller of actually contested boxing classes.
